

In the second quarter of 2023, reporters in KMUW's newsroom reported on stories about the community, economy, and diversity topics, as well as much more. One of the major trends right now is that workers in various industries are going on strike or otherwise lobbying for better working conditions and contracts, the largest of these examples being the machinist strike at Spirit. In diversity & inclusion reporting, there has been a lot of activity between recent trans rights legislation, Pride Month, and Juneteenth. Having a herd of goats doing some weeding in Wichita has captured the public's imagination. The rollout of a broadband expansion project has captured the state's attention. And as always we cover what is of note around the entire state via our partnership with the Kansas News Service. KMUW coverage continues to extend from radio airwaves to the web using multiple platforms, which now includes a daily local news podcast called Wichita's Early Edition. Our news team continues to be supplemented by Wichita State interns to continue informing the community while helping to educate tomorrow's journalists...and when the summer began the station also welcomed our latest Korva Coleman Diversity in Journalism intern, Tadeo Ruiz.

KMUW enables the community to access information about timely subject matter in a variety of ways. We continue to hold regular virtual or live Engage ICT civic engagement events, and KMUW has expanded th efforts of the Engage ICT Community Action Leaders to both inform our engagement efforts as well as help inspire our community to make a difference. KMUW continues to cover topics that our community needs to know about, and the station fosters dialogue with a variety of voices. Our projects, as well as one-on-one conversations, provide staff with input on topics relevant to Wichitans in order to best serve them.
