COME JOIN US FOR OUR 37th ANNUAL OREGON HIGH DESERT SWAP MEET and CAR SHOW + Antiques in Redmond Oregon.

Saturday September 11, 2021 Always the first Saturday after Labor Day!
Time 7AM – 3:30PM

Deschutes County Fairgrounds and Expo Center
3800 SW Airport Way
Redmond, Or 97756

We will be following all state and county Covid guidelines.

This year's Oregon High Desert Swap Meet, Car Show and Antiques will be following all State and Deschutes County current Covid restrictions. Also, there will be no inside selling spaces available this year.

This is the Largest One Day Automobile and Antique event east of the Cascades with vendors featuring new, used and reproduction car parts of all kinds. If you are looking for that hard to find part to finish your project, it just might be here.

We have a Special, ANTIQUES and COLLECTIBLE section with indoors and outdoors spaces, with many dealers from the Pacific Northwest. We will not have the indoor building this year due to Covid and fair board. But there will be plenty of out door spaces for antiques.

There is a Car Corral for those looking for their next cool ride.

The clubs helping put on this event are the Central Oregon Old Car Club and The High Desert A's and non-affiliated members

Also, for the benefit of people that want to drive their custom, muscle car, antique car to the swap meet, there is a Car Show for PRE 1979 vehicles in a roped off area you can show them in. This is a non-judged no trophy car show, just good ole fun. Dash plaques available while supplies last.

This a family friendly event with food vendors when you get hungry.

Spectators are always FREE, and parking is always FREE. Spaces fill up fast. Call or email Butch and reserve your space today! Multiple spaces together, no problem, but early reservations will make this much easier. Also, let Butch know what you are selling for easier placement.

Also, if you have a hard to park trailer or rig that you want in the swap meet, tell Butch about this. It will make it much easier when you arrive to set up. Also, tell Butch what you are selling so he can help you select the best spaces to sell from.

This is a Family Friendly, Automobile and Antique collectible swap meet only. Please no inappropriate material.

The Central Oregon Antique Engine and Tractor Assoc. will have on display their historical Hit and Miss engines for everyone to watch, ask questions and enjoy. This was a hit last year.

600 spaces available on fairgrounds.
Outside spaces 20' x 15' - $40.00 per space
Set up begins at 3:00 pm Friday.

Please visit the website <http://coocc.net/swapmeet.htm> for additional information, flier and registration form.

How to Help Wildlife in Oregon’s Wildfires and Heat Waves

Bend, Oregon— Extreme heat and wildfires throughout the state of Oregon have a lot of people wondering how wildlife is affected. Bend Wildlife Hospital and Conservation Center, Think Wild, hasn’t seen any injured or orphaned wildlife patients due to the fires yet, but during the heat wave their hotline was flooded with calls about birds fleeing their nests.

Oregon’s native species are adapted to reacting to fires, but that doesn't mean that many won't suffer or lose their lives. The fires will cause immediate habitat loss and potential die-offs, and they change ecosystem structure for years to come. Some species that depend on mature forests - tree cavity-nesting owls, for example - may experience population reductions while those that thrive in young forests, like songbirds and burrowing mammals, may increase.

In the short term, with the severity and scale of the recent wildfires, wildlife may be more likely to enter urban areas and exhibit unusual behavior while fleeing the smoke and fire. They will also be in search of food resources, which will be significantly depleted in the immediate aftermath of the fire. Long term, Think Wild expects an increase in orphaned, injured, and especially starving wildlife.

“Wildlife are going to be terrified and may be traveling through your property fleeing fire and looking for food and water,” said Pauline Baker, Director of Wildlife Rehabilitation at Think Wild. “Do not panic or approach these animals but monitor at a safe distance. You can leave out fresh, cold water for them if you want to help. If you are concerned about an injury, please contact your local wildlife rehabilitation center.”

Wildlife hospitals across Oregon were inundated with calls related to the heat wave that set record temperatures in the Pacific Northwest at the end of June. Some rescue centers, including Chintimini Wildlife Center, closed early in the season due to capacity restraints.

