FAMILY LIFE	Family Life Blended	July 6	6:24 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Drop It and Let It Go. Avoiding just postpones conflict, it doesn’t resolve it. I’m suggesting that not everything is worth a conflict. Not everything is a hill to die on especially if your marriage or family is already stressed. If you can be generous with mercy, let it go.
FAMILY LIFE	Family Life Blended	July 9	6:24 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – A Caution About Ambition. Relying on yourself is a subtle act of being independent of God; becoming your own god and that’s pride. That’s why David in Psalm 131 cautions us about ambition. “I have calmed and quieted my ambition,” he says. The better option? David encourages us to trust God and be content with what he provides.
FAMILY LIFE	Family Life Blended	July 14	6:24 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Good News for Christian Marriage. The argument that the divorce rate for Christian marriages is the same as for non-Christians is just not true. Those who live the gospel within their marriage and family are happier and healthier than those who don’t.

FAMILY LIFE	Family Life Blended	July 20	6:24 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Speak With the Wisdom of God. Words can push people away or invite them closer. Harsh or critical words will result in people moving away but compassionate, insightful words draw them closer. Of course, foolish people are double trouble. They have a “closed mind” and an “open mouth” but according to Proverbs 18 wise words are like fresh water from a fountain that just keeps coming. Where do you get wise words? Study God’s word and commit it to heart and you will speak and influence others with the wisdom of God.
FAMILY LIFE	Family Life Blended	July 21	6:24 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – When Forgiveness is Rejected. Normally forgiveness brings restoration. FAMILY LIFE	Family Life Blended	July 22	6:24 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Mock the Poor, Insult God (Proverbs 17). Are you so bold as to insult God? My guess is, no, you wouldn’t knowingly insult God. But according to the Bible, when you mock the poor, you insult their Maker. If you make a sarcastic remark about a homeless person you make your faith less attractive. You may have given your last ten dollars to a homeless person down the street but at the next corner, take kindness out of your wallet. You always have that to give.

Laughter needs to be a welcome member in our home. Heaven is the birth place of laughter. As moms and dads we shouldn’t get too busy to have fun or become so goal orientated that we think members of our family are simply in the way.

FAMILY LIFE	Family Life Blended	July 28	6:24 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – The Art of Listening. The old adage about two ears and one mouth allows us to listen twice as much as we talk. Listening needs to be taught more. There is an art of listening to deepen the intimacy of any relationship and improve your parenting, but like so many other things it takes work to understand, acknowledge and give consideration to other people. Lots of people want to talk and be heard, but to increase your emotional intelligence and strengthen your relationships, learn to listen well; really, really well.

It might not feel natural at first, but the more practice the better the world.

Character says you can count on me to do what's right at any cost. Use questions to determine if we're honest in small things; do people have to constantly remind me to get things done; when promises are made do children believe you; do I habitually forget to follow through. TEENS	Family Life Blended	July 16	6:24 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Two Lips Walk Into a Fight. A mistake parents and stepparents make with teens: when you're irritated with them and immediately launch into a lecture with the assumption that you know what's motivating them. How much better to pause, take a deep breath, and ask a question about what's going on behind the scenes. Listen first; get the story. And then if it's appropriate, you can always come back to the lecture.

TEENS	Parenting Today's Teens	July 16	8:24 a 6:24 p	60 sec	FM	Mark Gregston – Fashion doesn't matter that much to adults until it crosses the line. Some parents try to micro manage but clarify and draw the line when it comes to modesty for your daughters. Allow for a little freedom of expression these experts desperately want in fashion with clarity and guidance.
TEENS	Parenting Today's Teens	July 22	8:24 a 6:24 p	60 sec	FM	Mark Gregston – Teens today feel a sense of entitlement. They want more, demand more, and expect more than any other generation I know. Dr. Tim Kimmel put it this way, the problem with kids brought up in our typical middle-class home is they are born on third-base but under the delusion they hit a triple. It is this platform of unbridled entitlement that causes young people to remain immature and treat people disrespectfully. They are refusing to grow up. Sadly moms and dads often foster this attitude. There is nothing wrong with wanting to give your child things but consider how withholding privileges might teach your child much more than hitting a grand slam.
TEENS	Parenting Today's Teens	July 23	8:24 a 6:24 p	60 sec	FM	Mark Gregston – In your home and mind respect is a key issue, because relationships won't be healthy unless there is mutual respect. Disrespectful comments are the norm in some households. Apologizing and admitting you've done wrong need to come into the equation. Call for a family dinner and announce that you're making some changes and expect the same effort from yourself as from your teen. You might be surprised at the outcome.
TEENS	Parenting Today's Teens	July 27	8:24 a 6:24 p	60 sec	FM	Mark Gregston – Teen anger is an emotional response to not getting what you want. Anger is an obstacle to healthy relationships but can sometimes be the first step in the right direction to transformation. Being disrespectful and physically aggressive is wrong but you can look beyond the symptoms to what's really going on in the child's heart. Don't rescue your teen from anger but help them find the source.
TEENS	Parenting Today's Teens	Aug 3	8:24 a 6:24 p	60 sec	FM	Mark Gregston – Parents need to spend less time trying to controlling their teen and more time developing responsibility and maturity. Some people spend years trying to control but eventually lose control and ruin their relationship or the parent becomes unhealthy attached and unwilling to detach. In order to become a healthy adult, your teens have to exercise skills to become independent from mom and dad. Parents have the power to build that environment and learn the skills of letting go.
TEENS	Parenting Today's Teens	Aug 5	8:24 a 6:24 p	60 sec	FM	Mark Gregston – Parents often become frustrated by their teens lack of communication. He suggests starting with open ended questions. Don't jump in with the answer or belittle when a wacky response is heard. Try out having fun with your teen. Engage them in conversation.
