The Importance of Discussing the Issues

Our nation's future depends on the youth of today. One top educator says getting students to discuss controversial issues now will make them better citizens later in life. Then, if you haven't changed your credit cards in years, you might be missing out on some valuable benefits.

Discussing Controversial Issues

Our nation's political climate is more polarized than ever, and voter turnout among young people is abysmal. But Katy J. Harriger, PhD, Chair and Professor, Department of Politics and International Affairs at Wake Forest University led a study that found that learning to talk about controversial issues while in college can inspire young adults to be more engaged citizens even ten years later. She explained what the students were taught and how it could be applied to voters of any age.

Credit Card Rewards

25 million credit cardholders haven't changed their go-to credit card in at least ten years. Matt Schulz, Senior Industry Analyst at CreditCards.com said that people are missing many rewards because card issuers are hotly competing for new customers and giving big sign-up bonuses. He outlined some of the methods savvy consumers use to get the most out of their credit cards. He also explained why many consumers are reluctant to switch cards.

The Truth About Oil Changes

Today's cars no longer need to have their oil changed every 3,000 miles. Phil Reed, Senior Consumer Advice Editor at Edmunds.com talked about design improvements in recent years, and how drivers can decide when it really is time for an oil change. He talked about the positive effects of this rapidly advancing technology for both the environment and consumers' pocketbooks.

Are You Honest with Your Doctor

How honest are you with your doctor? Over half of patients in a recent study say they don't share key information with their physician. A research scientist says withholding those facts may be risky. Then, an expert says mothers in America who experienced sexual abuse in childhood may find the trauma affects them as parents.

Withholding Info from Your Doc

How honest are you with your doctor? Over half of patients in a recent study say they don't share key information with their physician. A research scientist says withholding those facts may be risky. Then, an expert says mothers in America who experienced sexual abuse in childhood may find the trauma affects them as parents.

Women Who Were Sexually Abused As Children

Teresa Gil, PhD, psychotherapist, author of Women Who Were Sexually Abused As Children: Mothering, Resilience and Protecting the Next Generation estimates that there are approximately 21 million mothers in America who experienced childhood sexual abuse. She discussed how that trauma may affect their own parenting. She talked about the value of strong mother-daughter relationships, spiritual beliefs, and therapy in coping.

Commercials for High Sugar Cereals

Advertising works; and Dr. Jennifer Emond's study found that kids who were exposed to TV ads for high-sugar cereals were more likely to subsequently eat the cereals they had seen advertised. She talked about the effect this may have on diet quality and childhood obesity, and offered suggestions to parents on how to maintain control of TV watching, particularly for small children.

An Unusual Path to Addiction

Imagine having your wisdom teeth extracted by a dentist. Not exactly a pleasant thought. But what if that procedure led you to an opiate addiction? Living a life and running a household takes time and labor. But one expert says we can do much better by doing less.

Wisdom Teeth and Opioid Addiction

Each year, thousands of teenagers and young adults are prescribed opioids for pain relief after having their wisdom teeth removed Alan Schroeder, MD, Clinical Professor of Pediatrics at the Stanford University School of Medicine led a study that found almost 6 percent of these patients were diagnosed with opioid abuse during the 12 months after the initial prescription. He discussed alternate options for pain relief. He said wisdom tooth extraction is by far the most common surgical procedure for adolescents and young adults but there is very little research that supports the widespread use of the procedure.

Do Less and Live More

Every day an unseen form of labor creeps into our lives—the kind of secretarial and managerial work necessary to run a life and a household. Elizabeth Emens, PhD, Isidor and Seville Sulzbacher Professor of Law at Columbia Law School, author of Life Admin: How I Learned to Do Less, Do Better, and Live More discussed how this labor is created, how it affects our lives, and how we might avoid, reduce, and redistribute admin whenever possible—as individuals and as a society.

Immigrants and STEM

Marcos A. Rangel, PhD, Applied Micro economist, Assistant Professor in the Sanford School of Public Policy Medicine at Duke University led a study that found that immigrant children are nearly twice as likely to study and pursue careers in STEM fields (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) as children born in the US. He believes that because immigrant students are less comfortable communicating in English than their native-born peers, they gravitate toward subjects where the language barrier is less of an impediment.

Breast Cancer Preventive Care

Research shows African-American women at high risk for breast cancer do less than white women when it comes to getting preventative care. What can be done to encourage this potentially lifesaving care among all women? Then- want to lose your bad habits and get some good ones? A performance expert says the best way is to make tiny changes.

