Description: Talk Away the Dark: How to Have Open and Honest Conversations with Men. Men are less likely to talk about their mental health struggles than women, which is why it's so important to break down stigma and open the door for these conversations. Community and friendships are huge protective factors against suicide. We seek to emphasize the critical role that asking someone directly about suicide plays in suicide prevention and demonstrate how to have supportive conversations with loved ones about mental health and suicide prevention.

Leah Culbertson, a 20-year-old University of Oregon student, is redefining the traditional spring break experience. While her peers are swapping textbooks for beach towels, Leah is choosing a path of purpose and connection. During her spring break from March 23-30, Leah will head to her grandmother's retirement community, SpringRidge at Charbonneau in Wilsonville, Ore., to work as a server in the onsite restaurant.

Leah started working at SpringRidge in June 2022 and spends her school breaks working at the community. She has formed meaningful relationships with the residents and staff and relishes opportunities to spend quality time with her grandmother, Cynthia Carter.

Leah's story is a testament to the values of intergenerational connection, and we believe that her alternative spring break plans offer a refreshing perspective that your audience will find both uplifting and intriguing.

We would be delighted to arrange an interview with Leah during her break. Please feel free to contact me at Kerry@TheEhlersGroup.com or 954-290-1537 to coordinate.

SEGMENT 1: HOW TO COMBAT MEDICAL IGNORANCE OF RARE DISEASES

Time: 1:48

Duration: 11:12

Synopsis: Having a rare disease means that not all doctors will know how to treat you. For Christyn Taylor's daughter, who was diagnosed with pediatric pancreatitis at age 7, this meant countless physicians who either didn't believe she had the condition or knew nothing about it – factors that continually worsened her illness. To help other families in similar situations, Taylor created a document that gives patients with rare diseases a credible back-up of medical history and current treatment plans when dealing with stubborn physicians.
