PUERTO RICO DEFAULT	NOTICIAS UNIVISION 11:30PM	05/01/2016	23:41:20	2:05	Gov. Alejandro Garcia Padilla announced that Puerto Rico's government will not make nearly $370 million in bond payments due Monday after a failure to restructure or find a political solution to the U.S. territory's spiraling public debt crisis. Garcia said Sunday that he had issued an executive order suspending payments on debt owed by the island's Government Development Bank, a default that will likely prompt lawsuits from creditors and could be a prelude to a deadline to a much larger payment due July 1. The governor said Puerto Rico can't pay the bonds without cutting essential services. Island officials spent the weekend trying to negotiate a settlement that would have avoided the default but apparently came up short.

VIOLENT US CITIES			2:14	23:46:01	The number of homicides increased in the first months of 2016 in more than two dozen major U.S. cities, going up in places that also saw spiking violence last year . The increases were small in some areas, and many big cities also had declines. But the numbers were particularly grim for a handful of places - Chicago, Los Angeles, Dallas and Las Vegas - where the number of homicides increased in the first three months of 2016 after killings and other violent crimes also went up in 2015. Criminologists and law enforcement officials, including Comey, say the causes of the increases are unclear, and they offer a variety of possible explanations, including gang violence and bloodshed stemming from drug addictions. Comey also again suggested that greater scrutiny of police had possibly changed the way officers and communities interact, which he said may be a factor in the uptick in homicides, an idea he voiced to much disagreement last year.

LONG LINES AT AIRPORT	NOTICIAS UNIVISION 11:30PM	05/17/2016	2:00	11:42:21	Travelers across the U.S are feeling the strain as budget cuts for the TSA have led to fewer agents and longer lines. Many flyers report arriving 3 hours or more in advance and still not being able to make it through security in time to catch their flight. While some airports go out of their way to make the wait more tolerable, even bringing in entertainment, the U.S government has deemed the situation untenable and asked travelers for patience as they expressed their intent to address the issue.
