Glory House is located in the heart of Miami in the downtown area. Trafficking is down the street, the girl you see at school, it happens on a daily basis. People you least expected have been victims and become survivors. In 2011, a vision from the Lord came to open up a home for adult survivors. The home is a residential program for 12-18 months where a woman is helped with inner healing. The main purpose is to have a relationship with God. Only He can fully do the restoration and healing in their hearts. Women are provided with basic needs like medical services, legal assistance and connected with different providers in our city. At the drop-in center they're able to service non-resident survivors as well as ladies ready to leave the life. Safe House is important because the women never had a healthy home life usually abused by a parent or even sold by them. Human Trafficking is extremely common around the world, it happens in our very own back yard. Women have been coerced, drugged, and need a place to call home. Survivors going in have their education expanded and thrive. Some have their immigration status taken care of, some had their records completely expunged, meaning they can get a job. If there's a background check, they won't have to be questioned and relive their story. There's a purpose and destiny every woman has, when that's fulfilled Betty Lara's heart rejoices. Especially someone who's been bound for years in trafficking was told they are trash, and will never amount to anything or can do anything. When you see the transformations of a woman who's been incarcerated in her mind for years and now moves into freedom; that is the greatest gift.

Children of prisoners are 7 times more likely to become incarcerated themselves. They are at critical risk of dropping out of school, getting involved in violence, and teen pregnancy, due to the fact that most of them are living in poverty-stricken, high crime areas with few or no positive adult role models. Wings For LIFE International ministry springs from the passion of caring people and the deep concern they have to help families of prisoners who have been largely shunned or ignored by our society. In our society where children are all at risk in one way or another, children whose parent(s) are in prison, face even more challenges. Ann Edenfield, Executive Director and founder of Wings For LIFE International ministry discusses with us how not only inmates are arrested, but their families are arrested as well. Wings For LIFE International hosts 3 community Family Days a year: Christmas, Easter, and Back to School parties, hoping to reach families at important times throughout the year. The Family Days are held in sponsoring congregations in different parts of the city and in different denominations. Wings For LIFE International strives to build quality relationships and strong values in participants. Wings provides an arena for effective ways to rebuild assets in the lives of our young people, which can greatly reduce or prevent their involvement in at-risk behaviors. Ann Edenfield, Executive Director and founder of Wings For LIFE International relates how they minister to the needs of the children and families of those that are incarcerated.

Pastor Kevin Brown of Side-By-Side Church International explains that human trafficking is modern slavery. Sex trafficking is when a victim, through force, fraud, and coercion, is lured into the life of selling their body in sex slavery. The distinction from prostitution is that a person chooses to prostitute themselves in order to make money. In both instances the person can be male or female. Victims of sex trafficking come from every single walk of life. The most prevalent victims of sex trafficking are runaways and children out of foster care. In 2016 it was estimated by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children that one in six children who are runaways are victims of sex human trafficking. The human traffickers are not stereotypical. The trafficker can be a father, a mother, a brother, a woman, anyone. The predators, or "Johns," create the demand for sex trafficking. They are pastors, "Christian" men, politicians, pedophiles, gang members; anyone. The Harbor Blvd. track in Santa Ana is known throughout the US and has been there for over 35 years. Predators come from all over Orange County, LA County, San Diego, and the Inland Empire. If there is no demand, then there are no victims, then there are no traffickers. Pornography plays a huge role in creating such a high demand for sex trafficking in the US. As the Body of Christ, and with the number of churches in Orange County, there needs to be a more collaborative approach. The Church is the only one with the authority to address this issue in the spiritual realm. The church can also help by providing victims with a safe place to stay. They can help victims start the recovery process through pro-bono work as a psychologist or psychiatrist, and professionals can provide employment and job training. Side-By-Side Church International created a curriculum to teach people how to safely go out and do street outreach. They also created C.S.I. (Cyber Sex Investigation) for women only. These women volunteers are trained to go on websites where women are posted for sale to look for signs that indicate and confirm that a person is a victim of sex trafficking. While there are excellent ministries and organizations doing a good work, the resources are few and far in between. Get involved with organizations that are already established. Invest in someone's life by helping them get into an aftercare facility. "Don't go to Church, be the Church." Advocate for the sexually abused and exploited Sierra Swift shared her story about her involvement in sex trafficking and how Christ transformed her life.

