Viewpoints

SYNOPSIS: There's a lot of "conventional wisdom" surrounding sports, especially football: defense wins championships; a team's momentum going into the play-offs will clinch a berth; icing a kicker will put him off his game; a first-round draft pick is always the most valuable to a team. Sportscasters love to discuss these situations during breaks in the action, but is there any truth to them? We talk to an economist and data analyst about how these tactics really play into a victory or loss.

Host: Christopher Michael. Guests: Tobias J. Moskowitz, Prof. of Finance, Booth School of Business, University of Chicago, co-author of "Scorecasting: The hidden influences behind how sports are played and games are won" (www.scorecasting.com).

We talk to a psychologist who specializes in the area of psychopathy and social behavior about the issue.

Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Dr. Jennifer Skeem, Prof. of Psychology and Social Behavior, University of California, Irvine, co-author of the study, "Psychopathic Personality: Bridging the Gap Between Scientific Evidence and Public Policy," (www.psychologicalscience.org).

Description of Program, Guest, Organization, Subject Matter:

Lots of children look forward to the New Year to celebrate with fireworks. This can be a dangerous time for burns, fires and injuries. Fireworks must be used with great care if at all and certainly under adult supervision. Our guest today discusses the matter. She's Cynthia Fryer with SAFE KIDS. She says the best advice is to go to organized events to celebrate with such, Don't allow young children to play with fire-works under any circumstances. Sparklers, considered by many to be the ideal "safe" firework for the young, burn at very high temperatures and can easily ignite clothing. Children cannot understand the danger involved with fireworks and may not act appropriately in case of emergency. Keep a bucket of water nearby for emergencies and for pouring on fireworks that fail to ignite or explode. And be sure to observe local laws.

Description of Program, Guest, Organization, Subject Matter:

Today's guest is Winn Freeman, Executive Director and Founder of Wisdom In Living Life Ministries. Freeman is better known in the area as the "drug guy." He was addicted to a number of street drugs including Herion and was given a near zero chance of having a productive life. He started on the path to recovery thru faith and is now leading others to the REAL answer to life after drugs.
