TECHNOTAINMENT Monday, January 10

Remember the first home entertainment systems? The big, clunky awkward looking units which required a second mortgage to purchase. Like everything else, today's technology has resulted in a streamlined product which is not only much smaller but much cheaper. First Business Correspondent John Vincent looks at the hottest new home entertainment systems, the new video games that can be adapted to your computer and the fiercest boxing game ever introduced in his weekly report on the marriage of technology and entertainment.

HEALTHCARE UPDATE Tuesday, January 11

The House of Representatives returns from its holiday winter break to a full agenda, and healthcare is at the top of the list. Confidentiality of records, healthcare costs and Medicare are just some of the issues Congress will address. First Business Correspondent Dan Kush takes a look at how Congress will try to prescribe the nation's healthcare future.

WORLD BOOM AHEAD Wednesday, January 12

For years, the Kiplinger Washington Letter has been one of the most respected financial newsletters in the country. Now, Kiplinger Editor in Chief, Knight Kiplinger, has a new book, which is providing a compelling picture of strong, sustained global economic growth. He'll join us to discuss how American consumers and businesses will benefit from technological advances in third world countries.

HOME WORK Thursday, January 13

.For many Americans, working at home is a dream come true. The commute's a cinch, you don't have to dress up, and snacks are always close at hand. But, as First Business Correspondent Kathy Judisch reports, the advantages of working at home can quickly turn to disadvantages if you're not careful. She'll have advice on staying motivated, avoiding distractions and creating a workable workplace environment.

FRIDAY BOX OFFICE Friday, January 14

Frank McCourt's best selling epic, "Angela's Ashes," makes its big screen debut this weekend. How will McCourt's searing and sentimental memoir of his poverty stricken childhood in Ireland fare against Denzel Washington's "Hurricane?" Who can predict what will happen when a mouse is currently king of the box office? Our own Sara Voorhees will try in her regular Friday view from the aisle.

08:00 - 08:30P COPS "ALBUQUERQUE" (CP-1225) (TV-14)
"JUNGLE JIM" - Officers are flagged down by what appears to be a woman in a leopard leotard. However, they quickly discover that "she" is actually a "he", and he was apparently the victim of a robbery when a male suspect reached into the cab of his semi-truck and stole his wallet. "STREET TWEAKING" - Police stop two female suspects who were spotted arguing in the middle of the street. One claims she was kicked out of her apartment because of the other woman's actions. She is clearly under the influence of some type of narcotic, and is searched by a female officer who finds a small rock of crack as well as a crack pipe. "I FEEL FINE" - Police respond to a reported stabbing that occurred at a nearby apartment complex. The victim is spotted walking down the street with a visible stab wound in his stomach.

08:30 - 09:00P COPS "INDIANAPOLIS" (CP-1210) (R-11/06/1999)
(TV-PG: V)
"BOSTON MURDER" - Police apprehend a male suspect who is believed to be wanted for a pair of Boston murders. "SOLOMON'S WISDOM" - At a local restaurant, a man and woman are arguing about the sale of a car. "BYE BYE JOHNNY" - A man is suspected of beating up his wife outside a restaurant. She is found badly beaten in her apartment but fears for her safety if he's arrested. Officers find the man and arrest him nonetheless, because of her serious injuries.

09:00 - 10:00P AMERICA'S MOST WANTED "CRIMES OF PASSION SPECIAL EDITION" (MW-1322) (TV-PG)
The line between love and hate is extremely thin. People often lash out at those whom they care about the most. This special episode of AMERICA'S MOST WANTED will focus on "crimes of passion" between men and women. Statistics also show that the person who sits across from you at the breakfast table could be the prime suspect in any violent act perpetrated against you. This is why household disturbances have often turned into murder, and why police must have back up before attending any domestic dispute. AMERICA'S MOST WANTED will go after fugitives who have committed the most heinous of these crimes. The special episode will also give insight into why these so-called crimes are so common in today's society

TECHNOTAINMENT Monday, February 21

In most households, the grade schooler is the more adept computer user than the baby boomer. So how do you find computer accessories to keep all members of the family interested and entertained? And with recent news about hackers disabling some of the world's best known Web sites, what should you know about new anti-hacking software? First Business Correspondent checks out the latest in high tech amusement and protection in our weekly technotainment report.

