| 26.1    | Crime | 10PM | 4/14/2018 | 85 seconds  | 2 News at 10PM on Dayton's CW | A 911 call led Police to Whitmore Arms Apartments at Almond and Midway Avenue. When they arrived they found 27 year old Tyree Mitchell dead in the back seat of a white car. Police say he had one gunshot wound to the upper torso. Police are speaking with several witnesses they're also speaking with a person in interest in this crime and there's no danger to the public.                    |
| 26.1    | Crime | 10PM | 5/28/2018 | 130 seconds | 2 News at 10PM on Dayton's CW | A neighborhood is in shock after 19-year-old Sorin Farkas was shot in his garage around 3 o'clock this morning. Huber heights police say a man suspected of shooting Farkas is still at large. Farkas and the suspect were not alone, police say there was someone else in the garage who was not injured. Police say the suspect ran from the house and got into a car while the witness called 911. |

| 26.1 Crime   | 7AM  | 6/5/2018 85 seconds   | 2 News Today on Dayton's CW   | A string of murders comes to a dramatic end in Arizona as police close in on a suspect in a hotel room. It was a hunch from a retired detective that led police to 56-year-old Dwight Jones, who killed himself when police approached his hotel room. Jones is believed to have killed 6 people in the Phoenix and Scottsdale area. A preliminary investigation shows that all six victims has some link to Jones' bitter eight-year divorce case that ended last year. The murders began with the fatal shooting of Doctor Steven Pitt-a psychiatrist who consulted on high profile cases, His other victims include two paralegals who worked for the law office representing his ex-wife, a marriage counselor and another man and woman who have not been identified. An investigation is still underway. |
| 26.1 Economy | 10PM | 4/19/2018 133 seconds | 2 News at 10PM on Dayton's CW | Gas prices are already climbing and are expected to get worse as the summer travel season approaches. The National average has increased more than 20 cents in the last month and consumers are again feeling the pain at the pump. Michael Whatley with the Consumer Energy Alliance says oil inventories are lower than a year ago because of decisions made in other countries. Russia and OPEC cut an agreement to cut back on production in order to drive price up. Average Americans will likely spend and extra $200 filling up this summer compared to a year ago.   |

| 26.1 Economy | 7AM  | 5/21/2018 | 95 seconds  | 2 News Today on Dayton's CW   | The summer vacation season is set to blast off this long Memorial Day Holiday weekend. Not even gas prices 50 cents higher than last year are going to prevent a near record number of Americans from getting a jump on summer travel. A strong economy and higher consumer confidence is expected to drive more Americans to take more vacations all summer, but not necessarily long vacations. Travel Expert Jeanenne Tornatore says 3 to 5 day trips versus the 7 to 14 day trip that used to be very popular. As for flying, T-S-A's expectation of record travel between Memorial and Labor Day has it adding a thousand new security officers before the peak summer travel begins.   |
| 26.1 Economy | 10PM | 6/12/2018 | 100 seconds | 2 News at 10PM on Dayton's CW | A new study is out on the benefits of higher education for students, taxpayers and the state. It's also putting pressure on the state lawmakers to make higher education more of a priority. Roughly 42 billion dollars in income is added to the State's economy as a result of higher education annually and yet Ohio still lags behind in funding per student. When it comes to higher education in Ohio, a new study shows that every dollar spent will turn into a 13.7% rate of return in earnings for students and an 8.6% return for tax payers. Right now in Ohio only 47% of Ohioans have a degree and more than a million new degree holders are necessary to keep the state competitive. The problem is Ohio lawmakers invest more than 15 hundred dollars per student less than the average state and school officials hope this study will convince lawmakers that more investment will be a good thing. |

| 26.1 Politics | 10PM | 4/26/2018 90 seconds  | 2 News at 10PM on Dayton's CW Sherrrod Brown is calling on Mick Mulvaney to step down from his position. This after accusations of what Senator Brown is calling "Pay to Play" politics. The Interm Head of the Comsumer Financial Protection Bureau Mick Mulvaney said while he was a Congressman he did not meet with Lobbyists unless they contributed to his campaign, Senator Brown says Pay to Play is unacceptable. Former head fo the C-F-P-B Rich Cordray tweeted this in response "Mulvaney and his squatter leadership at C-F-P-B are a direct threat to clean and honest Government.  |
| 26.1 Politics | 7AM  | 5/24/2018 100 seconds | 2 News Today on Dayton's CW Today in Washington, a meeting to review top secret information and the President has a new name for his claims that the F-B-I infiltrated his campaign. "we're calling it Spygate." President Trump claims, without proof, that the FBI planted a spy inside his campaign. General Michael Hayden, Former NSA Director "what we are seeing here I think is a broadly political move to undercut preemptively what he fears will be the findings of the Mueller investigation. A longtime FBI informant did talk to three Trump Campaign Aids to find out if Russia was influencing the election. Only two Republicans were invited to see the information. Under pressuer The White House agreed to include Democrats in a second briefing. Rep. Adam Schiff (D-CA) House Intelligence Committee expects them to honor their word, but we are hearing conflicting things from the White House. Today's top secret briefings are expected to prove whether the FBI was legitimately investigating Russia or playing politics. |