Mike Huckabee talks about his experience as Governor and the changes needed in the criminal justice system. A couple of decades ago, a popular policy was 'Three Strikes You're Out.' That meant a life sentence for three thefts of $400. It costs more money to put a person in prison for a year than to put a person in college and pay full tuition, room and board, buy books, and even provide spending money. It also costs more than it would to provide mental health needs for many people who are locked up without any treatment for what landed them there in the first place. We don't have a crime problem, we have a drug and alcohol problem. Eighty-eight percent of the inmates in the Arkansas system were there for a drug or alcohol-related crime. Some of those folks absolutely are dangerous and they need to be imprisoned. But many would do better to be in treatment centers and community restitution centers which address the root problem, and often cost as little as ten percent of the cost of a full-blown lockup. Without addressing why people end up in prison, our correction system is mostly a place where greater criminal skills are learned and, upon release, the inmate who can't find a job ends up committing more elaborate crimes. While the government can't force people into faith-based programs, his experience was that only the faith-based programs had long-term success rates. Programs like InnerChange and Prison Fellowship had a less than twenty percent recidivism rate compared to the more than eighty percent recidivism of traditional approaches. Angola Prison in Louisiana was once considered the most violent and hopeless institution in all of America. Now, it is a model of changing inmate behavior by changing the inmate from the inside out through a process that is all about repentance, forgiveness, restitution, and redemption by faith in God. Some inmates will never get out because of what they did, but while their bodies may not be freed, their souls have been.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, shows us the life of a former prostitute and how she found hope. Prostitution has been around for thousands of years damaging the lives of many women. Recent statistics tell us that the average prostitute begins selling her body between the ages of 12 and 14. Many of these women face physical dangers from assaults and rape. Some are even murdered in the streets. The great percentage of these women go on to contract sexually transmitted diseases and psychological disorders. To many, this seems like a hopeless situation, but we believe that nothing is hopeless when God enters the picture. No matter what you've done, no matter where you've been, God is able to change your life and turn your life around and give you a new direction, give you new purpose, and heal your broken heart. His love is able to change your life.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, takes us into the lives of women locked up behind prison bars. The life of a woman prisoner is very dangerous. Many of these women will never adapt to so-called normal life because of the traumatic experience they face behind those prison walls. There's a tremendous amount of tension, violence, and fear that women face daily. The percentage of women going to prison has sky rocketed over the last 30 years by 646%, rising from about 15,000 women to over 110,000 women. So many of these women experience physical and sexual abuse while imprisoned. More than one million women are a part of the criminal justice system whether it is through incarceration, probation or parole. Many of these women are mothers or mothers to be at the time of their imprisonment, and 62% of these women have children under the age of 18. These incarcerated women find themselves in a place of regret, depression, physical harm, and sometimes with suicidal thoughts. But the bars of a prison cell are not strong enough to hold back God's grace, love and forgiveness. These are the stories of a few women who were once locked in a prison cell but found the keys to freedom through Jesus Christ.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, shares the testimony of a former madame. Prostitution has been an epidemic for thousands of years. In fact, it is considered the world's oldest profession. The lives of those who are prostitutes are greatly affected not only physically but emotionally and mentally. There is another side to the prostitution business. Along, with prostitution comes sex trafficking. Typically, we see men referred to as pimps that handle this side of the business, but on rare occasions, women have decided to step into the business as well. These women pimps, or madams as they are called, handle the money. They transport the call girls and at times get violent to protect their women. This is a problem that is taking place in inner cities around the world. Victory Outreach has seen firsthand the lives of so many who have come out of that lifestyle totally transformed. The message they give to them is that you shall know the truth, the Bible says, and the truth shall set you free. And he who the Son sets free is free indeed.

Operation Code Red is a powerful two day evangelistic thrust where thousands of women from all over Victory Outreach International went into strategic cities where prostitution is widespread with one purpose in mind, to share the love of God and rescue them out of darkness.

TBN got the chance to interview Major Abe Tamayo, Corps Officer for The Salvation Army in St. Joseph, MO. The Salvation Army began in 1865 under the leadership of William Booth, with a calling to help those who were poverty stricken. In 1880, The Salvation Army came to New York City and in 1886 opened Its doors in St. Joseph, MO. The mission of The Salvation Army is to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ and meet human needs in His name without discrimination. The reason they do what they do takes its premises from the founder William Booth, who was an evangelist preaching the Gospel. He said "how can a man hear the Gospel over the grumbling of his own stomach," and this birthed the social service aspect of The Salvation Army. Today they serve in more than 127 countries around the world. Some or the more critical needs in the St. Joseph community are homelessness, poverty, and food necessity. They offer the Booth Center for the homeless community, which provides 24/7 housing and meals. They also provide good quality case management through the center. Major Abe Tamayo shared the many reasons why people end up homeless such as, mental health issues and alcohol addiction. However, the typical person they see today isn't your "typical stereotype" that people see in movies. He says, "They're everyday mental healthy people and they just need a help up to get them back on their feet and to move forward. Major Abe Tamayo also shared that financial support and the community's support as a whole is needed to keep The Salvation Army functioning and to help those in need. With mat sa10, Major Abe Tamayo told viewers "they are in absolute need of volunteers'" to come in and help out and share the Gospel. They have a Family Thrift store where they receive donated goods and sell them back to the community at a discounted price. The money that's raised from the Thrift Store goes back into the funding for their programs and support services. Major Abe Tamayo and his wife are the Pastors for the Sunday service at 10:45am. In the winter months they'll turn the church into a warming center.

Anne Ferrell Tata, from WTPC-Virginia Beach meets with Pastor Janeen McBath, First Lady of Calvary Revival Church in Norfolk, Virginia. Pastor Janeen, also known as Lady J, is the President & CEO of the House of Esther Organization (HOEO). She also is the First Lady of Calvary Revival Church where she coordinates the prayer and women's ministries. Pastor Janeen McBath also lends valuable support to her husband, Bishop Courtney McBath. Lady J started the non-profit House of Esther Organization when she saw that single mothers needed a place to stay when they became pregnant. She gave her own house to the ministry and started a transitional home where young mothers and children could come and live, while getting their feet back under them. She said that she saw young mothers living in cars and had no place to go once they were pregnant. The home is designed to provide support, love and care for the women and their unborn babies. Later, Lady J added the City Center, an educational component to the House of Esther outreach, Young mothers and now fathers can attend the House of Esther's city center program to earn their GED. Certified teachers teach the young parents science, English, math and social studies to prepare for the GED test. Also, City Center attendees are supported with transportation, food, and resource classes that cover topics such as finances, starting your own business, how to get into the medical field and more. There is a time for attendees to talk through what is occurring in their life. The House of Esther throws a full graduation complete with a valedictorian to celebrate their achievements with friends and family. While their parents are at the city center, the children have complementary daycare onsite, otherwise day care is expensive and is often keeping someone back from pursuing their education. An educated woman will pass this legacy onto their children, says Pastor Janeen McBath. The program also works to create partnerships for community college and other higher education opportunities. You are giving them a vision of what they can be, comments Anne Ferrell.

Mike Huckabee interviews Cabot Philips, Media Director for Campus Reform, to discuss bias and abuse on the nation's college campuses. Many of our college students do not understand the basics of what it means to be an American, to be an adult, or to have a debate about the issues and not just who is proposing them. All it takes for not being popular on campus is not being a liberal. Presenting ideas to try to get people to think outside the box gets people angry. They try to shut you down. Around the country, many colleges have begun to replace the required history and literature courses with new social justice initiatives. If we're going to fix the problem on our college campuses, it's going to have to start with educating people on the history of our country, the constitution, the first amendment, and how it applies and protects ideas. There is a systematic problem that needs to be addressed. If no one knows what is going on, then no one's doing to care enough to want to fix it. Much of the media doesn't want to cover it because it would acknowledge that it's their own side being intolerant. It's not a partisan issue. The future of our country is something everyone should be concerned with. We should work together across the aisle to defend free speech, to defend ideas, to defend our future.

