Scott Hosek, owner of Spirals: Hot Dogs & More in Norman, found himself standing by the restaurant entrance on December 20, hoping for customers. Little did he know that a photo taken by a customer, Nick Chappell, and shared on social media would turn the tide. Chappell, an Oklahoma Army National Guard member in the area for work, stumbled upon Spirals through Google Maps with a co-worker during their weekly hot dog Wednesday routine. Sensing Hosek's eagerness for customers, Chappell decided to capture the wholesome moment; on Snapchat and shared it on Facebook with a positive recommendation for the restaurant. The Facebook post garnered over 2,000 shares, leading to an influx of over 70 guests at the diner during Chappell's subsequent visit. This is just one example of how social media can be used for good. That's today's Encouraging Word.

She doesn't accept a penny for her work, saying that the joy when an owner is reunited with

				their animal is all the reward she needs. 44-year-old Erica Hart got her first drone as a present from her father in April 2018. After practicing with it, her dad told Erica a dog was missing in their local area and suggested she use her drone to help find it. Erica called the owner of the missing dog—a schnauzer that went missing on a walk—and went out to help him find it, which she did. Word spread and Erica said it “snowballed” from there. She has since been on 330 dog rescue missions with her drone. “I don’t just help find dogs though, I have found cats, emus, cows and helped mountain rescue locate missing people,” said Erica. “It is in my nature to help out.” She estimated she’s been through 30 drones since she started out and reiterated that the human element of the work is the most important for her.

4	L.B. Lyon shares an encouraging or positive news	96.9 KVMV An Encouraging Word	3-14-2024 8:40AM	60 Seconds	Gaia is a 9-year-old dog who lived with her owner in Dallas. When her owner fell very ill Gaia was confined to a lonely backyard. A neighbor, Lisa Kanarek, noticed this and offered to take Gaia for daily walks. When Gaia's owner passed, Lisa was asked if she would become the new caregiver for the dog. Without hesitation, Lisa accepted the responsibility, and Gaia officially moved into her new home. Lisa quickly discovered that Gaia had a calm and soothing presence, especially around children. Inspired by this realization, Lisa and Gaia embarked on a new adventure by enrolling in a pet therapy program. The duo has become a beacon of light for individuals facing difficult circumstances, providing companionship, warmth, and healing through their therapeutic visits. The once-lonely dog has found a new purpose in life, thanks to the kindness of a stranger who saw beyond the confines of a backyard. Gaia's story serves as a reminder that a single act of compassion can have a ripple effect, transforming not only the life of a furry friend but also bringing comfort and joy to those in need.

Officials at Liberty University told The Christian Post they have made efforts to ensure proper compliance with Title IX regulations following the school's unprecedented settlement with the federal government. The flagship Evangelical university in Lynchburg, Virginia, settled with the U.S. Department of Education, agreeing to pay $14 million related to violations of the Clery Act that requires colleges and universities receiving federal funding to report data of campus crime and report threats to students. The fine is the largest levied under the Clery Act, which was enacted in 1990. The Education Department, which initially threatened a $37.5 million fine, said it identified multiple cases in which on-campus crimes were misclassified or underreported. Federal officials also accused the university of failing to warn the community about gas leaks, bomb threats and individuals who have been credibly accused of repeated acts of sexual violence.
