SUPPLEMENTAL INITIATIVE DESCRIPTION FORM

WVUA23/WVUA-CD is a commercial television station owned and operated by The University of Alabama, College of Communication and Information Sciences as a laboratory for students and an advanced training center for those seeking employment in the broadcast industry. The College and WVUA23/WVUA-CD participate in numerous outreach activities on a daily basis, designed to educate and inform members of the community and the student community about careers in broadcasting. WVUA23/WVUA-CD prepares students by providing the skills necessary for them to obtain employment in the broadcasting field upon graduation.

Year: 2022/2023

Initiative Title: WVUA23/WVUA-CD Internship Programs

Description of Initiative:

The University of Alabama owns and operates WVUA23/WVUA-CD through its College of Communication and Information Sciences.

Throughout the period of this report, WVUA23/WVUA-CD maintained paid and un-paid internship programs to assist students in acquiring broadcast television skills.

WVUA23/WVUA-CD have established internships in the following areas:

- Creative Services, News, Sports, Production, Promotion, Weather, Graphic Arts, and Sales and Marketing.
- During this period, the station served 110 students through internships that provided students with 17,650 hours of hands-on experience
- Interns primarily come from the University of Alabama, but we also encourage interns from Stillman College, Shelton State Community College, and Mississippi State University to participate in the Creative Services, News, Production, and Sales departments.
- Most internships at the stations are without pay and an unpaid internship applicant must be currently enrolled in an accredited institute of higher learning and must be eligible to receive academic credit for the internship.
- The station also provides paid internships for students seeking to move into the broadcasting field.

Year: 2022/2023

Initiative Title: Community Outreach to Schools, Colleges, and Organizations

Description of Initiative:

Station staff members participate in educational events and make presentations about their careers year-round. The following are some of the activities in which they participated:

The College of Information and Sciences Career exhibit as well as classroom talks at the University of Alabama. WVUA23/WVUA-CD also participates in the yearly talks at career days for local high schools as well as talks at Shelton State and Stillman College and Tuscaloosa City Training Academy with local anchors/reporters meeting the public. We are continuing a program with the Department of Health/Sciences and a weekly segment called Health Matters in hopes of educating the public on health. WVUA 23/2VUA-CD provides a weekly segment that promotes pet adoption of dogs and cats in the Tuscaloosa area. WVUA 23/WVUA-CD helps the West Alabama Chamber and West Alabama Works promote the area in jobs, economic growth and positive business in the area.

Year: 2022/2023

Initiative: Community Service to Citizens/City of Tuscaloosa

Description of Initiative: Provide community service to citizens of Tuscaloosa and surrounding communities by daily local newscasts and televising local events such as the Christmas parade and local charitable events. Local organizations that we work closely with include Temporary Emergency Services, Habitat for Humanity and the West Alabama Food Bank. The 5pm newscast is formatted to be a community service segment to allow these groups to get the word out. We also have segments based on community such as Bright Spots and Spirit of Alabama, that bring out the positive in our area. We continue to highlight issues surrounding mental health each May during Mental Health Awareness Month. Another segment is Most Wanted that showcases criminals in the area and the hopes of protecting the viewing area.

Year: 2022/2023

Initiative Title: WVUA23/WVUA-CD Training and Mentoring Program

Description of Initiative: The management and professional staff at WVUA 23 and WVUA-CD mentor and train both students and employees in all aspects of the television station operation. As these students and employees advance in their skills, thanks to this daily mentoring, they are allowed to grow beyond their current positions. This has allowed many of our students to move from the paid student intern program into a regular paid professional position at the station and many unpaid student interns to move into the paid intern program.

Special Note:

Educating the public about broadcasting, the work done by broadcasters, and how to pursue a career in broadcasting, is a priority here at WVUA23/WVUA-CD simply because of our mission as an educational institution. WVUA23 staff members are involved in teaching children about severe weather safety and how they can become meteorologists, providing behind-the-scenes tours of our facility and explaining careers in many areas of broadcasting.

Year: 2022/2023

Initiative Title: WVUA23/WVUA-CD Station Visits

Description of Initiative: The stations host visits to our studio by various community and school/college groups on a regular basis. The groups include local grade schools, Boy Scout groups, and Girl Scout groups, churches, and civic groups among others. As the students tour the facilities and observe the operations our professional and college student leaders share with them the many career opportunities in broadcasting. In addition to the above, station management routinely meets with parents and students that are making career and college decisions. As these individuals tour the station, they are told about what the station and college does, and they are told about the future career opportunities in broadcasting.

Year: 2022/2023

Initiative Title: WVUA23 Weather in the Classroom/Feature Teacher

Description of Initiative: This initiative allows our meteorologists the opportunity to visit with school children across West Alabama to inform them about the weather and what it takes to be a TV Weathercaster. The chief meteorologist also talks with several local organizations in the area as well as providing weather information for the university events.

Feature Teacher showcases our teachers in the classroom who go above and beyond. WVUA 23/WVUA-CD profiles a teacher once a month to show how important they are to the community.

Year: 2022/2023

Initiative Title: Employee Training / University Policies

Description of Initiative: New Employee training, in-service training, and Web based information regarding University of Alabama's EEO efforts.

The University implements its Harassment Policy through preventive education and training and through procedures for investigating and resolving claims of harassment. Professional staff and students are required to participate in training programs which are offered by a variety of departments and divisions, including the Department of Human Resources. Hiring managers are instructed to review the University of Alabama Web based EEO policies.

Year: 2022/2023

Initiative Title: College of Communication and Information Sciences Scholarship Programs

Description of Initiative: WVUA23/WVUA-CD is part of the College of Communication and Information Sciences at the University of Alabama. The College offers numerous scholarships to students and nine scholarships specific to those students seeking to attend the Department of Journalism and Creative Media. J&CM is the department that the television station is most closely aligned with and where the majority of the students that participate in the paid and unpaid intern programs are registered.

These scholarships allow students that are contemplating going into some form of broadcasting to attend our college and thereby participate in the activities of the station.