While not currently receiving any wildfire-specific calls – Think Wild expects cases to significantly increase as ecosystem changes take effect and as people enter back into affected areas and are more likely to come across wildlife in need of help. The non-profit wildlife hospital has already treated over 385 patients and responded to a thousand calls this summer.

Here are tangible ways that you can help native wildlife and your local wildlife hospitals:

- Do not leave food out or feed wildlife. If you have a bird feeder, clean it often. You can leave water out away from your house as long as you change it often.
- Keep dogs and cats indoors as much as possible during times of hazardous air quality. This will protect them and also prevent cat and dog-caught related injuries to small animals and babies that may be moving about or seeking refuge.
- Make sure water features on your property, such as irrigation ponds, provide an exit strategy for wildlife to climb out. Rocks, rope and logs are helpful additions to prevent wildlife from drowning.
- Do not approach wildlife. Call your local wildlife hospital if you find injured or orphaned wildlife or if you see wildlife behaving strangely and are uncertain of how to proceed.
- If you find an animal that has been burnt and are waiting to get in contact with a wildlife hospital or vet, do not feed it. Wrap it loosely in 100% cotton and place it in a well-ventilated box in a dark and quiet place.
- Be conscious of your water usage. Try to minimize water use, especially during droughts, the hot, dry summer months and wildfire season.
- Pay attention to burning restrictions, especially when traveling to another location. Stay educated on potential fire hazards - small, contained fires can become disastrous very quickly.
- Your local wildlife hospital could always use more donations and supplies. Most wildlife hospitals (including Think Wild) receive little to no government funding and rely on individual in-kind and cash donations. Hosting a fundraiser for your local wildlife hospital at your business, through social media, in your network is a great way to show support.

This list is non-exhaustive, but we hope that you find it helpful. If you ever have any questions, Think Wild's wildlife hotline, (541) 241-8680, is available seven days a week from 8 AM to 5 PM. Think Wild is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, and tax-deductible donations can be made at www.thinkwildco.org/donate or mailed to PO Box 5093 Bend, OR 97708.

Heller Highwater

Wed., July 14 - 6 p.m.

Heller Highwater Band is all about the groove and lead and vocal harmonies. From The Rolling Stones, Adele, Jason Maraz, to Country and blues. We try to play a little bit for everybody. We love to get folks dancing! Heather Drakulich lead vocalist, John Luce, vocals and bass, Tom Brouillette, lead guitar and vocals, Lance Van Buren, vocals and drums

Erin Cole-Baker

Wed., August 11 - 6 p.m.

Erin Cole-Baker was born in the USA and raised in the beach filled rural Northland of New Zealand. Her songwriting and live delivery comes from a place of great honesty and beauty, lead by her gorgeous silvery voice and extraordinary sense of melody. Erins' songs are deep, gritty reflections on being human, guided by rich velvety vocals on both electric and acoustic guitars.

Juju Eyeball

Wed., Aug. 25 - 6 p.m.

JUJU EYEBALL is a Beatles cover band formed in 2015 in Bend, OR. They are dedicated to bringing the Fab Four's classic songs back to life—in all their original rock power. The 4 members of the band (2 guitars, keyboards, bass, and drums) all sing lead and harmonies to perfection. They are versatile enough to play beautiful ballads like Something and Yesterday, rock hard on Back in the USSR and Revolution, bring the Summer of Love back to life with Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds and A Day in the Life, and get the whole crowd up and dancing to the early hits like She Loves You and Can't Buy Me Love.

Hokulea Dancers

Wed., Sept. 8 - 6 p.m.

Redmond's very own traditional Hawaiian Dancers are back and are always a crowd favorite! This high energy troop will showcase traditional Hawaiian Island dance and drumming. Lead by Hawaiian Natives Novelen and Joey Tavita, they bring a true taste of the Islands with many generations of their family and friends. Come join us as we say Aloha to summer in the true Hawaiian style.

Along with free musical entertainment, Music on the Green will feature a variety of food, art and craft vendors in booths throughout the Deschutes County Fair & Expo Center. Kids and adults alike will love the bounce houses on site as well as games and activities provided by vendors.
