Title: Disabled American Veterans (DAV)

America's disabled veterans are faced with unique challenges as they transition from serving our country to powering America's economy. A survey of veterans with disabilities transitioning to the civilian workforce estimated that 57% feared hiring discrimination due to their disability. However, the reality is that America's businesses, big and small alike, recognize the importance of hiring veterans with disabilities, but often don't know where to begin. As part of National Disability Employment Awareness Month, DAV (Disabled American Veterans) is discussing the first-ever Guide to Hiring and Retaining Veterans with Disabilities. The free guide can be downloaded from DAV's website, www.jobs.dav.org.

Title: Battle of the Bulge

This book tells the unforgettable and inspiring story of his father, Roddie Edmonds, a humble American soldier from East Tennessee. Captured during the Battle of the Bulge in the waning days of WWII, Roddie became the highest-ranking American soldier at Stalag IXA, a Nazi POW camp near Ziegenhain, Germany. His courageous actions there would ultimately save the lives of nearly every American infantryman in the camp and, more than seventy years later, earn him Yad Vashem's Righteous Among the Nations; the highest honor a Gentile can receive from the State of Israel—and bipartisan support to have Roddie posthumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor and the Congressional Gold Medal.

Title: Week Without Violence

YWCA's annual Week Without Violence campaign is part of a global movement to end violence against women and girls across the country and worldwide. For more than 20 years, a week in October is set aside to bring awareness to gender-based violence. Gender-based violence recognizes a wide range of violence, including domestic violence, sexual assault, trafficking and harassment against minority women, children and members of the LGBTQ+ community.

Title: Detection of Lung Cancer with new Technology

MedStar Washington Hospital Center physicians are using a new robotic technology designed to help diagnose very small, suspicious lung nodules with greater precision and accuracy. Auris Health's Monarch Platform offers a flexible robotic endoscope that doctors use to navigate tiny passages deep in the lungs and obtain tissue samples for biopsy to determine if lung disease or cancer is present. "Lung cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths for both men and women, in part because it has no symptoms in its early stages," according to Dr. Lazar.

Title: Gun Shot Detection

In an effort to address the crisis of gun violence in communities across the nation, non-profit research organization the Urban Institute conducted a study to evaluate how law enforcement agencies can use Gunshot Detection Technology (GDT) to improve the accuracy of shooting notifications, reduce response times to firearm incidents, decrease violent crime rates, and enhance police-community relations. (GDT) is designed to automatically detect, verify, and rapidly notify law enforcement personnel of the specific times, locations, and other details of firearm discharges. This would serve as another tool to help solve gun related crimes in D.C. and the region.

Title: National Diabetes Month & the ABC's of Diabetes Care

More than 30 million people in the U.S. have diabetes; that's about 1 out of every 10 people. Having diabetes makes people more likely to develop heart disease or have a heart attack or a stroke. And adults with diabetes are nearly twice as likely to die from heart disease or stroke as people without diabetes. Virginia has one of the highest rates of diabetes in the country at 9.6%. A is for the A1C test, which measures average blood glucose over the past 3 months. B is for blood pressure. C is for cholesterol. S is for stop smoking.

Title: Caregiving Family Members

Capital Caring Health is the largest non-profit provider of health, advanced illness, hospice, and at-home care services for the Maryland, Virginia, and Washington, D.C. area. They provide quality care where people live, supporting dignified, independent aging. According the Bureau of Labor Statistics, more than 40 million Americans care for an ill or older family member. The value of the unpaid services they provide is estimated at $470 billion yearly, nearly twice as much as is spent on professional home care services. As the average age of the U.S. population continues to rise, the essential role unpaid caregivers play will only increase even as they fulfill the duties of a full- or part-time job, and other familial responsibilities.

Title: Early Education Provider Financial Obstacles

Early childhood educators play a critical role in educating children in the most crucial phase of brain development, which sets the foundation for all future learning. However, the low compensation of the childcare workforce makes it hard to attract and retain staff.

Policymakers at the state and national levels are in a position to take action on increasing support for early childhood educators through tax credits and other strategies designed to incent professional development and increase compensation.

Title: A Report on race Relations from the Southern View

Former New Orleans Mayor Mitch Landrieu, leading a team initiative called E Pluribus Unum, released a report on October 25th called "Divided by Design: Findings from the American South." The findings on how residents of the American South experience issues of race and class in their communities follows nearly a year-long journey in which the E Pluribus Unum team travelled to 28 communities across 13 states. The team met with over 800 people in one-on-one interviews, small groups and random-sample focus groups to learn how southerners are impacted by race, equity, economic opportunity and violence. E Pluribus Unum also commissioned a 1,800-person survey on attitudes on race and class across the 13-state region.

Title: Flu Awareness and Technology

The CDC reports growing numbers of flu cases across America. In fact, deaths have already been reported in states like Texas and South Carolina and the flu season hasn't even peaked yet. With the efficacy of the vaccine wearing off over time, and the holiday season on the horizon, now is just as good a time as any to get a flu shot. For those who are sick, connecting with a doctor quickly can make all the difference and keep further infection from happening. Advances in telehealth which connects doctors and specialists via phone or online video, is changing how consumers can get the care they need when they need it.
