Host LaTrynnda Cunningham Hollins and guest Prophetess Lucinda White discussed the problems that our young people are facing today. Prophetess Lucinda stated that their ministry is for the young people because children are her heart. The Prophetess started out as a young Christian at the age of twenty two and believes that what we are missing today is the passion that is needed to inspire and that Satan wants to steal the direction of young people. The Prophetess believes that our youths are being bullied, that they are under peer pressure and that Satan is trying to eradicate their hearts. The Prophetess states that parents and adults need to reach out to the youths and get them back to the altar. Parents with two or three jobs are missing that quality time and don't have time to talk to young people. It is time for parents to rise up and know that an intercession is needed between our youth and the world around them. Parents need to go before the Lord and seek God's face. An Intercession is needed in order to teach our young community that they do not need to seek validation through social media. The Prophetess states that we must let our young people know that they are fearfully and wonderfully made by God and therefore are perfect just the way they are. Parents and Youth Ministers need to be out speaking to young people. When you see a skill in a young person you need to be encouraging that youth, show that young person that there is a way to be better. Teach the young people to listen and follow instructions, as in Proverbs where we are told to "hear the instructions of the Father. Be humble." The Word of God says, "Before I formed you in the womb, I knew you." Young believers need to get under a ministry that is sound. Our young people need to get involved and begin to surround themselves with other believers. Our young adults need to ask God to send them friends that want to read the Bible and seek His face. Young people will not seek the Father the way grandparents did, until we teach them to trust in Him.

Host LaTrynnda Cunningham Hollins and guest Prophetess Lucinda White discussed the problems that come from lack of instruction and lack of knowledge of the Lord. Prophetess White states that we are triune beings with a spirit, soul, and body. The spirit, soul, and body need to be in alignment with one another. You are His temple, and the temple needs to be aligned with our spirit. When you give the body wrong food, you have to detox every now and then. You have to get the wastes out of your spirit and cleanse the spirit from toxic behavior. In order to be successful you must get rid of negative things. Cleanse the temple as the Word says "Know you not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit?" You easily neglect the temple, but God wants you to bring the body back into alignment. You need to learn to be disciplined as this is a part of your spiritual growth. You must get to the place of God. This generation has become too carnal and has forgotten that everything goes back to the power of prayer. There is a lot going on in the world, and the world has gotten away from prayer. Commit yourself to prayer for a season. Prayer and fasting go hand-in-hand. Prophetess Lucinda believes that it takes twenty one days to break a cycle, or a habit. The Prophetess encourages you to take your problems to the Lord and lay them at His feet. When you have a problem you may have to take it before the Lord through the power of fasting and prayer.

Host Pastor Joseph Johnson and guest Dr. Lugenia Johnson, with Metropolitan A.M.E. discussed the solution to problems by using the Helps Ministries of the church. You need to learn how to reach out and partner with other churches. Churches are much better together. Dr. Lugenia Johnson stated that they did not want to interfere with other ministries. Their church started its Helps Ministries because of the people, in the community, that would come in and ask the church for help. Dr. Lugenia’s church would assist the community by getting them the necessary information. Dr. Johnson believes that there is a time to do the kingdom’s work. The church has seen individuals who have mental issues or lose their jobs, or have substance abuse issues come into the church in need of food and/or with getting rid of the addiction. As a church Dr. Johnson’s states that they try not to let the food be the only thing that is given them. The church will talk to them to provide them with the comfort and support that they need. Dr. Johnson states that many of the individuals returned to join the church and become have become active members. The word eventually gets out to other individuals on the street and the church has been able to help more and more people. It is not about crossing denominational lines, it is about helping people. Dr. Johnson wants to be able to sit down with other pastors in order to come up with a plan to minister in the area. The church believes that if they ask for all of the gifts of God to come together and unite then the glory of God will increase. You are not here by accident. God found you to give gifts and to work with like-minded spirits. The vision will catch a hold to your heart to meet the needs of the community and nothing is impossible with God.

Host Lorenzo Martin and Amy Camp Recruiter & Licensing Specialist Alabama Mentor discussed the shortage of foster care parents. Mrs. Camp states that they recruit and train foster care parents to temporarily take in and support children who need them because their biological parents are not able to at that time; it could be from illness, incarceration or abuse. In the state of Alabama there are over 6,000 children in foster care and there are not enough homes. Perspective parents must take classes before being a foster parent. The foster parents are given 40 hours of training in ten weeks. The training can be hard work but with grace and patients they can be great foster parents. A child is held in a secure and loving environment until they can be returned to their biological home. You don’t have to be a specialist to be a foster parent. After completion of the class you will be prepared and trained for any situation. Many people have never worked with children who have been through abuse or trauma and the classes prepare you to help that child. The Approval process is regulated by DHR the Alabama minimum standard this includes background checks, home safety, medical transportation several other qualifications. You can only have one foster child in a home at a time unless they are siblings. There are kids in the foster program that have special needs and therefore are harder to place than other kids. There is a stipend to assist with the added expenses but the families must also be financially stable to foster the child. The foster parent and the biological parents are encouraged to interact thus allowing the child to see that you are all on the same team. This interaction between the parents also encourages the biological parents to get better so that their children can return home. Many of the children are assigned a counselor to help them through this difficult time. Ms. Camp discussed how each child is evaluated and the Alabama Mentor program designs a plan just for that child.

