

As a station that serves as a broadcast service of the University of Rhode Island to the surrounding area, there are two distinct local communities to be served: the campus community (including the students, faculty, administration, and staff of the University) and the surrounding community at large. WRIU endeavors to provide programming, both entertainment and issue oriented, that provides the best service to both of these communities.

Issues

Issues that were of interest to members of our community this quarter include:

- Alternative Media Perspectives & Criticism
- The Environment/Sustainability/Climate
- Global Voices
- Latino Voices
- Science & Technology
- The Arts
- Voices of the Cape Verdean Diaspora
- Voices of the Disabled Community
- Voices of the LGBTQ Community
- Women's Voices

Programs

Alternative/Non-Mainstream Media Perspectives & Criticism

As a non-commercial broadcaster, the community expects us to present alternative views on the issues of the day, distinctive from those of mainstream, commercial media outlets.

Show like “CounterSpin” by Fairness and Accuracy In Reporting (which looks at recent events through media criticism, focusing on the shortcomings of mainstream news coverage), “Between The Lines Newsmagazine” (which examines news and issues that have been overlooked or underreported by the mainstream news media), and “The Shortwave Report” (which present news segments, in English, from international sources available via shortwave radio or the internet, that provide a glimpse at how the week's top stories were discussed elsewhere) provide other perspectives on recent news and help listeners discover alternatives themselves, as well as encouraging listeners to process mainstream coverage with a critical ear.

Other shows, like “Building Bridges,” “Global Research News Hour.” and “New World Notes” provide deeper context and analysis of recent news and relevant topics.

The Environment/Sustainability

Radio Deutsche Welle's “Living Planet” takes a global look at the environment and innovations related to adapting to environmental challenges.

“Sea Change Radio” with Alex Wise looks at the shift to social, environmental, and economic sustainability.

Global Voices

The voices of people from around the country and around the world are of interest to our listeners. Stories reflecting both the commonalities and differences of people and their struggles to find and adapt to their place in the world are explored on “Radio Curious” with Barry Vogel and “World In Progress” by Radio Deutsche Welle.

Latino Voices

“Latin Waves” with Sylvia Richardson looks at social movements and change within Latin America, as well as the ideas and activities of Latinos worldwide.

Science & Technology

“This Week @ NASA” provides an update on the recent activities and discoveries of NASA both in space and on Earth.

“Science Unscripted” produced by Radio Deutsche Welle, is a look at the latest in science in technology, and how it impacts society.

The Arts

The Arts, particularly arts in the local community, is extremely important to the Southern New England community, and especially to listeners of WRIU.

The most powerful way WRIU addresses this issue is by offering comprehensive event listings on many of its programs. In addition to sharing basic “calendar of events” information about upcoming concerts, screenings, exhibitions and more, these listings often include detailed information on the performers, venues and context of the events.

However the closure of local music venues and canceling of music festivals has all but eliminated the local music scene. Members of WRIU’s staff have dealt with this in two ways. First, by offering listings of online “virtual” concert events and second, multiple members of WRIU’s staff have teamed up to create a small outdoor concert series with limited, socially distanced physical seating that simulcasts live on WRIU, with proceeds benefiting charities to help the local arts community.

The station conducts regular interviews with local artists and venue owners which air at various times.

“Talkin’ ‘Bout My Generation” with Michael Duffy explores the creation of classic musical works through interviews with their creators and analysis of the material.

The role of women in the arts is the focus of “Voices of Women,” which airs for two hours every Saturday morning (9-11am). The program focuses on the contributions of women to every genre of music, and the rotating hosts ensure a variety of artists across many musical genres are explored.

Produced by Merging Arts Productions, “Spoiler Alert Radio” examines the craft of filmmaking from all of the creative and artistic aspects that go into making a film.

Voices of The Cape Verdean Diaspora

As home to one of the largest Cape Verdean populations in the world, our community is especially interested in news and information from and about Cape Verde and the larger Cape Verdean diaspora, as well as from the local Cape Verdean community. In addition to providing this, our “Cape Verdean Afro Beats” program (Saturdays, 2-4:30pm) explores the culture, arts and history of the global Cape Verdean community.

Voices Of The Disabled Community

The “Disbaility Visibility” project aims to amplify the voices and culture of the disabled community.

Focusing on inclusive education programs, “Inclusive Education Project” examines the challenges disabled students face in school, as well as disability rights.

Voices of the LGBTQ Community

“This Way Out” discusses news and issues about and of interest to the LGBT community and has also been a showcase for LGBT authors and performers.

Women's Voices

The all-women produced “WINGS: Women’s International News Gathering Service” weekly program features strong women’s voices and ideas from around the world.
