

In the final quarter of 2023, reporters in KMUW's newsroom reported on stories about the recent local elections, Wichita community, economy, and diversity. Government/election coverage was a primary focus this quarter, as Wichita had a mayoral race as well as numerous city council and school board races. The news team also reported on nationwide issues taking a toll on Kansans, including those affected by the Israel-Hamas War. Quarter four included the cold weather and holiday season, so reporters also covered the charities and services organizing donations to the homeless and unhoused community. KMUW's daily podcast, Wichita's Early Edition, continues each weekday, offering a larger audience access to KMUW's local and regional reporting.

KMUW's engagement efforts included monthly book discussions, an adult community spelling bee, and continuing partnerships with other Wichita community building organizations, including the Wichita Journalism Collaborative, Wichita Public Library, and Kansas Leadership Center. KMUW continues to serve the Wichita and southcentral Kansas regions with factual and engaging reporting.