CHINA MFN Tuesday, February 22

A bruising battle is gearing up in Congress as legislators take up the debate about renewing most favored nation trading status with China. Although U.S. exports to China are on the rise, trade is decidedly unbalanced, the U.S. exports $13 billion and imports $82 billion. And continuing concerns about human rights violations in China are sure to create a contentious climate. From Capitol Hill, First Business Correspondent Dan Kush has the fortune for U.S. China trade.

CONVENTION BUSINESS Wednesday, February 23

For some, conventions are viewed simply as opportunities to socialize, play golf and catch some rays. For others, though, attending a convention is a time to hone skills, develop cutting edge tools and strategies and make lasting personal contacts to grow a business. From San Diego and the 40th annual International Franchise Association convention, First Business Anchor Barton Eckert takes a look at this one-of-a-kind gathering and offers some tips on how you can get the most from a convention visit.

TAXMAN COMETH Thursday, February 24

According to an old song, love and marriage go hand in hand with higher taxes. With tax time quickly approaching, married couples everywhere will have to pay for their wedded bliss. First Business Correspondent Magee Hickey has a look at "the marriage tax," and whether or not you could be grooming yourself for an additional tax burden by taking the plunge.

FRIDAY BOX OFFICE Friday, February 25

"I LOVE YOU" - Police respond to a distress call involving a female suspect who is extremely despondent following the recent death of her husband. "ALL TIED UP" - Police respond to a domestic dispute call involving an under-age male suspect who was apparently arguing with his family inside their apartment. At the scene, the bloodied young suspect is found being held down by family members with his arms tied behind his back.

08:30 - 09:00P COPS "INDIANAPOLIS" (CP-1209) (R-10/02/1999) (TV-PG: L)

"PONYTAIL PURSUIT" - Undercover narcotics detectives pursue a male suspect, believed to be in possession of drugs. The suspect, who crashed his car and fled the scene on foot, is finally apprehended. He steadfastly denies any wrongdoing, but the detective finds a packet of rock cocaine which the suspect apparently tossed during the chase. "HEY, NO PARKING" - Police arrive on the scene at an apartment complex where an SUV has crashed through the walls of an apartment tenant's living room. The driver of the truck is found nearby, shaken, and claims that she was in the process of parking the SUV when she turned to the backseat to attend to her crying child and accidentally pressed the gas instead of the brake. Fortunately, no one in the apartment was hurt and police arrange to have the truck removed. "FIREBIRD WITH BUD" - A man seen driving around brandishing a gun is stopped and ordered out of the car along with three companions, one female and two males. In plain view inside the vehicle, the police see a scale and a small bag of marijuana - but no weapon. They are arrested for possession of marijuana.

HOMEOWNER 101 Monday, February 28

The explosion of stores like Home Depot has meant a plethora of weekend warriors wearing tool belts. Although we all try to look like we know our way around the lighting or plumbing aisle, the truth is many of us suffer from hardware store intimidation. The condition is brought on by years of searching for parts that don't exist and following someone else's fix it advice. In the first of his three-part homeowner series, First Business Correspondent Doug Frattallone takes a look at how you can navigate your hardware store like a pro.

SMALL BUSINESS Tuesday, February 29

If you're thinking of selling your small business, there's important news you should be aware of. New legislation could prevent small business owners from using the installment accounting method when selling their businesses, which could have a significant impact on the amount of capital gains taxes paid. First Business Correspondent Dan Kush has a report on what you need to know.

MONEY SENSE Wednesday, March 1

Though technology has completely revolutionized the way we live and work, sometimes the best advice for keeping your financial house in order is what's tried and true. We'll have a look at how to make the most sense out of your dollars and cents.

