November 19, 2023

8:00 AM

15 Minutes

David O'Leary talks with Dr. Erin Fletcher, who has a decade of experience in veteran mental health care at Wounded Warrior Project, currently serves as director of Warrior Care Network: a partnership between Wounded Warrior Project and four world-famous treatment facilities helping advance treatment and research for invisible wounds of war. He also talks with Tonya Oxendine, who served 30 years in the U.S. Army, reaching the high rank of Command Sergeant Major. After service, she struggled with depression, isolation, and PTSD. It led her to nearly drive off a bridge in an attempted suicide. Tonya used her last ounce of strength to seek help and is now thriving. She credits the care and support she received from Wounded Warrior Project programs for her recovery; she's taken part in Warrior Care Network, Project Odyssey, and WWP Talk.
