The Pickin' on the Picknic Music Festival is a weekend music festival that includes many different local bands. The festival takes place by the Meramec River and music lovers from around the area can go camp at the festival all weekend and have a great time.	July 1st	7:45	15 Minutes	Ryan Kemp who is one of the head members behind the scenes at the festival came on to talk about the many different bands and what there is to do along the Meramec River during the festival. Many different local bands take a lot of pride in taking a part in this festival, and through interviews and other advertisement on our airwaves, we hope to drive more people to go hang out and listen to the music in the years to come at the festival.
Franklin County CASA is a local group that helps kids get through rough times when their parents or guardians get into trouble with the law. CASA stands for "Court Appointed Special Advocates for Children".	July 7 th	7:45	15 minutes	Glenda Voimert with CASA brings along a fellow member or a person in the community that helps the kids in their organization. In July, it was Judge Joe Purschke, who works a lot of these family law cases and helps kids get in touch with CASA to make sure that their childhood does not miss a beat despite their Mom or dad getting in trouble with the law.

Foodstock is a local concert festival that is every year at the Washington Farmers Market. The price of admission is cans of food or a monetary donation to the local food pantries. Through this event over the years, hundreds of cans and hundreds of dollars have been generated for the local food pantries.	August 12th	7:45	15 min	Pat O' Donnell and Rick Hopp joined Diane to talk about the event and also to talk about their band "8 Track". Both Pat and Rick have chaired this event for many years and do a great job at getting the public out and about for this event and also to donate food to the local pantries. There is no better feeling than helping someone in need and listening to some great music, so why not mix the two together?
