Cassel took time to define social injustice and to provide a brief world-wide history and national history of slavery of every nationality. In regard to the current violence in our nation being perpetrated in the name of social injustice, Cassel condemned the committing of crimes as a means of somehow gaining justice saying that riots, assaults, looting, theft, and destruction of property are wrong. The voice of reason and right seems to be missing from the media who seem to be inciting this violence; so, Cassel contrasted the two main responses to social injustice and used the life of Moses to illustrate the biblical truths we should be following. Moses' first response to the injustice he witnessed was to offer a violent response to a task master and to offer a political response to his fellow Jews. Neither violence nor politics can fix social injustice. After 40 years in exile, and after meeting God, Moses second response was redemption. He took the Word of God to Pharaoh

He was hired by the state as a well-qualified administrator of public health. After his salary and start date were set, a high-ranking administrator learned that the man was also a lay minister in his church, and preached on weekends. The administrator asked for copies of the man’s sermons and then fired him the next day. This case is now working its way through the courts. Civic Rights & Responsibilities	Blessed Hope Sunday	Preaching	0900	07/05	42 min	A message from Pastor Jerry Ross entitled, "A Bible Definition of Patriotism" was shared on the Blessed Hope Broadcast today. In this message Ross defined patriotism, explained what it looks like and warned about what President Washington called "the postures of pretended patriotism." In brief, a patriot's devotion can be measured by his love for his country, his support of his country, and his willingness to defend his country. Patriots will abide by God's laws, and share the gospel, and will live their patriotism day in and day out every day. 						sought to define liberty and to teach listeners how it is maintained or lost. Liberty is governed by conscience or else liberty will lead to lascivious living and self-indulgence. Liberty is not living according to the dictates of other people's opinions but according to the Law of God. That is why liberty is not the right to burn buildings, deface monuments, or throw bricks. Liberty is maintained by individual conscience as we exercise and cherish that liberty; if we will not lose it we must use; and if we abuse it we will abandon it. Liberty has a high cost: 1.5 million American men and women have died in wars since the start of the Revolution to protect our liberty; and no other nation in the world went to war against itself to secure liberty for all. The protection of liberty is a just cause, and we must champion that cause. As he did when David challenged Goliath, God can strike a big blow with a little stone. Be a champion of liberty and proclaim liberty throughout our land if you want to be part of protecting the liberty that is being threatened. The university instituted a rule that student groups were required to obtain a permit to engage other students in conversation; then the permits limited the individual students to an assigned space in which to hold their conversations. The effect of this policy was that the students in the Christian club were not allowed to engage fellow students in conversation unless the other students approached them first. He failed the 10 th grade three times and then dropped out of school when he was 17, turning to life as a drug dealer and joining a gang. His mother was saved and tried to share the gospel with Matthew, but he rejected it at first. After being sentenced to jail time for arson and going through drug withdraws, he entered the Teen Challenge program to get and stay clean. He was born again during that time. While these are excellent practices and reminders, beware of swallowing the lie that you should never shake hands again. We are creatures of contact and need touch. Her younger brother died in a tragic accident when she was still very young. The trauma of her abuse and the loss of her brother and the subsequent distance of her parents as they grieved caused her to act out in many different ways as a little girl and as a teenager until she finally began pouring all her energy and anger into sports, eventually choosing karate as her favorite sport, and excelling at it. The more she achieved in sports, the happier she thought she would be; but it was "never enough," she said. After graduating college and beauty school, Annette continued to excel in Karate, but her inner grief grew when she was assaulted by a long-time family friend. Deeply discouraged in heart and confused by why her sporting achievements didn't bring her the peace she craved, Annette's life finally changed when her older brother told her that he had received Christ as his Savior and that she could do the same. Citing stats from the N1H1 pandemic of 2009/2010 and the Spanish flu of 1918, Gomez drew the conclusion that the panic and government overreach is unwarranted since the USA and the world have been through worse pandemics than this one. Since the government and media are acting like this worse than AIDS, either there is more to this virus than we are being told, or there is an agenda of control being perpetrated on the American People. Gomez encouraged us to ask critical questions, to shun fearfulness, and to not “roll over” for unconstitutional mandates that strip our liberties.