Host Lorenzo Martin talked to Amy Camp, Recruiter & Licensing Specialist Alabama Mentor about the number of children which are difficult to place. Our guest Amy Camp said, "At Alabama Mentor we have four types of children, therapeutic children, teenage mothers with infants, medically fragile and transitional living. The last two are the hardest to place, because of more extensive needs. We have foster care homes to teach teenage moms. We have foster homes equipped with medical equipment. Some of our children in transitional living have to be taught how to care for themselves before they age out of our system." Ms. Camp discussed how they train each foster care family to meet those specific needs. Host Lorenzo Martin and Amy Camp from Alabama Mentor discussed the children who are hard to place. There are four types of children, therapeutic, mother and infants, medically fragile and transitional living. The hardest is mothers and infants and medically fragile we are looking for people in the health care field who are already educated. A child in a wheelchair may need someone who is trained how to get them up and down maybe wheel chair access homes. The transitional living kids is the next hardest because they need help because they age out at 21 years old, we need people to train them how to live independently. The misconception that people have is that older children are a problem most people will accept the younger kids and not the older kids. Teenagers are more independent and self-sufficient to a point. Most believe that the child will be disrespectful and take over their house, maybe run away; we tell them that we are here with you every step of the way we have a 24 hours 7 days a week on-call hotline if there is a situation an you don't know what to do just call. The pre-service training will tell you everything you need. Another misconception some of our older may be age sixteen but acts like an 8 or 9 year old. Your instruction she is valuable because you are training them not to act like a smaller child but act older allowing them to be able to live independently in the future. There is a matching process the counselors will match the correct child to the family we try to make certain that they families have the same likes and dislikes. We look at all surrounding elements and then make a match, they even try to keep them in the same county making it convenient for biological visits. In regards to education the children are encouraged to go school graduate and home schooling is available for those who needed it. GED programs are available for those who need it, help them apply for jobs or colleges that is all part of the transitional learning programs. We have had parents that have had 30 to 40 kids and has aged out and still return home for holidays, the kids are loved and they appreciated the foster parents that took time to be there for them. Take time to talk to a representative and find out about Foster care.

Host LaTrynnda C. Hollins and LaQueena Wright, founder of Loving Thy Neighbor as Thy Love Thyself discussed having a street ministry reaching those unreached by other organizations. The scriptures says in Luke 10:27 "'Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength and with all your mind' and, 'Love your neighbor as yourself. LaQueena stated, "The Lord charged her to go forth and minister to the community through praise and worship." Their goal is to reach those unreached by others. They go into areas with high crime rate, prostitution, and drugs and share the love of Christ. They are always seeking good people to join their team and go with them to the parks and Love on the people. They are taught to love and respect one another with the God kinda love, which can only come from knowing Jesus. We go out with the garment of Praise, shifting the atmosphere through praise and worship, lifting the spirit of heavyness.

Pastor Joseph Johnson and Dr. Raoul Richardson, Senior Vice President Baheth Research & Development Laboratories LTD. Dr. Raoul his mission is predicated on Matthew 6:33 seek first the kingdom of God and all his Righteousness and all the other things will be added unto you. He want to recognize the development of enlightenment. Education coupled with enlightenment causes children to do great things. The goal is to enlighten the children of God through the sphere of His Kingdom. The genesis of how he came to be, regrettable is was the result of a failed experience within his marriage, he has two sons and finding himself separated from the process of being a father which was one of the most important jobs that he ever thought he would have, caused him to have concern not only about his two sons but the number of young men out there in the community that may have been fatherless as well. Understanding of the divine purpose God had for his life. Sometime our mistakes causes us to pursue other avenues and the mistake of the marriage caused the guest to set up and organization call "resource Genesis" Media management. The organization has a ministerial component to it which is called, "Vertical love ministries" the avenue to receive the Agape love. This led to the Mobile County School System to mentor requested a mentoring counseling program and through some success there, led to mentoring and counseling at the Strickland Youth center, under Judge Naman which was expanded to the male and female population. Which was later expanded into Advocacy because of his legal background, as outpatient rehabilitation center for those with drug abuse. There are many group focused on the problems. When dads are not around, young men and women stray. There was a study done on the intake of young men into Strickland Youth Center and we found that at risk youth was 95% African American and 5% white but now the demographics is 60% African American and 40% white. Which reflects the fact if I am not my brother's keeper what am I, because it is only a matter a time before what is happening at my neighbors, makes it way to my front door. In regards this concern has allowed ourselves to be separated on racial lines and when we must understand that it is not skin thing but a sin thing. If we walk with God then we want see things Hike the world see it, if we can get you on that level then we win. If the church wakes up and realize that the problem is not bad blacks or bad whites the core of the issue is sin. The church got to wake up because grace-ism trump racism every time.

Pastor Joseph Johnson and Dr. Raoul Richardson, Senior Vice President of Baheth Research & Development Laboratories LTD., discussed youth without direction. The giver of the gift is greater than the gift. Growing up without dads and were moved by God to make the children men and women of the most high God. We were moved by God that you were not only going to make babies but you are going to father your kids and develop the children to be men and women of the Most High God. You are going to use your life to enhance the body of Christ. The real problem with our youth. The real problem is fatherlessness and no fear. If you have a group of young men with guns and no fear. Having deduced my time on this earth and role and responsibility is to glorify God, one of the most important things. The mechanism he gave us to produce this fruit was through education, mentoring and counseling at risk, neglected and delinquent youth. First we must change the way they see themselves. Social media and all other media have glorified those things that separates the community through the haves and the have nots. Those people who constitutes the have nots wants what they have got. We must model the behavior we want to be not what we see. You must be the change. Young people don't have that representative to immolate, those who tried and made it. Your gift may open the door but your character will keep you there. Most dreams are driven by relationships, trust and communications all of these things are important to your accomplishments. Learn to be a part of the community and this goal can be reached through education, health care access, and financial literacy, housing and a good job. Dwell on connecting with your spirit feed yourself hope.

Stop the Madness is an anti-violence rally for the community, in its' twelfth year. Dr. Roberts began with a small church and has expanded to include several locations in the Mobile area. He never stopped keeping up with the community and stays involved. He stated that he is just a homeboy who got saved. Dr. Roberts says: 'I am just a boy from the neighborhood. You have to know what you are called to do'. If everyone wants to reach the affluent or the up and coming, no one is reaching the poor or the outcasts. I have always believed in doing all you can. Wherever you come from you shouldn't forget. At the Stop the Madness rallies we sight the problems and the solutions. I have children, relatives and friends in the community that need someone to be there as a voice of encouragement. David was a man on the run from society, and all the people who were in debt, and in distress found him in a cave and made him the captain of the host. Dr. Roberts has a heart for the needy people. Dr. Roberts has the ability to speak to the people on the street. They hold prayer vigils and reach out to tell people how to overcome the problems, and train young people to become leaders in the community. We need people to give answers and encouragement. After the rallies we continue to follow up with adult education programs, feeding, and clothing programs. The church should be God's hands in the community. The only place anyone will see Jesus is in us. It is vital that we come out of the church to reach people. We encourage churches to come out, on holidays or events like Joe Cain day, put up a tent, and reach out to the people walking by. The streets are already blocked off for the events, so come out and have church services in the tent. Each quarter we have leadership reconciliation meetings and evaluate how we are meeting the needs. We need everyone to get involved, and get plugged in to some of the ministries in your area. We are teaching a series on stewardship, the lifestyle of the believer. You might not have finances to give, but you can lend your time to ministries and organizations that are providing services to the community. We evangelize the masses, but disciples are made one at a time. The people on the streets need mentoring, and that requires one on one time. Most of the young men in our community are fatherless, so the teens are having to assert themselves at the age of 13 or 14, without the example of a father to teach them the right boundaries. The young men need our compassion so they can be ready to receive a father figure. We have been teaching doctrine, and religious tradition, and we have neglected the Word of God. So we have lost our ability to love. Now we see many teens being institutionalized, learning how to survive in jail, and when they come out, they do not know how to live on the outside. We are spending more money building prisons than building schools. We need more money on the front end, to prevent the teens from getting caught up in crime. Children are very creative, if we will invest in them they can find good things to do.