FRANCHISE BATTLEGROUND Thursday, March 2

Although franchising is still one of the most popular ways for individuals to launch their small business dreams, franchisers and franchisees are increasingly finding themselves under fire. Legislators, both at the national and local level are promising stricter regulatory measures to govern the franchising industry. From the International Franchise Association meeting in San Diego, First Business Anchor Barton Eckert reports.

FRIDAY BOX OFFICE Friday, March 3

It's March madness at the box office this weekend as Madonna, Rupert Everett, Bette Midler, Danny DeVito, Annette Benning and Gary Shandling all weigh in with new offerings. Will the Material Girl's flick be "The Next Best Thing" or will she be given a one-way ticket to outer space? First Business Correspondent Sara Voorhees tells all in our regular Friday view from the aisle.

08:00 - 08:30P COPS "FORT WORTH" (CP-1220) (TV-14: D)
"PICK-UP. STICK-UP" - Police order suspected truck robbers out of the vehicle at gunpoint and take them into custody without incident. "PARK PLACE WHOOPIE" - Police question a man and woman engaging in sexual activity in their car in a city park known for after-hours trouble-makers. Compounding the situation is the fact that a young toddler, the woman's son, is also in the car with the couple. The officer warns them not to engage in sexual activity in front of a child again, or they will be arrested. "GENE WANTED SOME" - A man's van is pulled over after he picked up a female suspect in an area known for prostitution, and the man eventually admits he was intending to solicit prostitution. The woman claims she just wanted a ride, but both are given citations for illicit behavior.

08:30 - 09:00P COPS "FORT WORTH" (CP-1212) (R-11/20/1999) (TV-PG)
"THAT'S DOPE" - Officers sneak up on two male suspects in a drug dealing operation, one in a car and one standing outside. "MISS TILLY" - Officers stop a vehicle for a routine traffic offense. "OUT THE WINDOW" - The occupants of a vehicle being pulled over for speeding, first toss some suspicious items out the passenger window.

09:00 - 10:00P AMERICA'S MOST WANTED (MW-1324) (TV-PG: V)
He's been convicted of ripping off more than $43 million from America's most vulnerable -- the elderly and the disabled. Now he's on the run and about to become one of AMERICA'S MOST WANTED. Slobodon Lunic is a smoothie talker with the ladies and others during his daily activities of ripping them off. His scheme was full-proof and he was even able to convince many unsuspecting people that they would receive money back from the government. Police say his most recent activities include a spending spree which totalled more than $600,000 and the hiring of a hit-man to get rid of anyone who might stand in his way. Police do not know his whereabouts and say that he's likely still ripping off many unsuspecting people.

TECHNOTAINMENT Monday, March 6

Get your wallet ready. There's a whole new slew of hi-tech games and gadgetry on the way. Among the latest offerings, a new handheld computer, a color Palm Pilot and video games that only Junior will be able to explain to the old man. First Business Correspondent John Vincent has a preview of all the toys for techies.

HEALTH HOUSE Tuesday, March 7

The spring promises to be a busy one on Capitol Hill as Congress takes up the healthcare debate and the managed care conference begins work. Action is also expected on the issue of prescription drug benefits for medicare patients and the Patient Bill of Rights. First Business Correspondent Dan Kush takes a pulse on all the Hill healthcare action.

LET IT SNOW Wednesday, March 8

There's no chill in the snowmobiling industry where sales of the fast machines added up to more than $6 billion in North America last year. And, there's no end in sight as the sport continues to grow in popularity. From Minnesota, the headquarters of two of the nation's largest snowmobile manufacturers. First Business Correspondent David Gee blazes some trails in the fast paced business of snowmobiling.

SOCIAL SECURITY Thursday, March 9

It's a 9-digit number you're assigned from birth, but let's be honest, most people don't think much about social security until it's time to start collecting. The upshot: many retirees don't have a complete understanding of their social security benefits and, in some cases, don't receive all the money they're entitled to. First Business Correspondent Magee Hickey has a look at what you should know about securing your financial future.