Mike Huckabee interviews Everett Piper, President of Oklahoma Wesleyan University and Author of "Not a Daycare," to explain "generation snowflake." Piper shares his response to a student's complaint of discomfort after hearing a message on I Corinthians 13, a chapter in the Bible about love is patient and love is kind, which went viral. Our culture is hungry for somebody to confront this nonsense. Oklahoma Wesleyan University is a bold and unapologetic Christian university. So many of our colleges have lost the standard of truth, which used to be the objective of the academy. A degree shouldn't be about opinions. A degree should be about learning what's true. When we abandon truth as the objective, we get chaos, vengeance, and victimization, rather than virtue and veritas; Latin for truth. That's where we are as an academic enterprise today.

On this episode of Somebody's Gotta Do It, Host, Mike Rowe, takes us inside the national competition for Skills USA to find out how they are creating thousands of great careers while keeping the American Dream alive. Skills USA has filled in the gap that was created when Vo-tech vanished from high schools, by establishing a partnership between education and industry. Every year this organization trains over 300,000 students in dozens of skilled trades; welding, baking, and broadcasting, to name a few. At this competition, every competing student has already won a competition at the state level, and now they are competing for scholarships. Each competition lays out specific tasks to be completed within a certain amount of time with the opportunity to be awarded gold, silver, and bronze medallions. We're looking at a shortage of over 250,000 workers in the next ten years of retiring age. Our entire infrastructure is held together by welds, and the people who know how to make them. Right now, a good welder who is willing to go where the work is could pretty much write his or her own ticket. The baking industry is also struggling to find qualified people. While students are coming out of college mired in debt with no guarantee for a job in their field, the students who participate at Skills USA are gaining valuable training that makes them ready for the workforce as soon as they graduate.

700 Club CBN 1:00:00 5:00 REC PA/O/E 05/01/2018 2:00 PM NewsWatch #05012018

CBN Reporter Heather Sells Reports: National ministries serving college students have faced some bleak prospects in recent years. After decades of work, just four in ten campuses have been reached and on many of those campuses, university administrators are seeking to push ministries out. Greg Jao, director of external relations for InterVarsity Christian Fellowship/USA, watched the shift come after a pivotal Supreme Court case in 2010. In Christian Legal Society v. Martinez, the court ruled that despite the First Amendment, the University of California's Hastings College of Law could deny recognition to the Christian Legal Society organization on campus because it requires its members to adhere to a statement of beliefs. At the same time, ministries like InterVarsity and Cru, formerly Campus Crusade for Christ, have taken a hard look at the number of campuses they've been able to reach simply because of resources. Of the estimated 3,000 college campuses in the US, just 1,174 have an organized Gospel witness. Shannon Compere, executive director of leadership development at Cru, says one of the challenges has been the relatively slow pipeline employed to place staff. It involves years of planning, training, and fund-raising. It's one reason that Cru and InterVarsity have begun to collaborate to reach more campuses. In fact, they've named their new movement #EveryCampus(http://everycampus.us/) in a bold attempt to cast a new vision. Tom Allen serves as InterVarsity's regional director for southern California and has spent decades working on creative strategies to reach college students. For years, he said, InterVarsity organized ministry around campus pastors that stayed at one location. Then it moved to a team model where multiple staff served on one campus. Now, both InterVarsity and Cru are shifting to partner with other Christian groups, local churches and individual believers in communities that want to reach their campuses for Christ. Those campuses include community colleges, historically black colleges and online schools and programs. The new paradigm is still emerging in southern California but student leaders Jerry Requena and Tami Chipeco are living out what could be a model. Under the mentorship of InterVarsity staff, Reguena and Chipeco have begun to approach students and lead Bible studies at Santa Ana College, an unreached community college in Orange County. Often, they'll simply study the Word with students sitting on benches surrounded by classmates coming and going. Requena, who maintains a demanding work schedule, says when InterVarsity staff first asked him to lead, he hesitated to jump into the new ministry. Then, as he went and observed InterVarsity communities on other campuses and its commitment to Bible study, he became convinced that God was calling him. Chipeco drives about 30 minutes to Santa Ana from her campus and admits to culture shock as an Asian-American serving mainly Latino students at Santa Ana. She also admits that the #Everycampus movement is bold, but says she's driven by a desire to see others know the Lord. Meanwhile, Jao is working on strategies to engage with campus administrators and help them see the value of faith-based groups on campuses. The hope is that more robust relationships will prevent college deans and staff from using non-discrimination policies to de-recognize Christian groups. Often, these policies are used against Christian clubs by claiming that their statements of belief discriminate against students with other beliefs. When Christian clubs lose their recognition on campus, they also lose the ability to reserve room space and recruit members at student activity fairs. Plus, there's a social cost, says Jao. Jao says the long-term consequences of such shifts in campus thinking concern him the most. Ultimately, Jao believes that Christian students involved in derecognized groups are learning deep lessons about discipleship and the cost of following Christ. His advice to them and Christian student organizations, in general, is to develop relationships with campus administrators. For cases in which groups have already been derecognized, it often can turn the situation around. He also advocates Christian groups highlighting their service projects on behalf of the campus and community and asking administrators how they can help them. Jao says one university president, when asked if he would like prayer, started to weep.

Mike Huckabee interviews the leader of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Jim Bridenstine to discuss NASA. We don't understand how dependent we are on space and there are fundamental questions that we don't have answers to. Is there life in the universe beyond planet Earth? NASA is working hard to answer that fundamental question. That is why they are doing missions to Mars. We are a nation of explorers who want to know more and to understand our environment. For the first time, we're reusing rockets. These technologies and capabilities are driving down the costs of access to space.

