:21 SECS

Synopsis:

The Justice Department is investigating whether the major U.S. airlines conspired to limit available seats and jack-up prices, the Associated Press reported Wednesday. Citing documents, the AP revealed investigators suspect the airlines illegally shared plans to add new flights, routes or extra seats. So the government is demanding they turn over copies of all communications with each other about "the undesirability of your company or any other airline increasing capacity." And they are demanding the airlines turn over stats on how many passengers they carried overall and by region - plus how many they were capable of carrying - going back to January 2010. The Justice Department is investigating "unlawful coordination" among the airlines, spokeswoman Emily Pierce confirmed. But Pierce would not identify which airlines are under scrutiny or how far along the feds are in their investigation. Experts say American Airlines, Delta Air Lines, Southwest Airlines and United Airlines now control more than 80% of the seats in the domestic travel market

PKG 1:44

Synopsis:

Law enforcement often issue warnings over holidays and major national events in an abundance of caution knowing that, from a terrorist's point of view, the timing of an attack can determine how much coverage it gets. For this holiday, though, there are additional concerns, including the recruiting ISIS has done in the United States and the potential for relatively small-scale, but still dangerous, "lone wolf" attacks. Following overseas attacks in June, Department of Homeland Security Jeb Johnson said law enforcement was being encouraged to be "vigilant and prepared" for Independence Day celebrations. "We will also adjust security measures, seen and unseen, as necessary to protect the American people," Johnson said. "We continue to encourage all Americans to attend public events and celebrate this country during this summer season, but always remain vigilant."

However you call it, the beverage can mean big trouble, according to a revised estimate of a 2013 study on the negative impact of sugary drinks. Worldwide, sugary drinks are responsible for 184,000 deaths each year, with 25,000 of those deaths in America, according to the study published in the journal Circulation. This is larger than the estimate two years ago of 180,000 deaths in the same time frame. Researchers counted deaths from diabetes, heart disease, and cancer that are linked to sweetened soda, fruit drink, sports/energy drink, and iced tea consumption. The researchers found 133,000 annual deaths happen at the hands of type 2 diabetes, 45,000 deaths are due to cardiovascular disease, and 6,450 deaths are linked to cancer. Dr. Dariush Mozaffarian, senior author of the study and dean of Tufts University's Friedman School of Nutrition Science and Policy, told Live Science that this means people ought to consume less sugary beverages. Though not all humans have access to healthy foods, lowering one's sugary drink intake can make a difference.

REPORT ON IMMIGRANTS

VO :33

Immigrants are Less Likely to Be Criminals Than the Native-Born. When it comes to understanding the relationship between immigration and crime, anecdotes are no substitute for evidence. And, as a new report from the American Immigration Council explains, the evidence has been clear for more than a century: high rates of immigration are associated with lower crime rates, and immigrants are less likely to commit serious crimes or be behind bars than the native-born. This holds true for both legal immigrants and the unauthorized, regardless of their country of origin or level of education. In other words, the overwhelming majority of immigrants are not "criminals" by any commonly accepted definition of the term. Consider the following data presented in the report: Higher Immigration is Associated with Lower Crime Rates Between 1990 and 2013, the foreign-born share of the U.S. population grew from 7.9 percent to 13.1 percent and the number of unauthorized immigrants more than tripled from 3.5 million to 11.2 million. During the same period, FBI data indicate that the violent crime rate declined 48 percent-which included falling rates of aggravated assault, robbery, rape, and murder. Likewise, the property crime rate fell 41 percent, including declining rates of motor vehicle theft, larceny/robbery, and burglary. Immigrants are Less Likely than the Native-Born to Be Behind Bars According to an original analysis of data from the 2010 American Community Survey (ACS) conducted by the authors of this report, roughly 1.6 percent of immigrant males age 18-39 are incarcerated, compared to 3.3 percent of the native-born.

