ISSUE: IMMIGRATION REFORM

Injunction Upheld

Program: KKPS Morning News

When: November 10, 2015 at 6:50/7:50 AM

Brownsville federal judge Andrew Hanen's injunction blocking President Obama's executive action on immigration reform has stood up in an appellate court. Republicans hailed the decision as a victory; the administration's only option is to take its case to the U-S Supreme Court.

Administration Appeals Ruling

Program: KKPS Morning News

When: November 11, 2015 at 6:50/7:50 AM

President Obama is appealing the latest ruling against his executive action on immigration. The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the injunction to Obama's order to block the deportation of millions of illegal immigrants. That injunction came from Brownsville federal judge Andrew Hanen.

Deportations Planned

Program: KKPS Morning News

When: December 29, 2015 at 6:50/7:50 AM

South Texas congressman Henry Cuellar says a national plan to start deporting undocumented immigrants is in the works. Cuellar says those affected are mostly from Central America, most of whom are women and children who have already been ordered deported. Cuellar said the deportations could begin as early as next month.

National Guard Troops To Stay

Program: KKPS Morning News

When: December 16, 2015 at 6:50/7:50 AM

Governor Greg Abbott will keep National Guard troops along the border to help stop illegal crossings into the United States. Abbott says this is his response to what he calls “federal inaction” in preventing unaccompanied minors from entering the country.