Jason Jones, founder and director of Jesus freaks disc golf, discussed how he loved disc golf, and started playing it with some guys at church in the community and I saw a need and jumped on it. The church ministry started because they loved God, people and disc golf. History of disc golf, because one of the reason was the talk about substance abuse. Disc golf kind of have a history of drug abuse. A lot of people play and go to the woods, and play it because they can get away from the public, cops, family members. They go out there and throw dis but it mainly a place to embrace their addiction. And a safe place from getting caught. This is kind of the histroy of disc golf it is kind of bad because that is not all disc golf is nowadays but it still has that histroy to it. Matter a fact when I first started playing I was ashamed to mentioned it because of "weren't you in church yesterday" that is just the history that it has. We are trying to come together not only us but other groups to build a better reputation for disc golf. To make it more known as a sport than just a get away. The goal was to change the stigma about disc golf , and who's playing how important is it to share the love of christ with people that you are meeting that are not christians yet? Sharing the love of christ is the most important thing whether we are playing disc golf or not. We go and play 18 holes of disc golf and have fun and don't tell somebody about christ then the whole event was a waste, the idea is that you are a christian whether you ar playing disc golf or not; no matter what you do if you can't represent Christ doing it then you may need to re-exam why you are doing it.

Tonisha said "We have to speak out for ourselves, we help bullies learn they can make it in life and they have someone in their corner. We teach them how to be true to themselves." The guests talked about how we can help the victims of bullies, because hurt people will hurt other people. Jordan said "We let them know they can learn who they are in Christ, and not be bound by their circumstances. The organization L.O.V.E.S.P.E.A.K.S stands for "Let our voices emerge while spiritually providing knowledge". They have internship programs for those who are willing to change.

Host Shundra Barnes Casey Jordan and Tonisha "Kassie" Houston from L.O.V.E.S.P.E.A.K.S talked about "Youth struggling with low self-esteem" The host and guests discussed how we have to counteract the pressures that social media is putting upon our youth by giving them better examples, better values. The youth are trying to keep up with the Joneses, and they think happiness or success is measured by what they have. This results in the low self-esteem, which can spiral down into drug or alcohol abuse, and gang activities. Jordan said "We know they need us to provide safe places for them to belong". The main factor is environment because they will conform to what is around them. Tonisha said "We do an all-girls summer camp with sessions to get to know them. We make sure they were able to turn any negative image about themselves into a positive. We have them write letters to their 'future' self, so they can measure how much they have grown."

Host LaTrynnda C. Hollins and guests Maurice Bonner, Program Coordinator and Francine Reese, Instructor, with ACS Ministries discussed how important literacy is today. Literacy affects everything, every part of your life. The job market is a need area. Social Media is being perfected and some still cannot read or write. You have to be able to read the application, but many of the young men are unable to ask for the assistance they need. Therefore they will lash out at each other. They will then begin to steal. Some of the individuals are in the program just to make it better for their families. Now I can help my children with their homework and read them a story at bedtime. The texting media uses broken words and you cannot use broken language on your college entrance exams. Most colleges require you to put at least three paragraphs of summary on why you want to attend that college. This effects the community as a whole, because there is a huge part of the community faking it. Social media has handicapped many of our children. St. John's Deliverance Temple started this because they wanted to educate the whole family. The young men who come in want to learn. Life happens, and sometimes Satan will attack. The attacks come in different ways, we need to introduce that person to Jesus. Monday through Friday from 6:00 to 8:00 pm we do an assessment test to see where they need to start. Once you take that first step then fear will go away. If their parent cannot read then the ball drops. If the child feels disgusted then we can lose them.

Host LaTrynnda Cunningham Hollins and guests Maurice Bonner, Program Coordinator and Francine Reese, Instructor, with ACS Ministries discussed the difficulties of getting a job without being able to read. The process begins with an application, you must follow instructions like what color of pen to use, put your last name first, etc. How can you get through the application process without knowing how to read? There are people who have gotten as far as management positions without knowing how to read. Many are getting caught and they cannot take it anymore. There are children who will act out in class because they are embarrassed to tell anyone that they cannot read. Then they get expelled from school. If they cannot get employment, then the cycle begins, stealing, robbery and imprisonment. There is a significant number of people unemployed because they couldn't read and they gave up on life. Reading affects your life greatly. The department of Education did a test to determine if a child has not reached the score, they predict that child will end up in prison, or continue on in school. It has been found out that these adolescents and teens were experiencing problems in the third or fourth grade. The ministry have seen adults seeking GED's with their spouses and their children. Some are coming out of the system, but we must keep them interested in reading for them to learn. We must get them to see it is slow, but they are making progress. Even after title one educators program that is still a problem 30 years later. It is irritating to see that the percentage is not decreasing or not being addressed. It is still a problem with young black males, but the issue is across the board among males. We must get them to see the love of God, the agape love which is able to transcend and develop within the person to produce a whole new person. There is power, strength, deliverance, hope and salvation all available in God's love. Words cannot express the joy of watching a person who is learning to read when they complete a whole sentence for the first time. They have joy in accomplishing this exercise on their own. The expression on their face becomes confidence, and in their eyes they are begging for more. There is a glow of hope as they go to the next level and accomplishing what they thought they could not do.

