MATT WINSLOWCNC MACHINING INSTRUCTORWe can't get nearly enough students through the programs to meet the employer demand. CNC Machining has a 95% job placement rate, and Diesel is at 98%. Both programs accept students as early as their high school junior or senior years (tuition free while in high school), and have transfer options with other higher education schools such as Weber State University, LDS Business College and Utah State University (up to 30 credit hours or half an Associate degree). Both programs can be completed in a year or less. They are self-paced with flexible scheduling options, so an adult student can move through the programs quickly while working a day job. ABOUT THE PROGRAM:Students enrolled in the CNC Machining program will utilize industry standard tools, equipment, and procedures as entry-level machinists. Students will study blueprint reading, sketching, part design, CNC operation, and CNC programming. The program offers training in lathe, mill, and drill press, as well as related skills in math, use of precision measuring tools, and mechanical inspection methods to produce precision parts with extremely close tolerances. Students are provided a learning environment similar to what they will encounter in small machining shops, as well as large manufacturing firms throughout the country.

JUST FOR BACKGROUND INFOThe world's new record holder for the most expensive cup of coffee will soon be available at one roasting company in San Francisco. Klatch Coffee Roasters has one location in the Bay Area and several locations in Southern California. Together, they'll be splitting 10-pounds of the super exclusive Elida Geisha 803 which costs $803 a pound wholesale. After roasting, it's closer to $1,200 a pound.Co-owner of Klatch's Northern California location is Bo Thiara. His excitement in describing the exclusivity and quality of the Elida Geisha 803 is palpable."It's a unique coffee that comes from Panama. It's by far better than any of the coffee you hear about that comes from animals."Thiara is describing the Kopi Luwak variety of coffee, made from cat-like mammals that are fed the beans and then pooped out, which to many is considered more a fad than specialty that attributes to the coffee's taste.Thiara believes this market is ready for $75 Panamanian coffee."San Francisco is one of those places where people appreciate fine stuff!"If that's the case, Klatch Coffee's latest offering is the finest of the fine, at least according to Best of Panama competition."It's the Oscars for coffee! Just like wine, on a scale of up to 100 this coffee got the highest rating ever!" exclaims Thiara.The Elida Geisha 803 was auctioned off to buyers all over the world. Out of an available 100-pounds, Klatch roasters owns the only 10-pounds in the entire United States. Do the math and that's just 80 cups across the entire United States, split between San Francisco and LA.
