

Cotton 1

AB/MEH/TB&P 8/27 (Thurs PM ONLY!)

U.S. Senator Tom Cotton of Arkansas is scheduled to speak tonight (Thurs) just ahead of President Trump at the Republican National Convention. In an interview with Talk Business & Politics, Cotton said he will discuss past decisions by the Democratic presidential nominee.

News15 0:23 "...now, 47 years."

Senator Cotton has been discussed as a possible presidential candidate in 2024. He is running for re-election in November. He does not face a Democratic opponent, only Libertarian Ricky Harrington. Cotton said tonight's speech will use many of the themes of his re-election campaign, like keeping America safe and defending our prosperity.

Cotton 2

AB/MEH/TB&P 8/27 (Thurs PM ONLY!)

It's a big night for Arkansas politics with the state's junior Senator Tom Cotton has been selected for a primetime speaking role in the Republican National Convention. His speech is scheduled to come just before President Trump on this (Thurs), the final night of the convention. Cotton gave a preview of his speech in an interview with Talk Business & Politics:

News16 0:18 "...a new war."

Some political observers have said this is a major role for Cotton, who has been discussed as a possible presidential candidate in 2024. Cotton refused to say if he will be running for the highest office in the land, but is instead focused on winning reelection to the Senate in November. He does not face a Democratic opponent, only Libertarian Ricky Harrington. than making a case for President Trump to be reelected and to keep the American people safe.