Host Pastor Joseph Johnson talked to Dr. Timothy L. Smith, President of University of Mobile about the body of Christ in and our youth. The Church is not just within the walls any more. We are committed to bringing young men and women to Christ. Our vision is that we are a Christ centered community, focused on traditional, liberal arts and professional programs. The cause of this will renew the minds academically and spiritually preparing them for their professional callings. We are here to bring young men and women to Christ. There are kids raised in the church but if not lead, will get pulled into college facilities without the same values. Higher education is important but never lose sight that education should not trump your relationships with the Lord. A Christian university for us should have four core values, (1) Christ centered (2) academically focused (3) student devoted and (4) distinctly driven; that means our views don't change and learning how to have the faith of Christ. We learn to process also the servanthood of Christ it is a process; it is not just earning a degree but preparing them for life. We teach students to not allow their calling to be interrupted by selfish desires. God does not want us to step away from academics He has always asked that we be a higher standard. We want the students to take what they are taught in chapel and apply it to their everyday life, and see how God is leading them and how it impacts their daily lives.

Host Pastor Joseph Johnson and Dr. Timothy L. Smith, President of the University of Mobile talked about "Lining up with what God says about the way we react to voting. We are at a place now with one of the most critical elections we have ever had, just like you bring Jesus to Church bring Jesus to the voting polls. Proverbs (3:6) says." If we will acknowledge him he will direct our path. To the frustrated Christian we need to think about our responsibility. When you think about Christian higher education, we have a responsibility to prepare the mind. One thing we have been most intentional about is how to prepare a student, not from the perspective of do this or do that but from the process of learning how to think, that's critical that we learn how to think. When you look at voting or some of issues compare. Look at the individuals and the situations and ask God words say is what we want to line up with. We do our best humanly to take our opinions out of the way, we do our best to take out our assumptions or our desires out of the way and see what God word say about the way we should interact with each other and most importantly with his creations. We look at voting and other issues what about your understanding to God's word. One of the aspects about being a student at University of Mobile is we spend time in God's word, we as humans may develop thoughts or processes or strategies that say move in this direction, All of those are good to consider but how are these being consider in relationship to God's word. That is exactly what we are trying to do; we believe that a well-equipped mind, theologically, academically, understand the world issues allows you to make a confident decision.

EDUCATION

News Reporter Heather Sells Reports: President Donald Trump wants to budget an extra $20 million for school choice but the big question is—does it work? CBN News decided to visit a state where, after years of trial and error, school choice has begun to make a real difference in the lives of students and their families. At 8 o'clock every morning, the K-8 students at Paideia Academics, a public charter school in South Phoenix, recite their mission statement and sing about their education. A few miles away, students at the Arizona School for the Arts, another public charter school, work intently on their ballet technique in preparation for an upcoming school recital. And, at the Espiritu Schools, students are tackling math and getting ready for their next community service project. Service is a major value for the school. Executive Director Adrian Ruiz says Espiritu is very intentional about encouraging and teaching students to give back. Charter schools are a big part of the choice landscape in Arizona. More than 500 serve students across the state. In the 1990's, Arizona lawmaker Lisa Graham Keegan sponsored the original charter school bill and went on to become the state superintendent of public instruction from 1995 to 2001. Arizona, she says, has always been open to new ideas. The state started with open enrollment which allows students to choose their public school regardless of their address. Next came tuition-free charter schools and other strategic educational choice tools. A state voucher-type program, known as Empowerment Scholarship Accounts, provide money for educational accounts for parents ranging from $4,000 - $30,000 a year. Its goal is to help students with disabilities and those in low-performing public or charter schools to pay for an alternative private education. Tax credits are also available for those who contribute to private school scholarships. It's all part of a mix, according to Keegan, that not only helps children and their families but teachers as well. Dr. Brian Winsor, the principal at Paideia, greets his students every morning by name and with a handshake as they run onto the playground. After previously working in the state's public schools, he loves the freedom of running a charter. While the State Board for Charter Schools grades its schools and can ultimately shut them down if they fail to meet academic standards, Winsor says he has a great deal of flexibility. He recently switched the school's math curriculum within a matter of months when data showed it wasn't working well. He can also hire and fire as needed. Joanna De'Shay chose Paideia for its philosophy of using moral principles to educate the whole child. It especially helps in a low-income area like South Phoenix she says. As a bonus, an on-site family resource center at the school links families in need with social services and counseling. De'Shay, a school board member, says parents who come and tour the school often cannot believe that it's tuition-free. Cynthia Moraga is an Espiritu parent who discovered the school after an intensive search to help her daughter who was struggling at her public school after suffering from a concussion. School choice made all the difference she says. Ultimately she chose Espiritu for its charter board "A" rating, attentiveness to her daughter and community service focus. Phoenix-based educational entrepreneur Jaime Martinez founded Schola Solutions to help parents like Moraga who are searching for the best school for their child. Accessibility is a downside of school choice that even Education Secretary Betsy VeVos, an ardent advocate for school choice, has noted. Martinez has developed a search engine to help parents explore and navigate their options. He believes that despite the current political climate, the timing is right for education reform. Martinez says that millennial parents are realizing that traditional educational models don't always work for their kids and are looking for and demanding options. In Arizona, after decades of work, school choice is on the rise. Keegan notes that in the last five years, 100,000 families have moved their children from low to high-performing schools. She credits a mix of educational options and the state's strategy of closing charter schools that don't perform and encouraging the ones that do to replicate themselves. In South Phoenix, the strategy has paid off. Keegan calls it a "golden corridor" – which in Arizona education circles means an area that was previously known for its under-performing schools – transformed into an area known for its high educational offerings. That kind of scenario, she says, is the goal and hope, of school choice.

Host Pastor Joseph Johnson and guest Dr. Lugenia Johnson, with Metropolitan A.M.E. discussed the problems of hunger in our communities. We have a community lunch at the church once a week, and we also share the Word. The meals are planned to do outreach to the community. Class groups meet during the month. During the summer we had children to come and eat who was food insecure. Many people are experiencing the time whether due to economics or health. In America, one in seven are food insecure, in the Gulf Coast area it is one in five. Our plans are to partner with the Food Banks, to give them groceries to go home with. The church is not making them a yearly event but a weekly event to receive a blessing. We are reluctant to approach individuals because they are homeless or etc. What we have found is that these are loving individuals who are coming because of a need, not to harm us. We also offer them the opportunity to receive Jesus as their savior. We help provide clothing for those who had an extreme need. We challenge the church to say that we are more than Sunday. As the members were inspired by the Word, their hearts were changed too. We say, "If your doors closed tomorrow and the only people impacted or bothered by them closing are the people on the inside, then maybe you are not fulfilling your mission to feed the least of these. When we feed the least of these we are feeding Jesus Christ. The fish are not going to come to the boat, you have to go where the fish are and I will teach you to be fishers of men. They get hot meals on this day, and know that there are people that care about them. We are showing them that this is what the church is all about.