A Republican lawmaker is looking at changing how he and his colleagues are paid, at the Statehouse. The idea is simple, if the people of Ohio are doing better financially then lawmakers make more money, and when they are not, the lawmakers bring home less. After weeks of relative inactivity on passing bills and absence from the Capitol Representative John Becker has introduced what he calls the A.W.F.U.L. Bill, Average Wage Fully Uniform Law, it would adjust how lawmakers are paid. Becker says "that number is not dramatically different from what we are currently getting paid. It's a 10 thousand dollar cut for most of us. The idea is that it would cut spending for the state which is a good thing; it ties the salaries to an index so we no longer have this political issue about wanting to raise our salaries." The bill has it's share of supporters and opponents at the Statehouse. Rep.Becker says the bill is not likely to pass this year, but he hopes to get it into the State operating budget next year.

| 26.1 Health/Healthcare | 10PM | 4/4/2018 | 120 seconds | 2 News at 10PM on Dayton's CW | An estimated 2.5 million people in the U.S suffer from Epilepsy, but new technology could help people who suffer from chronic seizures. With one look, you'd never guess what 25-year-old Aimee Buckley has been through. She was diagnosed with Epilepsy when she was eight years old. Seizures became routine. She had to give up driving. It was Buckley's reality. If she seized at school she would usually stay at school. She tried everything! Medications made her sick and brain surgery did nothing. Finally Dr. Tawnya Constantino offered a new treatment, an implantable device called RNS or Responsive Neuro Stimulation. The device was surgically implanted in her skull two years ago this month. Since then she is proud to say she's been almost seizure free and can now drive again. She also works as an Elementary School Teaching Aide. |

The Kasich Administration continues its effort to crack down on opiate prescribing in Ohio. The Administration says the new rules they are proposing will not take anyone's pain medicine away, but some professionals say the rules may have unintended consequences that do just that. Unlike previous rules that limited the amount of pills prescribed for acute, or short term, pain, the rules released today for chronic and long term pain set up checkpoints. The checkpoints are based on the potency of the pain killer prescribed at lower levels. The prescribing physician will have to re-evaluate the patient's underlying condition and look for signs of prescription misuse, and the highest dosage levels an additional consultation with a pain management specialist will be required. But some medical professionals like Amy, she's a Nurse Practitioner says some clinicians are becoming hesitant when it comes to prescribing opiates at all.

| 26.1 Health/Healthcare | 10PM | 6/6/2018 90 seconds  | 2 News at 10PM on Dayton's CW | Today President Trump signed the Mission Act into law. The bi-partisan legislation aims to expand access to healthcare for our veterans. President Trump says no one who fights for our country should have to fight for their lives when they come home and that the Mission Act will make sure veterans have access to the healthcare they need. President Trump said, it's less expensive for us. It works out much better. It's immediate care. That's what we're doing. Acting VA Secretary Peter O'Rourke says it's a step in the right direction. Critics worry the Mission Act opens the door to privatize the VA but O'Rourke disagrees. Veterans want a choice of health care options, we serve hundreds of veterans every day. That's not going to change. Now that the Mission Act is law, the next step is finding the money to pay for it. |
| 26.1 Environment       | 7AM  | 4/16/2018 95 seconds | 2 News Today on Dayton's CW   | Officially it's spring but in some parts of the country it may as well be winter. A monster blizzard pounded parts of Wisconsin this weekend. Meanwhile in Minnesota more than a foot of snow fell in the Twin Cities and local forecasters say this will be among the area's strongest snowstorms in history. In Jefferson Iowa crews repairing damage from 80 mile an hour winds. The gusts tore roofs off buildings and knocked over a garage. And there's at least one confirmed fatality in a tornado that struck Greensboro, North Carolina Sunday. In parts of Ohio and Michigan strong winds and heavy rain resulted in heavy flooding. Some residents were forced to evacuate after their homes were surrounded by water.   |

Eddison Hermond , a 39 year old veteran and National Guardsman was enjoying lunch in the historic downtown area when a flash flood turned Main Street into a torrent, he waded in to help. The water moved with such force the old stone Courthouse, two centuries old was no match . Kalli Harris broke down seeing the devastation left behind. The Downtown area is devastated and for some there is very little to come home to. Many businesses had just reopened after another catastrophic flood in 2016, at the time it was called a thousand year flood but two years later officials say this one is worse. Maryland has declared a State of Emergency to help families recover from the devastation. |
| 26.1 Environment | 10PM | 5/28/2018 | 130 seconds |  | 2 News at 10PM on Dayton's CW |  |  |  |  |  |  |  | If you thought running was a bunch of rubbish, you're on the right track. The Noda Run Club in Charlotte is spending this hot evening running and picking up garbage along the way. It is what they call plogging, a fitness trend that's the best thing to come from Sweden since ABBA and IKEA, a combination of jogging and Swedish words that translate to "pick up." It is something you can just go out and do on your own in your own neighborhood. A good plogging accessory, heavy duty gloves to protect your hands incase you come across broken glass, rust or nails. Prepare for a down and dirty workout, carrying a bag that gets heavier as you go and you're squatting down as you run, it's like doing 300 sit-ups. There are several apps that allow users to track their plogging activity and researchers found that a half hour of jogging plus picking up trash will burn 288 calories. |  |