Women's Preventative Care

Tasleem Padamsee, PhD, Assistant Professor of Health Services Management and Policy at Ohio State University. Dr. Padamsee led a study that found that African-American women at high risk of breast cancer are less likely than white women to pursue potentially life-saving preventative care. She talked about the most common preventative steps that at-risk patients can take. She also encouraged patients to talk to their physicians about cancer risk concerns.

Tiny Changes for Better Habits

James Clear, author of Atomic Habits: Tiny Changes, Remarkable Results offered strategies aimed at forming good habits, breaking bad ones, and mastering the tiny behaviors that lead to extraordinary results. He explained how to find the underlying causes of bad habits and why that can help to correct them. He offered examples of ways to redesign an environment to break bad habits.

Marijuana and the Brain

It's well known that marijuana use has a negative impact on brain function and memory. Dr. Neil Dawson's research team examined what specific areas of the brain are affected by long term use, for both recreational users and patients who use the drug to combat epilepsy, multiple sclerosis and chronic pain. He said long term use of the drug impairs the ability of brain regions involved in learning and memory to communicate with each other. Dr. Dawson is a Lecturer in Biomedicine at Lancaster University, Lancaster, United Kingdom.

Ending Work Addiction

In today's high stress world, how can we reliably have good health, happiness and peace of mind? An expert shares what he discovered, and the benefits are many- helping let go of anxiety and feel good every day. Then, recent research reveals a consistent factor in nearly a third of motor vehicle deaths, yet it gets little attention as a safety issue.

Turn Off Your Job and Turn On Your Life

It is common knowledge that good health and happiness depends on having proper balance between our professional and private lives. Bryan E. Robinson, PhD, psychotherapist, Professor Emeritus at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, author of #Chill: Turn Off Your Job and Turn On Your Life explained how ending the cycle of work addiction can be achieved by reframing priorities and cultivating mindfulness in our daily lives. He outlined the benefits of mediation to let go of anxiety and focus on the moment.

Speeding & Vehicle Safety

Jonathan Adkins, Executive Director of the Governors Highway Safety Association discussed a recent report from his organization that highlighted excessive vehicle speed as a persistent factor in nearly one-third of all motor vehicle-related fatalities. He believes that speeding is not given enough attention as a traffic safety issue and is widely deemed culturally acceptable by the motoring public. He outlined several public policy measures that he believes would help to reduce speeding.

The 8-Minute Organizer

Nearly everyone can use some help in getting organized. Regina Leeds, professional organizer, author of The 8-Minute Organizer talked about the reasons that keeping order in our lives and possessions is so difficult. She offered small, step-by-step suggestions on how determine goals to get organized, and how to create positive routines for the long-term.

Tax Time Scams

As Americans get ready preparing their tax returns, criminals are busy too, looking for ways to scam tax payers out of their money. A security expert shares what you can do. Then, a psychologist says women at work are treated worse by other women, than by men.

Common Tax Fraud Schemes

Americans are preparing to file their taxes, and fraudsters are getting ready to target taxpayers with new scams. Darrell Laffoon, Chief Technology Officer of security firms EZShield + IdentityForce outlined some of the most common schemes used to commit tax fraud and tax-related identity theft. He noted that the IRS never uses email to contact taxpayers or others filing tax returns. He explained what to do if you are targeted.

Women Incivility in the Workplace

Nancy O'Reilly, PsyD, licensed psychologist, author of In This Together: How Successful Women Support Each Other in Work and Life explained why women experience more rudeness and incivility from other women in the workplace than they do from men. She said women have not been trained to lead as women. She offered suggestions for women to offer support to each other at work, rather than competing. She explained why men should also be concerned about this trend.

References on Resumes

Cheryl Hyatt co-founder of Hyatt-Fennell Executive Search talked about the importance of references in job searches. She said they are an integral part of an application package. She offered suggestions to customize references for specific jobs and how to choose the best people as references.

Timing is Everything

What's the very best day to launch a new project or take on a big task? Timing is everything. Research reveals key dates when your odds of doing well are higher. Then, acceptance of marijuana use among Americans has skyrocketed in recent years. A recent study explains the changing attitudes towards the drugs.