LaTrynnda Cunningham-Hollins and Carrie Coats and Kurt Spencer from Kingdom Covenant Connection talked about being homeless. The organization is based out of love and a desire to bring people together and supply the needs of the people through love. Carrie Coats said, "The Lord gave her this mission, He wanted her to do and developed her through the process." Even in this century we are still have the issue of homelessness most people are only one pay check away. KURT SPENCER, member of Downtown Burner's Motorcycle Club, shared his story of being homeless for over two years in Daytona Beach, Florida. His situation has since changed and is now the public relations officer for their club. They are now partners with KCC in all their endeavors for the homeless and those in needs. We approach the homeless as not being dirty or shunned but as people needing love. Everyone on the street did not come from broken homes or dysfunctional families. Sometimes things happen to individuals that causes them to take a break from reality and they are not strong enough to cope and loses the will to live. Most of the people have some drastic events that caused them to end up on the street. If you meet a person the street you may be just the person the snap them back to reality; even if you don't always know their stories. Carrie Coats, said that she understand that there are many stories and we understand that many people did not just wake up and say that they chose to be homeless. Homelessness with children is even harder, but we have been able to find them housing to help them through the crisis.

CBN News Reporter Charlene Aaron Reports: The homeless population in Los Angeles County recently soared 23 percent over just the last year. According to the LA Times, the startling jump has touched every significant group, including youth, families, veterans and the chronically homeless. In 2015, Elvis Summers, who was once homeless himself, started tackling the problem, one tiny house at a time. It all started after he became friends with a woman named Irene McGhee, better known as Smokey. Irene had been homeless for 10 years, following the loss of her husband. That revelation moved summers to build Smokey a place she could call home: a tiny home. It took five days to build the three-and-a-half by eight-foot house. Video of the construction went viral. Since then, summers has raised more than $100,000 to build more of these house for people in his community. Although not officially recognized by the government, each of the tiny homes comes with its own personal address. Some local governments around the country are also using tiny homes to help their homeless populations. Tiny homes for the homeless are popping up from Chicago to Portland, Oregon, where the idea has grown to tiny house villages. But in Los Angeles, some officials see the small houses as nuisances with some saying they pose health and safety risks. Earlier this year the LA City Council moved to seize the homes without prior notice. Summers managed to move eight of them to Faith Community Church, but the people who lived in them were once again on the street. Tim Chambers pastors Faith Community Church. After months of backlash and media attention, the city said it is developing a process to work with non-profit groups, including summers, to help those living on the streets. Meanwhile, Smokey recently passed away. He said that her memory motivates him to help others.

Host LaTrynnda Hollins talked to Lynn Harbinson from Christ N Us Ministry and Halfway House in Bayou La Batre, Alabama. Lynn’s ministry was developed through a calling from God. They offer housing to families that has fallen on hard times. The families get a place to stay a private room,3 meals a day and church on Sunday and Wednesday nights. The ministry now have a thrit store that has items the families may need during their transitions. Many shelters around the city ar closing due to lack of support; the thrift store helps support our ministry. Christ N Us is one of the few shelter that houses the whole family.

LaTrynnda C. Hollins and Teresa Bettis, Executive Director from the Center for Fair Housing discussed how to find a place to live, when you feel you have been treated unfairly. The center for Fair Housing can help you figure out if you have been discriminated against in getting housing. The new face of discrimination is disabilities and familial status. Being able to assist people who are at the wits end, who feel they may have been discriminated against with their housing choices, they are also a HUD certified counseling agency, where we do financial literacy, foreclosure prevention, we make certain that people understand their rights. That is for any housing transaction whether you are renting or purchasing, getting homeowner insurance, secure a loan to purchase of home. We educate and enforce fair housing laws, so if you think you have been wronged call the office. Then we start and investigation to see if we can help you. SO WHEN THOSE INDIVIDUALS call, a lot of time you just have to let them speak and after they go through the story what has happened then I say let me see and think about this and how can we help. The seven classes that are affected or who’s being discriminated against: Race, Color (Bi-racial couples), Religion, Gender, Sexual harassment, National origin or Disability. How do you know when you are being discriminated against are maybe the person is just being rude? Unfortunately that are so instances that we find that, there is no real difference is treatment in those protective classes. You just may have a person who has a bad disposition and they treat everybody bad. It may appear it is just you but this is their persona, if it is a rental situation we may call upper management and speak to them about doing some professional development training. To work with the tenants and try to come across in more of a professional manner.

LaTrynnda & Cindy Kuro from the Set Free Movement talked about Human trafficking. We hear about human trafficking all the time is this a topic we need to be taking seriously. Trafficking is any commerical sex act with a girl under the age of 18. No consent needs to be given if they are under the age of 18 then it is illegal; under the age of 18 cannot give consent. The commerical part is when something of value was exchanged, the preception is that someone would have to be paid, it is not limited to money exchange, food, a place to stay, clothing all constitutes trafficking. If they are over 18 then fraud or coersion is how the definition is legally is so broad. Labor trafficking and sex are under the same umbrella of Human trafficking or local organization focuses on the sex trafficking. How can someone fall victim to self trafficking, it is easier than you realize what the public must know is that it is demand driving. The people that are out there buying these boys and girls pay big money to have the pimps go after whoever they desires. The buyers are pastors, attorneys, professionals people that you would not suspect they would do this and 99% of them are male. They can go online and make a selection, they are not visible; and nobody knows this is going on.