Cheryl Wilson, Church Relations Manager, of Joni & Friends Arizona talks about families affected by disabilities. The Stratman family and the Hamilton family share their story. There are over 650 million people around the world affected by disability and they are isolated, abandoned, and often put in institutions because they are so stigmatized. People do not accept them. They are not a part of society. If they cannot be a part of society, they are not going to get an education, and eventually they are not going to be able to get a job or support themselves or their families, so they end up being the highest poverty level group as well. In Arizona, approximately twelve percent of the population, (800,000) has disabilities. People with disabilities are the most unreached people group in the world, and the most unchurched because of stigmas. While the divorce rate is about fifty percent for typical families, it goes up exponentially for families affected by disability. Joni & Friends want the church to be so irresistible that people with disabilities want to run to the church and consequently want to run to Jesus. Joni & Friends trains churches on how to make their facilities accessible, how to minister to mom and dad, how to minister to the siblings, how to reach out to the person with the disability, how to deal with the behavioral issues of a child with autism, and how to adapt the curriculum. They want the church to be that refuge and place for families to go to get the support, connection, prayer, and sense of belonging within the Body of Christ, because the church is not complete unless we have families with disabilities serving alongside us. Joni & Friends also provides a family retreat that is a week-long camp-like experience for these families. Volunteers are needed to come and serve those families for a week. God has created us in His own image. We have so much worth and value to our Savior. Every person is indispensable to Jesus.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, let's us hear gripping true stories from mothers who have lost a child without notice to a senseless murder. There's little that is more tragic than the death of a child. The sad fact is that lives are lost every day. Every day, 33 Americans are murdered with guns, and seven of those are children. When the horror of losing a child becomes a reality, the pain can be overwhelming. Not one person grieves the same. Everyone mother grieves differently. These mothers have overcome tragedy and have become overcomers in Christ. Jesus Christ is the answer.

On today's episode of Treasurers, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, let's us hear stories of mothers who have had to live with the harsh reality that their child is sentenced to many years in prison. This topic has affected families from different backgrounds and social status. Every parent has hopes and dreams for their children. When you see them going in the wrong direction and headed for tragedy, most parents can feel helpless. One wrong decision can change a life forever. As a parent, you never dream or even image a son or daughter would be sentenced like a caged animal alone in a 5x8 foot cell or having to deal with the pain that your child has little or no hope of being free again. When your child is locked up in a cold prison cell, the pain can be devastating to a mother. But even in the midst of this horrific situation, God has given peace to many of these mothers. A peace that surpasses all understanding. God has been an anchor to these mothers during their time of hardship and turned their pain into hope.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, let's us hear from a woman who was rescued from a life of gangs, violence and crime. The life of a gang member can be very violent and dangerous at times. From drugs and alcohol to fights and shootouts, gang members constantly risk their lives to defend their neighborhood. We often think of gang members as dangerous men with violent tempers, but they aren't the only ones defending their streets. Over the years, many women have also joined gangs. Many of them join in hopes of finding a sense of belonging, others for protection, and still others just want to be respected. They fight for their gang no matter the cost. These women are very violent and very dangerous. Through a Bible study women's lives have been changed. God has forgiven them, and he who is forgiven much, loveth much.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, takes us into the perilous world of some biker clubs. Over the years, biker gangs have taken on a different persona. They've gone from hanging out on the front porch and handling drugs to now traveling the nation for Multi-Million Dollar drug deals. These bikers can be seen riding their Harley Davidson bikes dressed in leather jackets, but there is more to their lifestyle than meets the eye. The reality is it's a nightmare. They've seen violence, lost friends and family members, and some have even lost their own lives. The life of a biker gang member is very dangerous and unpredictable. To those in law enforcement, these motorcycle clubs are considered organized crime organizations. Motorcycle clubs don't have to be violent and treacherous in their way of life. In fact, a motorcycle club can be a way of sharing the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The Riders Out of Darkness Motorcycle Club is full of people who once lived the biker lifestyle but have now been transformed by the power of Jesus Christ. They use their testimonies to impact the lives of those still living that dangerous lifestyle.

Vegetables and other fresh items are preferable to heavily processed foods; it is important to try to choose actual fresh items from the produce section over canned or frozen. Mrs. Thomas concludes by explaining that another way to help consistently maintain a healthy diet is to plan meals ahead during the week.

Mike Huckabee interviews Dr. Richard Furman, Vascular Surgeon, Author, and Co-Founder of World Medical Mission, the medical arm of Samaritan's Purse, to discuss defeating dementia. There are three stages of Alzheimer's Disease. During stage one a protein develops in the brain twenty years before symptoms appear. Many Americans age 55 to 60 have this protein and don't even know it. Stage two is when symptoms occur. 10 to 20 percent of Americans age 65 have symptoms of Alzheimer's. That rises to 50 percent when you're 85. During stage three one is dependent on others, confined to a wheelchair or bedridden. Modifiable risk factors are exercise, food, and weight.

CBN Reporter Lorie Johnson Reports: Living in the country may have some advantages, but not if you need a doctor. Shortages in rural areas mean some 90 million Americans can't count on adequate medical care. That's because physicians simply choose to live and work closer to cities. In order to fight that trend, one California county is undertaking a unique plan to attract more doctors. If successful, it could serve as a model for other communities. Compared to patients in big cities, a diagnosis of cancer, heart disease, diabetes and other illnesses can be much worse for people living in rural communities, largely because of doctor shortages there. New doctors typically settle down near the medical school where they completed their residency, the years after getting their M.D. when they train in their chose field of medicine. Those medical schools are usually located in big cities. That's not the case in Riverside County, California, thanks to a communitybased medical school. The University of California Riverside Medical School answered prayers when it opened five years ago because up until that time, the shortage of doctors forced people to either go without medical care or drive all the way to Los Angeles for it. That's why the medical school's primary purpose is to plant doctors in underserved Riverside County. Dr. Lyons believes its new crop of 110 resident physicians will go a long way toward meeting that goal. In addition to location, money is a strong factor in deciding where to put down roots. Many new doctors feel the need to land a highpaying job to pay off their crushing student loan debt, which often tops $2 million. They find higher salaries in big cities. UCR Medical School eliminates that burden by offering free tuition to medical students who stay in the area after completing their training, like student Madeline Sevetre. After growing up in Riverside County, Madeline knows all too well the pain of not having access to medical care. Unlike many medical schools, UCR Medical School doesn't bother with a big, expensive teaching hospital. Resident physicians instead train at already existing health care facilities that are smaller and scattered across the country. Obstetrics resident Dr. Trina Mansour already sees her presence in Riverside County making a difference. Research shows most doctors would like to set up shop near their extended family, if possible. UCR Medical School's admission process takes advantage of that desire. Dr. Douglas Grover, a Riverside County native, graduated from UCR Medical School last year and is currently serving as a resident physician there. As a resident in psychiatry, he feels good about providing mental health services to the area. Another big difference at UCR Medical School compared to others is students start seeing patients in their first year, rather than waiting until their third year. The UCR Medical School students even opened a free clinic for people who otherwise might not have ever seen a doctor. So while medical care disappears in many rural areas, Riverside County, California, may have discovered the antidote: open a medical school, admit locals with a heart for the underserved and pay for the education. . . provided they don't take their talents elsewhere