The Scientific Secrets of Perfect Timing

Daniel Pink, author of When: The Scientific Secrets of Perfect Timing explained how timing affects everything — from work to home to school — and that it's a science, not an art or luck. He outlined research that found that 86 specific days each year are the optimal days to start a project or to get a fresh start. He offered several examples of how productivity, personal goals and even medical procedures are significantly affected by the timing of the event.

Changing Views on Marijuana

Americans' views about marijuana have drastically changed in a relatively short period of time. Amy Adamczyk, PhD, Professor of Sociology and Criminal Justice, City University of New York led a study that found that support for legalization began to increase shortly after the news media began to frame marijuana as a medical issue, rather than as a criminal or drug abuse issue. She believes that nationwide legalization of marijuana is likely in coming years.

Sleep and Heart Disease

It has been proven that a lack of enough sleep or poor quality of sleep is a major factor in heart disease. Michael Twery, PhD, Director of the National Center on Sleep Disorders Research at the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, part of the National Institutes of Health discussed a recent NIH study that examined the biological reasons behind it. He said the research may lead to improved treatments for both sleep disorders and heart disease.

Uncle Sam and Your Retirement

If you or someone you know is planning for retirement, those IRA or 401K savings may not be worth as much as expected. Uncle Sam is going to take a chunk of it. Then, changing your lifestyle can have dramatic effects on your health. It can reverse chronic disease and slow down aging, according to a renowned medical doctor.

Taxes on Retirement Savings

Many Americans will be shocked once they reach retirement, to find that their IRA or 401(k) is not worth nearly as much as they think. Alicia Munnell, PhD, economist, Director of the Center for Retirement Research at Boston College, Peter F. Drucker Professor of Management Sciences at Boston College's Carroll School of Management said many upper income retirees will be hit with 25-32% federal tax bills on the funds they saved for retirement, and possibly even more from state taxes. She noted that those who save in tax-deferred retirement plans still come out ahead, even after paying taxes on the withdrawals.

Lifestyle Changes

Dean Ornish M.D., founder and President of the nonprofit Preventive Medicine Research Institute, Clinical Professor of Medicine at the University of California, San Francisco, author of "Undo It!: How Simple Lifestyle Changes Can Reverse Most Chronic Diseases" Dr. Ornish is a well-known advocate for using diet and lifestyle changes to treat and prevent heart disease. He outlined four changes in lifestyle that he believes can stop the progression and even reverse many chronic diseases. He said it's surprising how rapidly our bodies can begin to heal after making simple lifestyle changes.

Preventing Burglaries

Alan Young, home security expert, CEO of Armor Concepts, a New Jersey-based security firm talked about the basic steps that the average homeowner can take to prevent home intrusions or burglaries. He said the most common way that criminals enter a house is by simply breaking through a door, rather than picking locks or breaking windows. He also discussed the misunderstood role that alarm systems play in home security.

The Ripple Effect of Student Loan Debt

Student loan debt doesn't just take a financial toll. Research shows a majority of Millennials are postponing milestones, like marriage, buying a home or car, and more. Then, could the prescription drugs you use be counterfeit? Phony pharmaceuticals are a real problem. What's being done about it?

The Financial Influence of Student Loan Payments

73% of Millennials (ages 23-38) who have student loan debt have delayed at least one major life or financial milestone as a result, according to a new Bankrate.com report. Mark Hamrick, Senior Economic Analyst for Bankrate.com said the issue has influenced large percentages of Americans of all ages, affecting decisions such as buying a home or car, saving for retirement, having children and getting married.

Phony Pharmaceuticals

Phony prescription drugs are big business and can be life-threatening to consumers. David Closs, PhD, Professor of Supply Chain Management in the Eli Broad College of Business at Michigan State University discussed a recent change in federal regulations that requires companies to track prescription drugs from their raw materials stage to their delivery to pharmacies. He explained how copycat drugs sometimes make their way into the system and what consumers need to know.

Teens and Cell Phone Radiation

Martin Röösl, PhD, Associate Professor, Head of Environmental Exposures and Health at Swiss Tropical and Public Health Institute in Basel, Switzerland led a study that suggests that radiation from phones can harm a teenager's memory. He found that the problem occurs when a phone is held next to a child's head for a phone call. His team even found different effects, depending on whether the phone was used on the right or left side of the head. He said Bluetooth devices can help, and those children's phone calls should be short and infrequent.

Saving Money on Air Travel

Many Americans are planning to travel this year. We've got money saving trips for airline travel based on research into airline pricing strategies. Then, how much money will you need for retirement? A lot depends on when you choose to retire. An expert shares advice on what you need to fund your golden years.