Host LaTrynnda C. Hollins and Kimberly M. Madison, Director of Ambers House of Hope discussed life after getting out of prison. 55% of all women in prison in Alabama is drug related and 76% of these women will return to prison within the first three years, there is a high rate of recidivism among women. The women must began with a recovery program where Christ is the center of their life, learning new coping mechanism to get them through a crisis. Our prison system is set up as a punitive, these women have paid for their offensives, and when the doors are open all sort of obstacles are there to stop them from going forward. The ladies are encourage to takes classes while incarcerated or take up a trade, because they cannot return to the life they lived before going to jail/prison. As long as they are looking for a job they are not using. The hardest thing the ladies encounter after getting out of prison is their old friends and playgrounds. As well as the rules and restrictions that will benefit them in the long run. They need to be delivered to understand that your past life is not important, take this opportunity to hear from the Lord. We do Bible studies in our home and recovery meetings. Most women just did their time and got out, I was the example of what their lives could look like if they get out and trust God and do just some of the work. Don't just wish that you have what I have, do what I did to get where I am.

Host LaTrynnda Hollins talked to motivational speaker, Adrienne Cooley on how to find your voice doing your Christian life. A common comment of pastor's wives is being comfortable in their husbands' shadow. Like many, she hid behind her husband, children and church. But, an incident changed her life, while on a mission trip in Haiti with other women of faith. She confronted the way she really felt, and how long she had masked her feelings, and the Lord revealed the truth to her during bible study in the hotel room. One of the ladies on the trip reminded her that life is too short to worry. During that time she asked God, "how to be happy?" Adrienne acknowledged that she had slipped into a real depression and had not realized where she was until she came out of it. "When we lose our happy, we lose our hope and trust." The solution to getting your happy back is in Psalms 40:4 -"Happy are those who trust in the Lord." When you feel yourself losing it just look and see if you are trusting the Lord."

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, Dr. Caroline Leaf is joined by Dr. Avery M. Jackson, III, a board-certified neurosurgeon, with complex spine fellowship training, to discuss Osteoporosis. There are two types of Osteoporosis. There's primary osteoporosis and then there's secondary. Primary osteoporosis is specifically when there's a change in menopause, postmenopausal. Secondary osteoporosis is due to diabetes. Inactivity is another. Lifestyle choices such as smoking, and drinking alcoholic beverages, can also cause osteoporosis. There's a whole host of other disease processes that can cause secondary osteoporosis, like thyroid issues. Certain medications are very helpful that are anabolic or that help to build bone. But, likewise, you can really focus on the diet side and exercise. Your diet, your exercise and your water intake are really important pieces.

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, Dr. Caroline Leaf is joined by Dr. Avery M. Jackson, III, a board-certified neurosurgeon, and a Christian, to discuss how prayer activates your brain and benefits the people you pray for. Ninety-nine percent of his patients are more than happy to pray prior to surgery, and more often than not, when they believe, it had a very calming effect on the patients and the families very much are touched. Dr. Avery explains that prayer is a form of conversation with God in various ways. When we pray and the spiritual energy of God moves from the throne of Grace, it changes whatever it hits and that change physically results in structural change in our brain. Dr. Leaf shared that it has been found that twelve minutes of daily focus prayer over an eight-week period can change the brain to such an extent that it can be measured on a brain scan.

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, Dr. Caroline Leaf is joined by Dr. Avery M. Jackson, III, a neurosurgeon and spinal surgeon, and Dr. Jeffrey Schwartz, a neuroscientist and psychiatrist, to discuss taking responsibility for our thought lives. Dr. Leaf explains that only a few decades ago scientists considered the brain to be a fixed and hardwired machine. This view saw the damaged brain as incurable and the focus was compensation and not restoration of function. However, research shows that we can change the physical nature of our brain through our thinking and choosing as we consciously direct our thinking. We can wire our toxic patterns of thinking and replace them with healthy new thoughts - and new thought networks grow. We can increase our intelligence and bring healing to our minds and physical bodies. It all starts in the realm of the mind with our ability to think and feel and choose. Not everyone is aware of the power they have because we are so conditioned by society and the media. Dr. Jeffrey recommends taking time for reflection. Learn how to veto some of the onslaught of sensory information, sensory overload that floods your brain. Learn how to make choices and decisions. That is the power of the mind, choices and decisions about what to focus on in consultation with the wise advocate, your Holy Spirit.

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, Dr. Caroline Leaf explains that she is frequently asked about what happens to the brain and the mind when one suffers a brain injury of some sort. The first part of her answer is that the mind and the brain are separate and that the mind controls the brain. We also know the brain can change and grow with experience and stimulation. However, the human mind works through the substrate of the physical brain, and therefore, if there is brain damage from trauma of some sort, this will affect how the mind functions, which we see in the person's cognitive, emotional, social, intellectual, and behavioral functioning. The human brain is attached to the spinal cord in such a way that it's not fixed in one position, but it's flexible and can move around the skull. This means that any impact to the head will jog the brain and cause shockwaves to move throughout the brain, causing different types of brain damage. Furthermore, any impact will cause the brain to literally bounce off the walls of the skull, resulting in additional damage. There are many different ways this can happen, including car, motorbike and bike accidents, falls, war, and, of course, sports injuries. The subsequent damage is classified either as traumatic brain injury, shortened to TBI, or chronic traumatic encephalopathy, shortened to CTE, based on the type of impact. TBI and CTE have similarities and differences on the neurological, cognitive, emotional, and behavioral levels. Dr. Caroline is joined by Dr. Dr. Avery M. Jackson, III, a board-certified neurosurgeon, to discuss these differences. On the CTE side, prevention is really the key. It's really important to follow those traumatic-head-injury guidelines and prevention. Attitude is massive and really makes a difference. If they have the injury and there is a cognitive deficit, it's going to be important to really work on memory and there are a lot of memory techniques.

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, Dr. Caroline Leaf asks the question: "If love is the most powerful force in the world, then why does communication between man and woman often feel more like war than love?" Nowhere is this more painfully evident than in the relationship designed to be filled with love, the bond between a husband and a wife. Divorce, separation, and ugly breakups leave lasting wounds that take time to heal, wounds that go beyond the man and the woman and impact the entire family as a whole. Because God created families as the foundation of society, it's not an overstatement to say that the future of the world depends on our ability to love and understand one another. Dr. Leaf and her guests, her husband Mac, and good friends, Mel and Desiree Ayres, discuss some of the challenges they experienced in their marriage as well as pearls of wisdom. Dr. Leaf explains that God has called us to help each other and that understanding male and female brain differences can help us to immerse each other in love.

