Description of Issue	Program/Segment	Date	Time	Duration	Narration of Type and Description of Program/Segment
Politics	HearSay	1.3.12	12:06	52 min	The 2012 General Assembly convenes next week. On today's broadcast, we gather political experts and journalists to talk about the issues facing the state's legislature. Along with a number of hot-button social issues, legislators will also be tackling a new, leaner, budget; ongoing transportation issues; and the prospect of lifting the moratorium on uranium mining.
Transportation	HearSay	1.5.12	12:06	52 min	Philip Shucet, known as a "Mr. Fix-It" in the transportation industry, took over as head of the Hampton Roads Transit as the agency was facing both budgetary and public relations crises. After two years on the job, and a widely successful launch of Norfolk's light rail project, Mr. Shucet is set to leave his post this month. We'll talk with him about his work at HRT and the challenges that lie ahead for that agency.
African American Issues	Another View	1.13.12	12:06	52 min	A Georgia school uses examples of slavery in math questions. Forbes Magazine's article "If I Were A Poor Black Kid" causes controversy. And in the D.C. area, Black students are two to five times more likely to be suspended or expelled than their White peers. Just some of the topics we'll discuss on the next Another View Round Table. Join Roger Chesley, columnist for the Virginian-Pilot; Carol Pretlow, political science professor at NSU; community activist Bill Thomas; and journalist, talk show

Arts and African Americans	Another View	1.20.1 2	12:0 6	52 min	When was the last time you visited a museum, saw a play or attended an arts performance? Was it a "mainstream" event, or was it geared specifically to the African American community? On the next Another View we'll talk about African Americans and the Arts - what motivates people of color to become active participants in the arts? Is it fact or fiction that Black people are only interested if the form of art represents the Black culture? Our guests, Gail Easley, Executive Director of the Crispus Attucks Cultural Center; Joan Rhodes-Copeland, Executive Director of the Cultural Arts Alliance; and Michelle Gilliam, Director of Ella Fitzgerald Theatre and Events with the Downing Gross Cultural Center in Newport News, share their expertise and experience.
Suicide	HearSay	1.31.1 2	12:0 6	52 min	Segment A: Invisible Men It is a dangerous stereotype - a "real man" never cries or shares his emotions. In our first segment, Cathy talks with Dr. Michael Addis, author of "Invisible Men: Men's Inner Lives and the Consequences of Silence," about the consequences created when men keep their personal struggles and professional challenges from their families and spouses. Segment B:

					The Murder/Suicide Phenomenon It is a headline seen too often. During our second segment, we'll examine the psychology behind murder/suicide; what the danger signs are; what steps to take if you are in a relationship where you fear this; and how family members and friends can help if a loved one is in a dangerous relationship.
Healthcare	HearSay	2.1.12	12:06	52 min	On today's show, Cathy talks with correspondent T. R. Reid, one of the nation's best-known reporters whose work appears in the Washington Post, on NPR's Morning Edition. His next film, "U.S. Health Care: The Good News" examines how small communities throughout the country deliver the highest value-for-the-money health care in the United States, and in the process covers nearly everyone in town.
Civil Rights	Another View	2.3.12	12:06	52 min	In honor of Black History Month we pay tribute to men and women who made a significant difference in the fight for equality, but are not well known to the general public. Historian Cassandra Newby-Alexander, PhD, shares stories of courageous and determined individuals who stood up for what's right despite personal danger and harm. Join us as we celebrate Black History Month by learning about these "unsung heroes of the African American experience".

Military	HearSay	2.6.12	12:06	52 min	American forces will cede the lead role in combat operations in Afghanistan next year, but will keep fighting alongside Afghan troops, according to U.S. Defense Secretary Leon Panetta. U.S. troops would largely shift to a train-and-assist role as Afghan forces take responsibility for security before an end-2014 deadline for full Afghan control. U.S. Ambassador for Afghanistan, Ryan Crocker, will join HearSay host Cathy Lewis, live from the U.S. Embassy in Kabul to talk about the latest as well as his upcoming visit to Hampton Roads this week.
Transportation	HearSay	2.8.12	12:06	52 min	HearSay knows transportation in Hampton Roads always has you talking! Coming up, we'll get an update on projects in Hampton Roads and what legislators are voting on in the Virginia General Assembly session currently underway in Richmond. Dwight Farmer, Executive Director of the Hampton Roads Transportation Planning Organization will join us to the latest long-range plans and priorities. We'll also hear about a local company that actually awards its employees for not driving to work!
Education	HearSay	2.9.12	12:06	52 min	Superintendents representing four Separate public school divisions in the Hampton Roads region will join HearSay host Cathy Lewis for a discussion about their leadership roles as well as the state of our local schools.

LGBT	HearSay	3.19.1 2	12:0 6	52 min	As jurors continue to debate the fate of a former Rutgers student accused of exhibiting anti-gay bias against his roommate, we'll look at housing programs local universities are considering to address anti-gay bullying. We'll also get an update on the efforts to create a Gay Cultural Studies program at Old Dominion University.
Education	Another View	3.23.1 2	12:0 6	52 min	There is a lot of emphasis placed on keeping kids in school and on track to graduate with their class...yet every 26 seconds a teen decides to drop out of high school. What are the pressures, both societal and educational, that makes a kid give up? And once they've left high school, what are the alternatives? On the next Another View, we'll talk about two alternative programs designed to help kids get back on track and become productive citizens. We'll talk with Luther Boykin and Elijah Charles of Commonwealth Challenge; and Mike Bonfiglio and Anthony Lowery with Point Option - programs with very different approaches yet the same goal - to help high school drop outs get an education.

Education – American Graduate	HearSay	3.26.12	12:06	52 min	American Graduate: Let's Make It Happen The decision to drop out of school can leave former students facing a bleak economic future. Their communities are adversely affected too, as dropouts often lack the preparation needed to be productive citizens. On today's broadcast, we'll examine the challenges schools face in engaging at-risk students, and the innovative practices their deploying to reduce the drop-out rate.
Military	HearSay	3.27.12	12:06	52 min	U.S. officials announced this week that an Army staff sergeant who allegedly gunned down civilians in southern Afghanistan will be charged with 17 counts of murder. On today's HearSay, Cathy speaks with Ryan Crocker, the U.S. Ambassador for Afghanistan, about how the killings have affected relations between military forces and civilians. We'll also examine the changing role of women in the Afghan government.
Trayvon Martin	Another View	3.3.12	12:06	52 min	Trayvon Martin, an African-American teen, was shot to death on February 26, 2012 by neighborhood watch participant George Zimmerman, who is Hispanic. Trayvon was unarmed. Zimmerman says it was self defense and has not been arrested. The shooting and lack of arrest have sparked protests nationwide, and has re-opened the discussion about race and profiling of African American males. On the next Another View, we convene a special round table to talk about the issues surrounding the killing of Trayvon Martin. We'll bring you the latest on the investigation, and delve deeply into the subjects of