CBN Reporter Amber Strong Reports: From parents overdosing in parking lots, to the deaths of the nation's biggest pop stars like Prince and Tom Petty, the fallout from the country's opioid epidemic hits all levels of society. According to the Department of Health and Human Services, overdose deaths, including prescription drugs and heroin, have increased by more than five times since 1999. A killer addiction affecting more than 42,000 people in 2016 alone, which is approximately 116 deaths a day. All reasons President Trump has vowed to break the stranglehold of opioids. Just steps away from the White House stood a memorial of 20,000 faces and lives cut short by opioids. Adams, the new surgeon general, leads a major part of the administration's fight, specifically reducing supply, protecting the border and saving lives. Given his vision of, 'Better Health Through Better Partnerships,' the anesthesiologist is looking beyond the beltway for help. That's because he sees the church playing a major part in the fight. So, the Department of Health and Human Services put out toolkits for churches, encouraging them to open their doors to programs like Narcotics Anonymous and Celebrate Recovery while also pushing the power of prayer. https://www.hhs.gov/about/agencies/iea/partnerships/opioidtoolkit/index... Adams, a Maryland native who studied medicine in Indiana, California, and Zimbabwe, believes those experiences help him see the difference between individual communities. Adams made headlines when he issued the first surgeon general advisory in 13 years, a controversial plan to put the overdose-reversing drug Naloxone in the hands of everyday citizens. Critics claim it promotes addiction. Adams says access to Naloxone enables life, not addiction. It's not the first time he's made a tough call. In 2015, an opioid-induced HIV epidemic ripped through Scott County, Indiana. Addicts there were using dirty needles. The end result, 181 confirmed cases due to what many called a slow response from the state. Despite pushback, Adams, as health commissioner at the time, called for a clean needle exchange to curtail the outbreak. Each act showing the belief of this husband and father of three that life has value. The team here at the Surgeon General's office know the battle is more than just a job and that for Dr. Adams, it's personal. Adams believes sharing his own testimony can help others. As the son of two teachers, Adams says his parents always taught him to serve others, now he gets that chance, as the top doctor to a nation in need of a cure.

CBN Medical Reporter Lorie Johnson Reports: Hippocrates, the father of medicine, once said, "All disease begins in the gut." Now, 2000 years later, that belief still rings true. Some of our latest medical breakthroughs focus on what's happening in our intestinal system. Bacteria, also known as bugs or germs, we assume they're all bad, right? Not so fast. Scientists recently discovered much, if not most, of the bacteria in our body is good for us. The key to good health depends on having enough of the right kind. We all have trillions of bacteria living in our intestines—hundreds of different species, each with different functions. Scientists call it our "gut flora." Neurologist Dr. David Perlmutter (http://www.drperlmutter.com/), author of "Brain Maker," is one of many physicians warning again disrupting this fragile ecosystem. Dr. Vincent Pedre (http://www.pedremd.com/), author of "Happy Gut," agrees. Unfortunately, when it comes to good gut bacteria, many of us are sorely lacking. After all, antibiotics kill bacteria - bad and good alike. Perlmutter says most people have no idea how severely antibiotics damage our gut flora. In addition to antibiotics, processed food can also disrupt the gut biome. Perlmutter says processed foods contain heavy doses of the wrong kinds of fat, like heated oils such as soybean, corn and vegetable oils. He also advises against consuming hydrogenated oils, also known as trans fats, which are common in processed foods. However, he points out not all fat is bad. Even babies delivered by Caesarian section can miss out on getting enough good bacteria. So while our lifestyle choices really do a number on the gut bacteria that's so critical to our health, the good news is we can improve it with probiotics and prebiotics. Probiotics are the good bacteria we need and often lack. You can find these living, microscopic organisms in supplements as well as in cultured and fermented foods like kimchi, sauerkraut, yogurt, kefir and kombucha. Prebiotics are the food for the probiotics - they keep probiotics living and growing as they should. Just like good soil, they create a nurturing environment in your gut so your bacteria can thrive. You can get prebiotics in supplement form as well as in foods, like asparagus, onions, leeks, garlic and dandelion greens. Perlmutter says many people are only aware of the benefits of probiotics, but he stresses prebiotics are equally important. Not only can it help your mood – Perlmutter says even serious brain disorders, like attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, autism, even Alzheimer's disease can improve by increasing good bacteria. That's because they help make neurotransmitters and vitamins while at the same time aid in reducing harmful inflammation. And not just the brain. Scientists are now identifying specific strains of good bacteria that treat all kinds of problems, from skin rashes to the flu. That means a targeted probiotic could take the place of a prescribed drug. Pedre says that opens the door to a wide range of natural treatments. So if you want to boost your health, doctors say improve your gut flora. That means avoiding processed foods, even antibacterial cleansers and antibiotics when advisable. Then add good bacteria with probiotics and boost them with prebiotics, also available as supplements or in certain foods.