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, the topic is "Eating Disorders." Dr. Caroline Leaf explains that much research is focused on how negative, destructive emotions contribute to anorexia, bulimia, and other disorders. These are seen as emotional eating patterns. Yet, there's been a sore lack of research that could help gain insight into how positive emotions are distorted by those suffering with these life-threatening disorders, which have a death rate up to 12 times higher than all other causes of death combined for females between the ages of 15 and 24. Dr. Leaf is joined by her daughter Jessica and Pastor Desiree Ayres who discuss their experience going through eating disorders. Dr. Leaf shares that research shows the more you immerse someone in love, the more courage they have to actually face their issues and to look critically at the way they're dealing with the issue. An eating disorder is classified in the DSM as a disease. A disease implies that it is something that is biologically wrong and controls you and you don't have control; it is genetically in your genes. However, that has actually never been proven. Ultimately, Jessica and Pastor Desiree made the choice to overcome their eating disorder, with loving support and their faith in Jesus Christ and the power of His word.

CBN News Reporter Lorie Johnson Reports: Hippocrates, the father of medicine, once said, "All disease begins in the gut." Now, 2,000 years later, that belief still rings true. Some of our latest medical breakthroughs focus on what's happening in our intestinal system. Bacteria, also known as bugs or germs, we assume they're all bad, right? Not so fast. Scientists recently discovered much, if not most, of the bacteria in our body is good for us. The key to good health depends on having enough of the right kind. We all have trillions of bacteria living in our intestines—hundreds of different species, each with different functions. Scientists call it our "gut flora." Neurologist Dr. David Perlmutter, author of "Brain Maker" is one of many physicians warning against disrupting this fragile ecosystem. Dr. Vincent Pedre, author of "Happy Gut," agrees. Unfortunately, when it comes to good gut bacteria, many of us are sorely lacking. After all, antibiotics kill bacteria--bad and good. Perlmutter says most people have no idea how severely antibiotics damage our gut flora. In addition to antibiotics, processed food can also disrupt the gut biome. Perlmutter says processed foods contain heavy doses of the wrong kinds of fat, like heated oils such as soybean, corn and vegetable oils. He also advises against consuming hydrogenated oils, also known as Trans fats, which are common in processed foods. However, he points out not all fat is bad. Even babies delivered by Caesarian section can miss out on getting enough good bacteria. So while our lifestyle choices really do a number on the gut bacteria that's so critical to our health, the good news is we can improve it with probiotics and prebiotics. Probiotics are the good bacteria we need and often lack. You can find these living, microscopic organisms in supplements as well as in cultured and fermented foods like kim chee, sauerkraut, yogurt, kefir and kombucha. Prebiotics are the food for the probiotics - they keep probiotics living and growing as they should. Just like good soil, they create a nurturing environment in your gut so your bacteria can thrive. You can get prebiotics in supplement form as well as in foods, like asparagus, onions, leeks, garlic and dandelion greens. Perlmutter says many people are only aware of the benefits of probiotics, but he stresses prebiotics are equally important. Not only can it help your mood — Perlmutter says even serious brain disorders, like attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, autism, even Alzheimer's disease can improve by increasing good bacteria. That's because they help make neurotransmitters and vitamins while at the same time aid in reducing harmful inflammation. And not just the brain. Scientists are now identifying specific strains of good bacteria that treat all kinds of problems, from skin rashes to the flu. That means a targeted probiotic could take the place of a prescribed drug. Pedre says that opens the door to a wide range of natural treatments. So if you want to boost your health, doctors say improve your gut flora. That means avoiding processed foods, even antibacterial cleansers and antibiotics when advisable. Then add good bacteria with probiotics and boost them with prebiotics, also available as supplements or in certain foods.

The youth need to learn how to be responsible adults, many of the young people want a job doing the summer months. The challenges they face is competition, due to budget cuts there are not a lot of summer jobs out there. There was a time where there was many jobs for the youth for the summer through JTPA, etc. but since then due to budget cuts there are no program like that for kids. With all that is happening in the news the children need something positive to do, and that is what Mobile Works is doing; assisting them in working on their grades and being a good citizens. During the summer time they can get money to buy what they want through learning a job skills. Children's view of life is different because they get a little more, than the previous generations and they need to learn that mom and dad is not always going to be there to take care of them. Coming out of High school and no experience how do you help them figured out what they want to do. There are a lot of kids that graduated and don't know what they want to do, first talk to them about their skills they actually have and then make a plan and we may be able to offer some referrals. Young people have no idea what they want to do or what they are capable of doing. CBN News Reporter Caitlin Burke Reports: Personal trainers at Inner City Weightlifting (ICW), are considered some of the best in Boston. Trained by world class instructors, they're sought out by some of the city's top business men and women. For them, a career in personal training isn't what they anticipated, but it's a job that's saving their lives. Just about all of the trainers at ICW have spent significant time behind bars. At the ripe young age of 31, Lemon has been shot, seen friends die and been arrested for things he's done and things he hasn't. He says the violence from his old life wasn't as much a choice, as it was survival. When it comes to getting off the streets, plenty of programs offer help, but not a real way out. ICW founder Jon Feinman shares little in common with someone like Lemon but he has a passion for disrupting the system that Lemon says could have destroyed him. Feinman started ICW in 2010. One of the early challenges was figuring out how to reconcile the dream of changing lives through weight-training, with the realities of life on the street. Still, the ICW team moved forward—knowing they had a lot to learn. By listening, they discovered ways to improve their program. First, they learned people wanted a true sense of community. Second, many people on the streets lack hope. That's where weight training makes a difference. Not only does it offer community, ICW also provides a career-track in personal training. In 2016 nearly 400 ICW clients trained with a student-trainer. While Sarah Downey originally came for the workout, she told CBN that her perception of the world changed as she got to know her trainer. That moved her to use her network to bring her trainer other clients and provide him with odd jobs to make extra cash. As communities and networks become inclusive, opportunities become endless.

