Due to Covid-19 precautions, we held a virtual station tour for 2 classes (at once) from the Pine School in Hobe Sound. These students are currently studying weather patterns and have practiced on camera "weather updates." We received student questions in advance and pre-taped segments for them. In these segments, we toured the station and studio, produced and created weather graphics for the newcasts and taught them how to record weather updates on the green screen. Meteorologist Zach Covey spoke to the class live for 45 minutes, using a powerpoint to teach them different weather terms and give them an insight to his day as the Morning Show Meteorologist. We built all pre-produced segments into the powerpoint. Zach received additional and very inquisitive questions at the end of his presentation. The students were thrilled at the insight into his on television and Meteorology career. The students seemed very intrigued by the amount of work needed to prepare for a newscast and were visibly shocked that he has to wake up at 1:30am to get ready for work.