In Jacksonville, Florida we learned about the 5 star veteran's center. The organization's primary focus is to help homeless and displaced veterans who are sleeping on the streets, under bridges, in cars or from other shelters to get on their feet. Ret. Col. Dayton Warfle, Jr., who is the center's Director, explains how essential it is to get these individuals into programs that will assist them back into school, jobs and apprenticeships. He says, doing so will allow the veterans to reintegrate into the community and become viable citizens again. The center also promotes mental/physical wellness services and provides safe and secure housing.

Pastor Frank Diaz of United We All Can discusses Homelessness. He knew nothing of street evangelism or teaching the bible but the Lord called him to the heart of Miami Beach. They are a food bank, but also train and equip volunteers that come from different churches in South Florida. They minister to the homeless because no one takes care of them. They encourage them to come into their programs. They have to attend every meeting, they have to go to every service, they have to study the word of God and they have to participate in church. So, they are getting Jesus 24/7. UWAC has a 3,000 square ft. warehouse. They are given pallets of food that on a daily basis. They distribute the food to the restoration centers, to the food banks, as well as the portable pantry kitchens. Out of that 3,000 square ft. warehouse we feed almost 5,500 people a month. Tent City is a unique place, it's an industrial area that is away from all the parks, apartment buildings and schools. It's where sexual predators congregate. UWAC goes there to minister the Word of God, because they feel like they are the worst of the worst. They are not just homeless, they are sexual predators and no one cares about them. They go there often and minister to them and show them a lot of love. They see a lot of changes and miracles. Jesus gave us a command, we need to take care of the poor. A lot of people don't want to uncomfortable, we don't dirty. They feed over 5,500 people with just a handful of people.

Kingdom Covenant Connection was founded by Carrie Coats. The ministry has a global vision to bring the body of Christ together as one. Their mission is to promote "unity" and "oneness" by encouraging churches, faith-based organizations, and community nonprofits to work as collaborative teams to network and help bring solutions to problems that affect their communities. Today, the mission expands across five states. They have a praise parade. They also have a clean machine, which is a tractor trailer that has showers, washers, and dryers for the homeless to utilize. Volunteer barbers also come out to support the community through Kingdom Covenant Connection. The mission provides clothes, shoes, and other necessities, as well. They provide food such as snacks and a full course meal on Saturdays and Sundays. Approximately 1,000 people are replenished over the course of a weekend.

Driving down some of the major crossroads in Albuquerque, New Mexico, you will see most of the homeless population in the community wondering the streets with shopping carts filled with everything they own. They are usually dressed in layers to protect themselves from extreme weather. One may wonder, "How did they become homeless? Where do they go to get a warm meal? Where do they stay?" In 2017 The Albuquerque Journal reported an increase in the homeless population since the last count in 2015. What is the reason for this increase? With us today is Pastor Chuck Aragon of God's Warehouse in Albuquerque, New Mexico. Pastor Chuck will identify the many faces of the homeless and discuss how so many ended up living on the streets. Paragon is a firm believer it takes a community wide coordinated approach to help end homelessness. Pastor Chuck and several volunteers that were once homeless themselves, are working together partnering with numerous businesses, ministries, and churches in the community of Albuquerque, New Mexico, to deliver much needed services to the homeless, such as preparing and serving hem warm meals, giving away free groceries, clean clothes, prayer and temporary shelter. God's Warehouse does a great deal to help build a better community by giving back to those in need.

Host Tori Stamoulis discusses the issues of homelessness and hunger in New York City. Pastor Diane Dunn, founder of Hope for the Future Ministries describes how she started the organization. She explains the conditions of homelessness and how she felt called to do what Jesus would do, which was to care and provide for them. There were testimonials of how they have found help through Dianne and this ministry. There were many who have gotten help and are now volunteering and donating to the ministry to help others. Hope for the Future Ministries has just celebrated their 30th anniversary. They opened a warehouse in Long Island and they serve hot meals and pantry meals to people in the area and twice a week in NYC. The prices of food has escalated. Some of the people that come are people who work 3 jobs but are unable to make ends meet. Friday nights, girl scouts, youth groups, senior citizen all work together to make sandwiches and provide food. Pastor Diane Dunn has even started a full church service in the park.

Katie Huch opens the show. She introduces the segment for The Gatehouse. The Gatehouse is a safe haven that helps women and children push past unexpected challenges of life. The Gatehouse is a privately funded, faith-based community where women and children in a crisis receive a hand-up for permanent positive change. Many of the women who come to The Gatehouse have endured such brutality and condemnation for such a long time. They actually believe they are at fault. The Gatehouse is not a shelter. Instead, they fill the gap between short term services and permanent self-supportiveness. Their program is designed to walk women and children through the healing process, while offering them the necessary resources, refuge, and relationships to help them become self-sufficient. They help remove barriers that would otherwise keep their members from thriving. The Gatehouse offers safe housing, food, clothes, transportation, professional counseling, medical, dental, legal aid, quality childcare and early learning, financial literacy training, life-skills training, education and career development guidance. Lisa Rose felt a call to begin The Gatehouse after volunteering at Dallas Jail and offering a free speaking event for women called First Friday. She saw different areas where women need a hand up for permanent positive change. Domestic Violence occurs in every neighborhood. Lisa says what these women have in common is shame and feeling they are worthless. To qualify for the program women must be 21 or older. They cannot be involved in a CPS case as the perpetrator. They have to be free from addiction for at least a year and cannot have any mental impairments that would keep them from working. Almost 100% of the women who come to The Gatehouse are experiencing poverty and homelessness. They receive a fully furnished apartment, with a stocked refrigerator. The Gatehouse strives to show their members dignity and excellence. The Gatehouse closes broken doors and opens new doors of hope and restoration for the women they serve. In Roll-in 2, women of The Gatehouse share their stories. Lisa says at every phase throughout the program, budgeting is taught through financial literacy classes and certified financial planners, so that when their members leave their debt is resolved and they have a savings account. The children are enrolled in the student enrichment program and are offered professional counseling. The Gatehouse provides opportunities in STEAM, summer camps, basketball tickets, stock show tickets, and more. Lisa says, most women who come to The Gatehouse are unemployed or under employed. They visit the grocery store with a meal ticket for them and their kids. The Gatehouse has great food suppliers. Keeps Boutique is an onsite clothing store where women and kids can go for new clothes. They cloth the women for court dates, job interviews, and everyday life. Roll-in 3 is about women finding hope in The Gatehouse. The staff at The Gatehouse wants women to know that they are loved, valued, and God has a plan for their lives. They are instilling this value in their members in every step of the program. Once a month, they offer a nondenominational praise and worship service in their chapel. For Sunday services, they want the women to go out to find their own churches because they want them to integrate themselves into the community while they're at The Gatehouse, so that they will already have relationships established when they graduate from The Gatehouse.