CBN News Reporter Mark Martin Reports: Author and activist Erin Merryn is on a mission to protect children from being sexually abused. With millions of victims in the United States alone, the Illinois woman is taking her fight to all 50 states and beyond. People magazine named her one of 15 women changing the world. With a bubbly baby girl, supportive husband, and infectious personality, you'd never guess Erin Merryn has endured tragic, unimaginable acts. This vibrant 30-year-old is a survivor of sexual abuse. Merryn said it started when she was just 6 years old at her first sleep-over. She said the uncle of her best friend sexually abused her during the night. The first time. Merryn never told anyone, and she says until she turned 8 and a half, when her family moved from the area, the man repeatedly sexually abused her. He even brutally raped her just weeks shy of her seventh birthday. She said he continued to threaten her to keep quiet, and she complied. Even after she and her family moved to a new neighborhood, sexual abuse continued. Merryn said this time the perpetrator was an older cousin, someone she had viewed as a brother figure. Merryn wrote about her despair in her childhood diary. Merryn finally broke her silence when her younger sister told her that she, too, was being sexually abused by the same cousin. The two told their parents who believed them 100 percent. The next step was telling their story to a forensic investigator at The Children's Advocacy Center of North and Northwest Cook County. More than 900 of these non-profit centers exist around the country. The room where Merryn found her voice has a two-way mirror. As she shared her story with a trained therapist, behind that mirror investigators listened, collecting information to build a case against a perpetrator. Merryn said her cousin confessed to the crime, was sentenced to seven years probation, and put in a sex offender treatment program instead of receiving jail time. However, her early childhood abuser was never prosecuted. What Merryn and her sister went through is by no means isolated. Merryn eventually went on to become a social worker at a counseling agency. But God had different plans for her to help children and teens on a national and international level. He used her childhood diary to spark a new idea. At that, Erin's Law was born. The law requires age-appropriate personal body safety and sexual abuse prevention curriculum for pre-kindergarten through 12th grade students in public schools. It educates kids on safe touch, unsafe touch; safe secrets, unsafe secrets; how to get away and tell. Merryn is on a mission to find either a state senator or representative in each state to sponsor the bill, draft it, and introduce it to lawmakers for an eventual vote. Erin's Law is spreading like wildfire, even drawing the attention of celebrities like Oprah and Katie Couric, and magazines like People and Glamour. In a little more than four years it's passed in 21 states and pending in 22, with seven to go. It's a legacy she'll leave for her baby girl and millions of other children who, because of a law, will be protected from the grip of sexual abuse.

CBN News Reporter Caitlin Burke Reports: Disruptive innovation: While you may not recognize the term, it's affecting life and business as we know it. It happens when new ideas and technology shake up old markets by creating new ones. We've seen it in transportation, hospitality and now with banking. It's being called Wall Street's "Uber moment." Rob Morgan, vice president of Emerging Technologies at the American Bankers Association, says customers expect to have the same type of digital access to banking as they do to other important services. Think about it. You can get your mail through a smart phone, order dinner, even hail a cab, all just by pulling up an app. Now thanks to financial technology, you can also access your money. Apple, Google, Amazon are the tech giants all on board with financial technology. Most of them are starting off with digital payment apps. While they may be a little late to the party, major banks have entered this new reality. Banks are competing in this space, but it seems they face an uphill battle. According to Harris Research firm, 77 percent of consumers have a positive impression of the tech industry, compared to 35 percent who feel good about the financial industry. Those skirmishes seem to be taking the shape of regulations. The tech industry wants breathing room for young startups, while the banking industry believes its new competitors should follow the same rules it does. Security is a major concern of consumers when it comes to digital financial services. Brian Peters, with Financial Innovation Now, an organization that represents Apple, Amazon, Google, Intuit and PayPal, says your cell phone will eventually provide better protection of your information than a debit or credit card. Some of the popular services include Venmo, Google Wallet and Apple Pay. They allow you to transfer money and buy products without ever stepping into a bank or pulling out your credit card. This especially appeals to the millennial generation. According to Viacom Media, 73 percent of Millennials prefer using digital services than going to a bank. But it's not Millennials who stand to gain the most from this technology. Despite battles on Capitol Hill, both the banks and the tech industry agree that, ultimately, the consumer will be the winner.

CBN News Reporter Caitlin Burke Reports: The Catholic Church is known for its sacred traditions. Those traditions, however, can make the Church seem resistant to change. One Philadelphia parish challenged that perception when it moved to transform along with the neighborhood it serves. In the 1960s, the Mount Airy neighborhood was half Jewish, half Irish or Italian Catholic. Over the course of eight years that changed entirely and now it's completely African American. The synagogues left, but churches like St. Raymond of Penafort Catholic Church stuck around and welcomed their new neighbors. That may seem like typical neighborhood outreach, but culturally and historically, the Catholic Church doesn't offer much to African-Americans. Father Walsh wanted to change that. Walsh found it wasn't theology that needed to change, it was a congregation needing to convince neighbors that St. Raymond met their needs. Author Chris Lowney uses Father Walsh and St. Raymond as a prime example of how the Catholic Church needs to change. In his book, "Everyone Leads: How to Revitalize the Catholic Church," Lowney writes that to thrive in today's world we don't have to drink some 21st century cocktail. He writes that the church is facing its worst crisis in 500 years. Lowney offers what he calls an "EASTeR Strategy." That stands for Entrepreneurial, Accountable, Serve, Transform and Reach. Looking at St. Raymond as a model: It first established leadership teams to help manage operations, ministries and projects—much as a business would do. Then they gathered information about what people wanted from their walk with Christ and how the Church met those needs. After analyzing that data, they made any needed changes. St. Raymond serves the neighborhood with a Catholic school, which provides families a safe place for their children to learn. Philadelphia's public schools are some of the most violent and lowest performing in the country. Long-time parishioners felt St. Raymond once depended on "church welfare." Low attendance meant borrowing money to keep the doors open. Now, thanks to the cultural transformation, complete with music and decorations, people travel from other parishes to help pack the pews each Sunday. Pastor Walsh believes that when it comes to reaching Millennials, encouraging their involvement differs from past generations. Lowney points out that even the Pope is encouraging an attitude of innovation within the Catholic Church. Pope Francis recently appeared on screen as one of the speakers at the annual TED conference. As he talked to tech company founders, artists, and cultural leaders, he surprised his audience by using modern tools of the digital age to reach them. Lowney feels this strategy is universal and can revitalize any church, no matter the belief set or denomination. For it to work, however, he stresses it can't just be from the top down, even if it's the Pope who calls for change. It requires everyone to lead.