Finding the Lowest Airfare

Airlines' pricing strategies have changed in significant ways in the past several years and ticket prices can literally change by the minute. Scott McCartney, Travel Editor and author/creator of the weekly Middle Seat column on airlines and travel for The Wall Street Journal discussed the best days to find the lowest prices, how far ahead to buy and other money-saving travel tips for airline travel.

Saving for Retirement

Arielle O'Shea, investing and retirement specialist for Nerdwallet.com said the average American must live on their retirement savings for 23 years. She explained how consumers can determine how much money they may need in retirement. She outlined four strategies to find extra income and control expenses in retirement. She recommends using a fee-only financial planner.

Late Night Workouts

Hitting the gym at night won't keep you tossing and turning all night, contrary to popular belief. Penelope Larsen, researcher and PhD candidate, School of Exercise Science, Sport & Health, Charles Sturt University, Bathurst, New South Wales, Australia led a recent study that found that evening high-intensity cycling didn't ruin sleep and may even reduce appetite. She said study participants also seemed to have more energy when exercise occurred later in the day, which could also debunk the belief that working out first thing in the morning is the optimal time.

How to Survive a Heart attack

Few things are scarier than a heart attack. It can mean sudden death. But research by a top cardiologist reveals a routine habit we can follow that will boost our chances of survival. Then, innovative planning and design can make American cities much more livable. We'll talk to an urban design expert to get the story.

Surviving a Heart Attack

Michael J. Blaha, MD, MPH Preventive Cardiologist, Director of Clinical Research at the Ciccarone Center for the Prevention of Heart Disease at Johns Hopkins Hospital recently led a study that suggests that people who exercise habitually are more likely to survive their first heart attack. He discussed the wide-ranging benefits of exercise and how much is enough. He said even older people can get in shape and get the heart-protective benefits of physical activity. He also offered ideas for how to get started.

Innovating City Design

B>Janette Sadik-Khan, transportation and urban transformation expert, former transportation commissioner of New York City, and author of Streetfight: Handbook for an Urban Revolution discussed the importance of incorporating innovative transportation plans into modern urban environments. She explained how cities can add protected bike paths, improve crosswalk space, and provide visual cues to reduce speeding. She said redesigning streets can reduce congestion and increase foot traffic, which often improves the bottom line of local businesses.

The Importance of STEM

Jason R. Wiles, PhD, Associate Professor, Biology, Syracuse University led a study that found that minority college students learn many science, technology, engineering, and mathematics lessons more effectively when they are taught by a recent minority student, rather than a traditional classroom instructor. He explained why STEM subjects are so important for today's students and the possible reasons why this alternative method of teaching works so well.

An Arresting Statistic

Americans born after the early 90's have a less than stellar claim to fame- they're much more likely to be arrested than those that are older. And those arrests and convictions can have life-long consequences. Then, veterans are being warned of a coming public health crisis- recent research shows higher rates of heart disease among vets.;

Young People Getting Arrested

James P. Smith, PhD, Distinguished Chair in Labor Markets and Demographic Studies at the RAND Corporation, a nonprofit research organization led a study that found that Americans under the age of 26 are much more likely to be arrested than Americans born in previous decades. He noted that the increase occurred most rapidly among white Americans and women. He said that the study also found connections between the rising rate of arrests/convictions and lower probabilities of being married, fewer weeks worked lower hourly wages and lower family incomes during Americans' adulthood.

A Health Crisis for Veterans

Ramon Hinojosa, PhD, Assistant Professor in the Department of Sociology at the University of Central Florida warned of a coming public health crisis for veterans. He led a study that found that veterans are more likely to have heart disease at a younger age than nonveterans. He discussed the possible differences between vets who served in Iraq and Afghanistan compared to those who served in previous conflicts. He offered advice for veterans who may have cause for concern.

The benefits of Urban Landscaping

Trees play a surprisingly big role in keeping America's cities and towns cool. Carly Ziter, PhD, Assistant Professor in the Biology Department at Concordia University in Montrea shared the results of her study that found that the right amount of tree cover can lower summer daytime temperatures by as much as 10 degrees Fahrenheit. She said the effect is quite noticeable from neighborhood to neighborhood, even down to the scale of a single city block. She stressed the importance of urban landscaping and development in making neighborhoods more livable in the future.