In the 1970s, Keith was bring brought up with 7 siblings by a single mother, and was not well looked after. Lacking confidence, but wanting acceptance, Keith started using drugs early in high school, eventually becoming addicted to PCP by his Junior year and landing in jail a rehab program after a violent outburst in the principal's office. His self-hate led him to become hateful and morbid. Three near-death experiences did not shake him out of his drug habit, but he did hold down 3 jobs at once just to keep his mind busy. He was invited to church in 1980, and liked knowing that "Bible characters" just regular people like himself who were loved, changed, and used by God. It took three more years and a very bad drug "trip" to get him back to church and into a Bible before he realized his need for a Savior from his sin. He was saved in 1983 and found the help and hope he needed in Jesus. He went on to minister to addicts of all kinds, hoping to make a

He had dreams, but they kept evading him because of his rage and drug addiction which began when he was a little boy living with an abusive father who beat him, his siblings and mother. He took up boxing and by 14 was competing. Though he had promised himself he'd never ruin his life with drugs and alcohol the way he'd seen several of his family members do, he started using marijuana and became addicted to it. He was expelled from school at 16 yrs of age because of fighting, but then was accepted by the Marines. He was about to join the US Olympic boxing team when he was disciplined for fighting and drinking and lost that chance. After starting a boxing program on base and then being forced to stop it, he became disillusioned and left base unauthorized to go to Mexico and stay high for days. He was kicked out

Angry and disillusioned, he became a hermit in the woods, doing drugs all the time until his uncle reached out to help him return to society, but then tragically died. The loss hit Bryan hard and fueled his rage until he went to trial for beating a man that he thought was deserving of it. He was sentenced to prison, and before he left to start serving his time, he entered a counseling program called Teen Challenge where he faced his childhood abuse and his bad choices since that time. He received Christ as Savior, served his time, but struggled afterward until he finally forgave his father for being abusive. Now Bryan is a youth pastor and a USA Certified boxing trainer.

						because of rioting anarchists in recent months. Gomez said that rules reveal rebels, and that is what we see in the rioters. With a biblical understanding of authority, and with the application of those principles, life becomes peaceful and prosperous; and this works on every level from the home, to the job, to the nation. In brief, whether your position in any given situation is in authority or under authority, both positions are accountable to God. In both positions, you are an example to others who will follow in your footsteps. Authority comes with responsibility, liability, accountability, loyalty (as in being loyal to whomever put you in authority), and liberty (when you serve in your position humbly you'll have more liberty and be able to extend more liberty). Social & Cultural Change	Blessed Hope Sunday	Preaching	0900	08/30	43 min	Pastor Jerry Ross of Blessed Hope Baptist Church in Jasonville, IN shared a message broadcast on WYTJ Radio about Christianity in the USA. He asked the question, “Was America founded as a Christian nation” and answered that question citing documents, letters, and events from colonial to present days. In brief, Ross pointed out that the USA was founded by Christian men who were influenced by the Great Awakening and who, therefore, secured in the Constitution the rights to free speech, peaceful assembly, and worship. Those founders, knowing that spiritual belief is an individual decision that cannot be dictated by others, did not establish a state church, but they established a Constitution that would allow Christianity to thrive. Ross also rehearsed the attacks on our freedoms of worship, especially since the 1960s; and Then the S states' preambles were read with special attention and praise given to the governor of South Dakota (Governor Nome) who has not tried to trample her constituents' freedoms during the pandemic. Trieber went on to read the preambles for the states beginning with the letters T, V, and W. Each of the 50 states acknowledged God as ruler in their preambles and constitutions when they were founded. Trieber noted the difference now, and how ungodly some of these states are now. Posing the question, "how do we get them back to God," Trieber answered that the change begins with and in God's people, the Christians in this nation. We must confess our sins to God and live righteously before God.

Told in 2 parts (part 1 on 09/12 and 13, part 2 on 12/19 and 20), this was the true story of Amy Blackwell, the author of the book "The Testimony I Never Wanted." Amy's father was verbally abusive to her and to her mother, and Amy grew up learning to adapt to that abuse by going out of her way to please her dad who never was pleased. It became her lifelong habit to seek positive attention from men, and this habit lead her through a string of bad marriages and difficult situations, including nearly aborting her third child and being suckered out of a great deal of money from her sixth husband who was a fraud. After escaping from Frank, Amy sought counseling and found Biblical help for her issues with people pleasing and bad choices. She

(It should be noted that the sermon was preached from Gomez's pulpit at the beginning of the crisis months ago.) Speaking from a scriptural example of one of the kings and the nation of Israel, Gomez likened their fear, doubt, and solution when faced with an enemy attack to our situation facing the enemy of a virus. Gomez showed that what made the Israelites victorious then is what will make us victorious now. In brief, we must 1) keep our eyes on the Lord and not give up on Him 2) Realize that the battle is the Lord's and trust His power and wisdom 3) Stand still in our hearts since we can't leave our homes; that is, be prayerful instead of too busy working and too distracted by devices so that we can hear God speak 4) Actually sing and praise the Lord as we see that example in the Bible, and how God delivered His children when they sang instead of grumbling.
