Race	Another View	2.1.13	12:06	52 min	Have you ever wondered what someone of a different race is thinking when they witness an injustice being done to someone who doesn't look like them? This Friday on Another View, author, Michael Wenger will share his very personal story as a Jewish man from New York City who married an African American woman from the segregated south. In his book, "My Black Family, My White Privilege" Wenger details his marriage, his growing black family and his work promoting racial justice during a time when there was widespread racial bias and injustice across the United States.
Health	Another View	2.22.13	12:06	52 min	The numbers tell the tale - according to the Centers for Disease Control, one in every four female deaths is from heart disease. Heart disease is the number one killer of African American and White women. And what's really frightening is that two-thirds of women who die suddenly of coronary heart disease have no previous symptoms. The good news is that there are lifestyle changes we can make to prevent heart disease. On the next Another View, we talk with cardiologist Keith Newby, MD about the risk factors, the symptoms, and the lifestyle changes we all can make to keep our hearts healthy. Plus, Lisa Godley brings us an in-depth interview