Katie Huch opens the show. A ministry centered around Christ, Love, Wellness, and Relationship Building can be summed up in two words: Jesus House. Their mission is to transform lives by supporting and encouraging people who are facing adversity. They provide refuge, meals, and spiritual support to the homeless and broken lives of Oklahoma City. In Roll-in 1, Men and Women share their Stories. Dolly Velasquez sits down with Michael Bateman, Executive Director of Jesus House. The issues confronting Oklahoma City are homelessness, addiction, and mental illness, so Jesus House strives to tackle these areas. Their mission is to transform lives impacted by mental illness, homelessness, and addiction through their faith based programs by providing a place for wellness, recovery, and spiritual growth. The Jesus House food basket outreach distributes hundreds of shopping carts loaded with essential grocery items to low income households each week. They also provide hundreds of articles of clothing and household items to people in need every week. The Jesus House street ministry outreach delivers a hot, fresh breakfast each week to the unsheltered homeless where they are on the street with fellowship and encouragement. They offer a Life Transformation Program and are challenging people the moment they commit to being a part of the Jesus House. Katie Huch pitches to Roll-in 2. The Life Transformation Program was developed to meet the needs in the lives of people and the world today. It's a ten to twelve month recovery program. The members meet with a case manager to set goals throughout the program. Jesus House challenges them through work therapy, volunteer opportunities, community involvement, finding a church, and finding a sponsor. Jesus House utilizes all of these tools to help men and women get back out into the community to engage in life. In Roll-in 3, we see some success stories of Jesus House. A Jesus House graduate will leave the program ready to engage in society as a productive citizen using a tool box of skills that Jesus House offers. They are encouraged to come back to serve. Graduates can help men and women build resumes, help with GED classes, and more.

Mike Huckabee talks about immigration and shares a few facts. Of the 12,000 children that have shown up at our border and been placed in protective care, 10,000 of them were separated from their parents, not at the border by way of border patrol, but parents sent them on their own to our border by way of traffickers, paid escorts, and others, to make the journey of hundreds or even thousands of miles unaccompanied by their parents. The reason they were placed in protective care was to keep them out of the hands of human predators and child traffickers who would use them as pawns in the sex slave trade. Since this time last year, there has been a 325% increase in unaccompanied alien children and a 435% increase in family units entering the country illegally. Over the last ten years, there has been a 1,700% increase in asylum claims resulting in an asylum backlog of 600,000 cases because those wishing to get into American have been coached as to what to say to come under the guise of asylum. Most critics offer no solutions. He suggests the following:

1. Media Accuracy. 2. Send illegals back to parents. 3. Churches and faith groups care for displaced children. 4. Clearly defined and enforced border. 5. Congress change the laws. 6. Stop foreign aid to countries sending immigrants.

Host Tori Stamoulis introduces the issue of sexual slavery in the United States, specifically New York City. The city serves as a gateway to sex trafficking of women from all over the world. She introduces an organization called Restore NYC which works with survivors of trafficked victims and how they are working to restore dignity and freedom to those who have been affected. Chris Mueller of Restore NYC shares his insight on the issue and the work of the organization. The issue of trafficking is occurring in a variety of ways such as, exploitation of working at a massage parlor or organized exploitation at a street corner or brothel. The reality is that it is everywhere and occurring daily in our surrounding areas. Every case at Restore NYC is different and unique, but all fit the description of trafficking. One of the identifiers is the fact that the female is being exploited in slave-like conditions, and the second is that the person is being forced to sexual services. Another common factor is that someone may be exploiting the victim's documentation and using trafficking as a way to control them. Other signs may be physical or mental abuse to the individual. Other signs are individuals who are working but not being paid. According to statistics, there are currently 40 million people who are suffering in slave-like conditions today. Here in the U.S., there are 18,000 foreign nationals who are trafficked into the United States each year. Fortunately, we are seeing that there are more organizations/law enforcement officers/ministries that are seeking to respond to this crisis and help those individuals involved. Restore NYC knows firsthand the importance of creating a safe space for individuals who are seeking shelter. Another common identifier to sex trafficked victims is the fact that most of them are foreigners actively seeking out work. Often work is something that is exploited into something that attracts the victims. Restore seeks to help those individuals by giving them a safe environment and leading them to safe work environments. Since 2009, Restore NYC has served women with over 51 nationalities. Restore works at accommodating help and treatment according to the victim's cultural beliefs and set of values. By 2020, their goal is to serve about 1,000 each year. A lot of the women that are served are put into safe homes and are actively working, while getting the proper care that they need. This organization is centered on the gospel and Jesus being the ultimate Savior for all slavery. Restore NYC is actively seeking volunteers.

JC Recovery House started in 2013. JC came from John Cascone who left financial support to help people. Steve Boyarsky (Founder and Director) was lost to drugs and a recovering addict. His grandfather wanted him to make a difference. The ministry's goal is to help people get off drugs and alcohol and to form a relationship with Jesus Christ. JC Recovery House takes the biblical and 12 steps and combines them. They take anyone who needs help, introduces them to the 12 Steps, and to the Lord. Recovery bible study is a combination of meeting, songs, worship, preaching, and Bible. It's not about feeding the men religion, it's for them to stop drinking and drugging. There's a scheduled design so they have something to do every night like when they were getting high. You substitute the old behavior with something that'll change their way of thinking. God is enough! It's a joy and honor to live each day for the Lord and HE reminds us how much we need HIM daily. Turn the will over to HIM instead of everything else. The drug and opioid crisis is real, so is God. Problems are big, so is God.

