Moving	Closer Look	10/24/21	7:00pm	28min	Americans On the Move - The Great Reshuffling? The COVID-19 pandemic pressed the accelerator on a pre-existing trend in the United States. Americans are on the move. Not all of us and not from everywhere, but “we’re seeing the very early stages of a sort of ‘reshuffling’ in the country,” says Evan Hock, co-founder of Make My Move. Facing realities, sometimes economic, sometimes health-related, people nationwide are reassessing personal priorities. D’Vera Cohn of Pew Research Center confirms “about 1 in 20 adults told us they had moved permanently or temporarily due to the coronavirus outbreak,” a marked uptick from years past. The shift was especially noticeable among young adults aged 18-29. “We found about 11% moved due to the COVID pandemic,” she says, which contrasts with just 5% of older adults. The pandemic also intensified the drift towards 20-somethings residing with their parents long-term. Related Links:  https://www.makemymove.com/  https://www.bankrate.com/authors/jeff-ostrowski/

Soldiers For Faith Ministries launched 'call-in' bible studies back in 2012, but stay-at-home orders in 2020 crystalized the ministry purpose and mission. “When the pandemic hit,” says founder Kelly McAndrew, “all of a sudden we understood what God had prepared us for.”

His professional and ministry mission has led him to help others out of this crisis and find hope. "I twice went through a journey of being unemployed, and it was that journey that led me to the place where I am today, that is, how do I give back and help others who are going through that journey of unemployment." Through his own job-loss experiences, Kreienkamp works to help others "get out of the rut, get unstuck and move forward." He says losing a job gives us a chance to pause and think through what our next steps should be; to think where you can best to use your skills, your gifts and abilities in a way you get joy out of your next new job. And trusting God through this process is key.

He's student body president at Christ-centered Vanguard University in California. And he's becoming an expert in human trafficking, especially among his people in the Navajo Nation. "As a Christian, I feel like it's my responsibility to combat the issue of human trafficking, whether that's educating people or doing studies and research...but as a Christian and being a Native American, the Christian aspect of this, I look at human trafficking biblically." "First, I see a call to action in Matthew chapter 5 when Jesus talks about being salt and light," Holgate explains, "And secondly, from Proverbs...the New Living Translation, it reads, "Speak up for those who cannot speak for themselves; ensure justice for those being crushed (Proverbs 31:8)." Holgate sees that scripture as a second call to action for him to stand up for Native American people, who "have had their voices taken from them – and in some cases, they're not even invited to the table."

Incarceration	Closer Look	11/21/21	7:00pm	15min	Jail to Jobs, Prison Fellowship 'Remembers Those In Prison' The Bible's book of Hebrews calls Christians to "remember those in prison." Today, in the United States more than 2-million men and women are behind bars. Even more striking, 2 out of 3 prisoners, when they get out, will re-offend and go right back in. Why is recidivism so high? Christ-centered ministries like Prison Fellowship and Jail To Jobs Austin break into that hopelessness with practical and spiritual reform. Hip-hop artist Lecrae partners with Prison Fellowship, performing concerts in select prisons, speaking and encouraging inmates to embrace a second chance at life. Citing imperfect biblical leaders like Moses and King David, the artist commits himself to raising awareness of all people serving sentences, well-deserved or not. Jesus "wouldn't see them as what they've done, He'd see them as what He can do through them. I think that's how we should see them as well." "They're still human beings with dignity who've made mistakes."
Incarceration – Employment	Closer Look	11/21/21	7:15pm	15min	In Austin, Christian-based program called Jail to Jobs is another example of a restorative approach, successfully redirecting teenagers caught breaking the law. As the name implies, the ministry goes into juvenile halls and offers young men and women a chance to show up on a jobsite and learn a trade when they are released. "If we can get them to us, and mentor them and teach the word of God," says Jeremias Cooper, JTJ Travis County director, "then we can start making some changes in their lives."
Mental Health	Local Closer Look	11/28/21	7:00pm	15min	CLOSER LOOK: Heroes Shaped By 9-11, Lessons from The Attacks on America For those who witnessed the aftermath up close, the effects of 9-11 were infinitely more personal than intrusive changes to airport security. Min was in Kansas City when he was called to the Trade Towers collapse in New York City with The Salvation Army. Ellers has since designed curriculum with titles like Spiritual First Aid used to train first responders internationally. Rev. Dr. Tim Carentz was a young Air Force medic in D.C. when he got the call to the Pentagon on 9-11. He was eventually diagnosed with post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). Leaning on faith in Jesus and the support of his military community, Carentz retired from the USAF as a Chief Master Sergeant and now operates Kaiserslautern Military Resiliency Center.

From the age of 5, Doc knew that he wanted to play football--as a quarterback in high school, at a Division 1 college and ultimately in the NFL. Those plans were abruptly changed when Chad turned 12. Doc first noticed that something was wrong when he started to run into trees while playing with his friends at dusk. He also knew something was off when he suddenly stopped being able to anticipate blindside hits at football practice. He simply couldn't see the other players coming. His doctors diagnosed him with retinitis pigmentosa--"tunnel vision"--a genetic disorder that would eventually take his sight. Doc got depressed and says that if it weren't for great friends and family, he might have let that depression take him to something destructive like illegal drugs. "I think God had a plan and back then I didn't realize it, didn't care for it." Doc said. Doc's mom wouldn't let him give up and insisted he pursue higher education. He eventually got a PhD in counselor education (thus the nickname "Doc").

However, people are very mistaken if they think that means Marissa is unable to do much. For example, she won an award for “Best Handwriting” way back in pre-school. She can use a laptop computer and has tried football, playing the cello, and can row a boat. How does she do these things? “I put my mind to it. I do it.” Sometimes Marissa will attempt something “just to say that I could,” adding, “and to prove that I wouldn’t let anything hold me back.” We asked Marissa if – over the years - she and God have had conversations about her physical appearance? “Yes ... Why was I made like this? And for many years, I was mad at God. I didn’t understand. I couldn’t see a purpose, but over the past few years, people would come to me and say that I inspire them, or point out how much I changed their lives, or how they see me and how I show God’s love through having no hands – and that has been really great for me to hear and very emotional for me to hear.”