FRIDAY BOX OFFICE Friday, March 10

Gary Sinise and Tim Robbins hit the big screen this weekend in "Mission to Mars." Will "Mission" knock Garry Shandling's "What Planet Are You From" outerspace? We'll find out as Sara Voorhees gives her wrap on this week's box office report.

TECHNOTAINMENT Monday, March 13

Feeling nostalgic? Take a look at some of the latest high tech video games. All your favorites are back including Scooby, Shaggy, and the gang in a series of digital adventures. The reappearance of the cartoon favorites should dispel any doubt that the video industry is targeting not only the kids but the people controlling the wallets. First Business Correspondent John Vincent reports.

SBA BUDGET Tuesday, March 14

Lawmakers are set to debate a new budget to fund the Small Business Administration through Fiscal Year 2001. How will the agency that has been the champion of the little guy fare in the cutthroat world of Capitol Hill politics? First Business Correspondent Dan Kush reports.

TAX PREP SOFTWARE Wednesday, March 15

As if tax filing wasn't confusing enough, how are you ever supposed to navigate the dozens of tax software programs designed to make life easier? In the first of our two-part reports, First Business Correspondent Lisa Engstrom has advice for their millions of Americans who are using a mouse and not a pencil to fill out their tax returns.

E-RETURN Thursday, March 16

The hi tech revolution has finally infiltrated one of its last strongholds, the Internal Revenue Service. More Americans than ever will file e-returns this year, but will Internet filers find it easier and quicker to send in their returns online? And do online filers stand a greater risk of being audited than their low tech counterparts? First Business Correspondent Lisa Engstrom reports.

Hollywood's "pretty woman," Julia Roberts, opens this weekend in a decidedly unglamorous role. Will audiences line up to see Roberts investigate hazardous waste as muckraking vigilante Erin Brokovich? First Business Correspondent Sara Voorhees tells all in our regular Friday view from the aisle.

Saturday, March 18, 2000

08:00 - 08:30P COPS "FORT WORTH" (CP-1221) (TV-14)
"PUKING PASSENGER" - After a lengthy pursuit of a stolen car containing three male suspects, they bale out and the passengers are finally located and arrested. Unfortunately, the police are unable to find the driver. "JEAN AIN'T RIGHT" - A known prostitute is stopped after suspiciously walking in and out of the road. She admits she smoked crack cocaine earlier in the day and her erratic behavior seems to certainly confirm that fact. She says she has nine children and agrees with the officer that her "profession" is probably not the best parental example. "TRAILER PARK RUMBLE" - At a domestic violence call at a trailer park, a female witness explains her female neighbor had been beaten up again by her husband.

08:30 - 09:00P COPS "INDIANAPOLIS" (CP-1203) (RR-09/25/1999, 01/22/2000) (TV-14: V)
"HE GOT WORKED" Indianapolis Police Officer Robert Cook investigates an attempted robbery in a parking lot. "MY VCR" Indianapolis Police Officers respond to a domestic dispute at a local residence. At the scene, they learn that the female (black) victim's ex-husband (black) came to her home and started a dispute over a VCR. "COME AND GET IT" The Indianapolis Police Department sets up a reverse-sting operation designed to nab suspects trying to pick up prostitutes.

TECHNOTAINMENT Monday, March 20

If you thought 3D movie glasses left town with the Eisenhower Administration, think again. 3D technology is making a comeback. Computer game manufacturers are now selling the funny looking glasses as companion pieces to some of the hottest selling games to transform a standard computer screen into a complete 3D experience. In this week's Technotainment report, First Business Correspondent John Vincent puts on his shades.

CHINA TRADE STATUS Tuesday, March 21

The House of Representatives is debating most favored nation trade status for China and it promises to be a contentious battle. As lawmakers argue over free trade versus free rights, where will small business net out? First Business Correspondent Dan Kush reports.

