WODC
Quarterly Issues/Programs List

WODC provides its listeners with programming and public service announcements that address issues of concern to our local community. Among the issues determined to be of most concern to the community during the preceding calendar quarter were:

- 9/11: 17 Years Later - A Call For Action: In this special iHeartRadio presentation hosted by Shelli Sonstein, two families told how they turned their personal tragedies into promoting good work and service: The Tunnel To Towers Foundation and the 9/11 Day of Service. Also included, how many people continue to fall ill and die from 9/11 toxins, anyone who was there up to 8 months after 9/11.
- Brain health: Staff members from the Alzheimer's Association discussed ways to help find cures faster such as joining the Brain Health Registry, which is a free and secure online study.
- Cancer treatment update: Officials from the Ohio State University James Cancer Center discussed advanced radiation treatment, which includes proton therapy. They said the therapy treats the tumor directly and spares healthy tissue, resulting in fewer side effects.
- Diabetes management: Gerald Johnson of the American Diabetes Association talked about how Certified Diabetes Educators can help simplify life and offer information about diabetes, which he said is a complex and often overwhelming disease.
- Disability income protection: Officials from the Ohio Insurance Institute discussed full-time workers who are also primary wage earners. They said that two-thirds of unmarried full-time workers are concerned about having enough money to pay bills during a period of sudden income loss. They discussed disability income benefits that will help.
- Eye health: Staff members from the Ohio Optometric Association talked about important steps to protect your sight, such as getting a dilated eye exam. They also discussed living a healthy lifestyle, eating right, managing chronic conditions and not smoking.
- Fire safety: Officials from the American Red Cross talked about the high number of local residential fires this year, and how we can all take a few simple steps that can help keep us out of those statistics.
- Health and children's sports: Chelsea Kaufman, Assistant Coordinator for the Ohio Foundation For Chiropractic Research, talked about how cheer leading has been rated the most dangerous sport for women. She said cheer leading may look like fun, but it actually involves an incredible amount of stress on your body.

- Heart health: Kelsey Smith of the American Heart Association discussed treatments for heart arrhythmia, a life-threatening condition that affects thousands of people in Ohio. She said if left untreated, it can lead to sudden cardiac death, which she said kills an estimated 300,000 people across the country each year.
- Military dogs: Volunteers from Ability One, a non-profit agency providing protective gear for dogs of military families, talked about their help efforts. They said that military working dogs save lives in many ways, including tracking troops and sniffing out explosives.
- Premature birth research: Elizabeth Moore, Development Director for the Central Ohio March of Dimes, discussed the programs and services aimed at women to help prevent pre-term birth.
- Safe driving: Allison Weller of the Ohio Safety Council talked about the recent uptick in distracted driving accidents and steps we can all take to create awareness and promote prevention.
- School safety: Officials from the Ohio Education Association talked about how teachers, parents and lawmakers have a responsibility to see that each student is safe, supported and challenged in school.
- Workplace bullying: Dr. Colleen Logan, Program Director for the Ohio Career Counseling program, said that workers are discovering a problem that's bad for morale, bad for their own health and happiness and bad for their bottom line. She said it is workplace bullying, which is more common than many realize. She discussed help lines and counseling that can help in prevention.
