WMCA radio on a continuing basis seeks to stay informed regarding the issues, problems and needs of its service area. This is accomplished in part through meetings with prominent and informed leaders in the community. WMCA also utilizes informal contacts with community leaders and general media sources outside of our organization (i.e. TV, radio and print media), WMCA management, through membership in civic and charitable organizations maintains active involvement dealing with problems and issues confronting our community. Information is also obtained through general issue-oriented material sent to the station and to station personnel. In this report, WMCA will list the issues it has determined to be of major local concern and will list some of the programming avenues taken to address those issues.

Monday, October 12, 2020	5:29:47 PM SNN Editorial	In the early twentieth century, liberal justices on the Supreme Court began to argue for what they called a "living Constitution." They meant that the Constitution had to be understood as a document that judges must make relevant for their own times. This is how they came up with a supposedly constitutional right to abortion, for example. Conservative justices are "originalists," meaning they read the Constitution as it was written, in its original meaning. If the judges get to make up new meanings of the Constitution and essentially legislate, we are ruled by judges, not by law.