GO FISH Wednesday, March 22

Imagine if you could improve company morale and create a more productive work place just by throwing around some dead fish. Not to oversimplify the story, but, the Pike Place Fish Market in Seattle did just that. We'll interview Stephen Lundin, co-author of a new book appropriately titled "Fish", in which he argues that there's nothing fishy about combining great customer service and a joyful atmosphere. And besides, when you follow that advice, things can't help but go swimmingly.

MONEY SENSE Thursday, March 23

Critics of some of the best financial minds in the world, investment bankers, CEO's and Wall Street executives, sometimes appear to lack common sense when it comes to the basics. They may know how to take a company public but they don't always know the ABC's of credit, leasing and loans. We'll have a full report in this week's edition of Money Sense.

FRIDAY BOX OFFICE Friday, March 24

It's Academy Award weekend so Hollywood must have a bunch of boffo openings in store, right? Wrong. The late-March box office is currently in the doldrums, hoping for a revival on the strength of a new multicultural action adventure, "Romeo Must Die." Can "Romeo" breathe life into the box office or will Shakespeare's hero be dead on arrival? First Business Correspondent Sara Voorhees has a preview in our regular Friday view from the aisle.

08:00 - 08:30P COPS "FORT WORTH" (CP-1222) (TV-PG: L,V)
"STREET TAKE DOWN" -- Police chase a man believed to be a suspect in a recent theft. The man, who refuses to stop his car for the police, eventually bales out on foot. He is chased by several officers until he is finally tackled and cuffed. The officer who originally tried to stop the man says that she was merely trying to see if he matched the description of the suspected thief. Since he turned out he did not, she says she probably would have let him go. "MAD MOMMA" - At the scene of a domestic dispute, a mother claims that her daughter ran away from home and was missing for three days. She says she finally was able to locate her and is now attempting to take her home. The young girl, who has a serious attitude, is warned by the officer to obey her mother or she will find herself in juvenile detention.

(TV-PG: L)
"WHAT A DOPE" - A suspect who bailed out of his vehicle is being chased on foot. In his truck, police find a large amount of marijuana and an electronic scale. A K-9 locates the suspect hiding in the attic of what turns out to be his mother's home. "I'M SMASHED" -- At the scene of a car accident, officers learn the driver apparently veered off the road, traveled through a patch of thick brush, and smashed full-speed into a telephone pole. Amazingly, had the pole not been there, the suspect would have hit a police officer, who was sitting in his parked cruiser several feet away. Drugs and signs of alcohol cause officers to accompany him to the hospital.

OSCAR WRAP Monday, March 27

Could the great Oscar caper with its missing ballots and purloined statuettes have upstaged the much anticipated telecast of the Academy Awards? Or, will Hollywood's cavalcade of stars once again deliver ratings gold? With a wrap of all the Oscar action, First Business Correspondent David Gee would like to thank the Academy for the most entertaining Oscar season in recent memory.

E-TAXES Tuesday, March 28

As traditional retailers continue to lose business to e-commerce giants, the charges and counter-charges are getting fast and furious. Congress has gotten into the action as it reviews the recommendations of a federal e-commerce tax commission. Among current proposals, a moratorium on new Internet taxes until October 2006 and a ban on taxes related to Internet access. First Business Correspondent Dan Kush takes a look at Capitol Hill's answer to the great Internet tax debate.

SOUL MAN Wednesday, March 29

If you're one of those people who pays attention to your soul only when you're in a place of worship, listen up. According to a new book, Americans are missing the boat if we don't bring our souls to the workplace. The book offers a new way of thinking about work relationships, between both competitors and collaborators. First Business Anchor Barton Eckert speaks with Birute Regine, co-author of "The Soul At Work."

YOU LOOK MAAHVELOUS Thursday, March 30

Whether for personal or professional reasons, 66% more patients underwent a cosmetic surgery procedure in 1999 compared to 1998. Once available only to the affluent, cosmetic surgery, which has become less expensive and less invasive, is garnering mass appeal. And lasers have meant patients not only look better but see better, within minutes. From lipo to lasik, First Business Correspondent Karen Hendren takes a look at plastic surgery trends.
