

Re: FCC Public File\Video Programming\ Operator Interest in Video Programming

FCC rules (47 CFR 76.1710) require cable operators to maintain records in their public files for a period of 3 years regarding the nature and extent of their attributable interests in all video programming services as well as information regarding carriage of such vertically integrated video programming services on cable systems in which they have an attributable interest.

Suddenlink does not have any attributable interest in video programming services.

Please maintain this memo in your public files until notified of any changes.
