Issue One: Court Appointed Special Advocate – Texas Association of Broadcasters

Every year, thousands of children in Texas are removed from their homes because of evidence of abuse and neglect. They are uprooted from the only family they've known, taken out of schools and away from friends. In short, their worlds are turned upside down. Going through the child welfare system is a scary process and no child should do it alone. Texas Court Appointed Special Advocates and its 69 local programs of the Texas CASA network work to ensure every child who needs an advocate to speak for his or her best interests before the court has a caring, trained adult to help with this difficult period. KHOY aired radio announcements informing the community of the above mentioned and the need for adult CASA volunteers.
