Issue: State Legislature

Odessa State Representative Brooks Landgraf discusses several issues that will probably be at the center of the upcoming session of the state legislature. He says an expected shortfall of tax revenue will require a four percent cut in state agency budgets. Reforming state education financing will probably require a special session. (5:30)

Issue: Family Issues

State District Judge Sara Kate Billingsley talks about the efforts she made to streamline the docket of her court, which deals mostly with family law issues. She says besides making the process move faster, she has jailed litigants who violate court orders on visitation or protective orders. She says people tend to obey the orders if they know they could face jail time. (6:00)

Issue: Community Planning

Edmund Haas with the Freese and Nichols engineering firm gives a presentation to the Midland City Council on plans to develop roads and transportation infrastructure for northeast Midland. The plans hope to ease development from a rural setting to residential development. (4:15)

Issue: Law enforcement

Ector County Commissioners heard two proposals for expanding the Ector County Jail to handle the growing inmate population. The county is spending more than two million dollars a year to house excess prisoners in other county jails because the Ector County Jail does not have enough beds. Ector County Judge Ron Eckert says county commissioners will have to consider issuing debt to pay for expansion that may cost 14 to 16-million dollars. (8:30)

Issue: Education

Odessa College is starting tours of its new fabrication laboratory, known as a "Fab Lab". The lab has machinery to transfer computer designs into tangible objects, such as furniture, embroidery, and plastic prototypes. Funding for the lab was made available from Chevron. Chevron spokeswoman Sarah Hughes and Lab director Cedric Bleimling talk about the possibilities of the lab and the benefits it will provide in teaching STEM curriculum for OC students and ECISD students. (16:00)

Issue: UTPB president search

UT System executive Vice Chancellor Steven Leslie discusses the time table for selecting a new president for UTPB after hearing comments from UTPB faculty about the academic goals for the university. (2:00)

Issue: Water conservation

Pioneer Natural Resources and the City of Midland sign an agreement in which Pioneer will pay the city 110-million dollars to upgrade their water treatment plant. In return, the city will provide Pioneer with large quantities of treated effluent for use in fracking operations. The plan will reduce the amount of fresh water needed for the procedures. (11:00)

Issue: economic development

Downtown Odessa Incorporated director Gloria Salinas discusses plans to demolish dilapidated buildings and replace them with new construction. She invites the public to attend meetings in December and January to discuss the plans. (10:00)

Issue: animal welfare

The City of Odessa reminds residents of a new city ordinance that requires all pets to be spayed or neutered before they are released from the animal shelter. The ordinance applies to both newly adopted pets and those that have been picked up by animal shelter employees. Animal shelter director Jacqui Adimare discusses the plan intended to reduce the number of unwanted animals that eventually end up at the shelter. (9:00)

WEST TEXAS UPDATE

Date: 12-25-2016

Length: 29:05

Issue: Communications

Chris Andrews stops in Midland in his walk across the country as part of a campaign to encourage people to engage in more face to face communication. Andrews noticed many people were relying on texting and other digital media to exchange information with each other. He says something was lost when people chose to avoid face to face communication. He hopes his walk across the country will bring more attention to his campaign. He spoke with morning show hosts Robert Hallmark and Kurt Verlei. (14:00)

Issue: Education

The Ector County School District handed out 140 Chromebook computers to students at Falcon High School at UTPB. School officials say it is part of a campaign to bring wi fi access to all students in the district. The computers will help students conduct research for their school work while giving them a tool to better prepare their homework and classroom projects. (13:00)