Lance Lang, Founder of "Hope Is Alive" has devoted his life to inspiring hope in those suffering from addiction. He shares his own journey from addiction to brokenness to freedom. He founded Hope Is Alive in October of 2012. Today, HIA has eight homes filled with men and women who are working to restore their lives. On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, shows us a home affected by alcoholism and how it impacted a family. Alcoholism has crept into many homes over the years. The pattern of the social drinker turning into an alcoholic has affected many lives to the point that entire families have experienced the pain that comes along with this vicious cycle. Children are among the most damaged by alcoholism. Statistics show that an estimated 6.6 million children live in a household with at least one alcoholic parent. Many of these children develop emotional issues such as guilt, anxiety, anger, and depression. Some often have difficulty building relationships with others, make decisions which lead to violence and crime, and for many, they end up following in the footsteps of their parents. It's a very sad cycle that many families cannot break for generations. However, this family was transformed by the power of Jesus Christ. He's able to change you and your entire family, as well.

On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, let's us hear real life stories of people who overcame one the most prominent issues that the world is facing today, heroin and meth amphetamine abuse. The use of heroin and meth has taken control of so many lives. It has been reported that an estimated 4.2 million people over the age of 12 have used heroin while 23% of these people become dependent on it. Sadly, more than 50% of all heroin related deaths are people between the ages of 15 and 35. When it comes to meth, an alarming 13 million people over the age of 12 have used meth in the United States alone. Many of these people never live a normal life again, battling with liver, kidney, and lung damage, depression, permanent brain and heart damage, and sometimes even death. Today's society considers it a hopeless case, but that's not necessarily true. In Victory Outreach we believe that no person is too far gone that God can't reach and change their lives.

Host Birga Alden interviews Mary LeQuieu, Executive Director, of Care Net Pregnancy Centers of Albuquerque to discuss teen pregnancy. Restraints have been put on pregnancy centers for advertising their services. Outside their centers, they have to have information which tells people where to go to get government funded abortions. At Care Net, they tell people that that is a legal option, but their approach is that before you make any kind of decision, you need to know what those options look like and what the risks associated look like. Approximately seventy percent of all people seeking an abortion are attending church fairly regularly. About nine percent of the women in a recent study who have had abortions said that the church actually provided for paying for their abortion and encouraged them to have an abortion. Parents love their teenagers, but they don't trust God enough to deal with this situation. When fear enters in and takes over they're looking for a way out. Even if they are strongly pro-life, strongly evangelical, there is a great temptation to sort of salvage the situation, and abortion seems like the easy way out. If pastors are going to ignore it from the pulpit, if youth pastors are not willing to talk about sexual integrity to their teenagers, we will continue to have this problem. Care Net Pregnancy Centers are located in Albuquerque, Rio Rancho, Los Lunas, and Moriarty. Their state of the art medical mobile units offer support at campuses and events, taking services where they are needed and bringing medical services to communities throughout New Mexico. Their life skills training program, called "Earn While You Learn," engages fathers and teaches both parents to overcome the obstacles in their lives. Care Net helps teenagers in every way possible. They do an assessment of their needs to identify their issues, then help them find solutions to those issues. They do a lot to help teenagers delay sexual activity but choose life. There are six training courses each year for new volunteers.

In 1989, the Lord put in Jean Caceres Heart to start a ministry called His House. The home took care of abused, neglected and abandoned children. 29 years later His House has cared for over 14,000 children. Initially when the kids go in they are offered the physical comforts; a warm bed, food in their belly, clean clothes and toys to play with. That's the first level of trust. They receive medical, dental, a mental health evaluation. They're enrolled in school and keep as much of a normal environment in unfortunately abnormal situations. Volunteers serve a huge purpose by essentially filling in the gaps. There's 220 beds. 6 of those are for foster children removed from their homes due to abuse. 126 beds are for internationals who cross the border looking for a better life. 120 kids are turned away monthly because there are not enough beds. Kids can stay a week or up to 5 years. The most rewarding feeling is seeing a family reunited, or find their forever home through adoption or foster care. You get twice as much as you give. It's a hopeful time.

Young people spend more time on social media and devices than they do sleeping. During that time, they are being influenced by a worldview that is opposed to the Biblical worldview. They see negative behaviors glorified in media, yet also the hypocrisy that comes from these behaviors. It is not enough to expect a child to become an adult and hold a strong biblical worldview when they spend countless hours in school and influenced by culture every week and only 2 hours in church. The Refuge Youth Center provides a safe and fun place to engage with kids outside of the church. They are open 6 days a week and teach kids a Biblical worldview. Their program, "A Better Me A Better Tomorrow" gives the kids points for engaging in social activities, working, going on outreaches, and other community involvement. The points can be redeemed for special trips. They also have kids worship services, an indoor skate park, art room, auto shop, and game room. The kids are mentored by other adults that teach them a Biblical worldview.

Both he and his wife had a great concern for the surrounding area since they moved. They have seen a great deal of distress, murders, gang violence, drug, prostitution. This area of West Brighton, often nicknamed "Bloody Brighton" had once held the second highest murder rate in New York City. This is the area and mission field the Biedel's felt called to, and they have never left. Urban Hope is an outreach attached to New Hope Church. Biedel explains that when they first moved in the murders spiked, and reached an all-time high. The shooting and violence happen too regularly and have caused trauma for the children affected. Their outreach ministry has a purpose to provide a sanctuary for the inner-city children. Each week, Urban Hope provides a home-cooked meal Friday night to the kids in the area with a devotional. On today's episode of Treasures, Sonny Arguinzoni, Founder of Victory Outreach International, shows us the lives of a few people who suffer from child abuse and how God was able to heal all of their wounds. The harsh reality is that one in every five girls, and one in every 20 boys, are victims of child abuse. Many of these abused children grow up with psychological complexes and a poor self-image. More and more we see the news and hear how dangerous it is for our children. They are not even safe in their own schools. Psalms 147:3 says "He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds." What seems impossible to men is possible for God. Society says there is no hope for any of these innocent victims. But God not only heals the physical sickness and disease, but God can heal the heart and the mind and the emotions.