REPUBLICAN RESENTMENT GROWS AGAINST DONALD TRUMP

Lourdes Meluza / Washington, dc

pkg 2:18

Synopsis:

The backlash growing, and this time it's coming from House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio. A day after Republican Party Chairman Reince Priebus called Trump to tell him to "tone it down," Boehner also tried to distance his party from the 2016 presidential candidate's comments about Mexican immigrants. "I disagree with Mr. Trump's comments and, frankly, I think political presidential candidates, they've all pretty much made their positions clear," Boehner said on Thursday, according to The Hill. "This has become the biggest political football I've seen in my congressional career, this whole issue of illegal immigration and what to do about it." Boehner said there's no chance of the immigration system being fixed if lawmakers repeatedly continue "sticking their heads in the sand." Donald Trump upped the volume in his already controversial political campaign Thursday, hinting that he could run as an independent if Republican leaders try to isolate him. Trump has dominated political news for two weeks as disparaging remarks he made about Mexican immigrants, labeling them drug runners and "rapists," have caused steadily mounting concern among many Republican strategists. Party officials, who have emphasized a need to reach out to Latino voters, have watched as Trump's comments have threatened to worsen the GOP's already weak image among that growing group of voters. His remarks have divided the GOP presidential candidates and delighted Democratic operatives. Since the initial remarks he made during his campaign kickoff last month in New York, Trump has escalated his comments in a series of radio and television interviews, claiming that the Mexican government had deliberately sent criminals to the U.S. Amid deepening concerns from GOP donors, Republican National Committee Chairman Reince Priebus spoke to Trump on Wednesday, urging him to "tone down" his comments.

APPEALS PANEL HEARS ARGUMENTS ON OBAMA IMMIGRATION ACTION
ENRIQUE GARCIA FUENTES, NEW ORLEANS, LA

PKG 1:42

Synopsis:

A federal appeals court in New Orleans heard arguments over President Barack Obama's plan to protect from deportation as many as 5 million immigrants living illegally in the United States. Announced in November, the plan was harshly criticized by Republicans in Congress as an executive overreach. Texas and 25 other states challenged the plan in federal court, and U.S. District Judge Andrew Hanen in Brownsville, Texas, granted a preliminary injunction on Feb. 16. Arguments in the Obama administration's appeal were set for a two-hour hearing before a three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeal. Supporters of the plan, including members of labor unions and immigrants' rights groups, planned to rally outside the courthouse Friday morning and hold a news conference after the hearing. Either side could appeal a loss to the full 5th Circuit or the Supreme Court - a process that will eat up time with only about a year and a half left in Obama's second term. Justice Department lawyers arguing for the administration have said Texas had no legal standing in the matter. Texas' solicitor general countered that granting legal status to immigrants will be costly for Texas, with the state incurring costs for providing drivers' licenses, schooling and health care to immigrants who are granted permission to stay. Two members of the panel hearing arguments Friday were on a panel that voted in May to not allow the plan to proceed while the appeal is pursued. In the May 26 ruling, judges Jerry Smith and Jennifer Walker Elrod said the federal government lawyers are unlikely to succeed on the merits of the appeal. Judge Stephen Higginson disagreed in a lengthy dissent. Friday's panel includes Smith, Elrod and Carolyn Dineen King.

TRUMP CONTROVERSIAL DECLARATIONS IN PHOENIX, ARIZONA JUAN CARLOS GONZALEZ / PHOENIX, AZ

PKG 2:13

Synopsis:

It wasn't quite the 9,000 people Donald Trump had said would show up to his rally in Phoenix. The number, in fact, was less than half of that. But around 4,000 people still gathered to hear the real estate mogul, reality star, and presidential contender spout xenophobic words. "I love the Mexican people ... I respect Mexico ... but the problem we have is that their leaders are much sharper, smarter and more cunning than our leaders, and they're killing us at the border," said Trump, according to Politico. "They're taking our jobs. They're taking our manufacturing jobs. They're taking our money. They're killing us." No one should interpret his words as anti-immigrant, Trump insisted, noting he's a fan of those who enter the country legally. "They flow in like water, and I love legal immigration. I love it," he said. "We should make it easier, and faster."

Ever the showman, Trump made fun of his rivals for the White House and mocked the companies that have cut ties with him over his recent comments. "Thousands and thousands of people are cutting up their Macy's credit card. I love it," he said. Trump also called Hillary Clinton "the worst secretary of State in the history of our country." He also expressed surprise at a poll that showed him tied with former Florida Governor Jeb Bush for the Republican vote. "How could I be tied with this guy? He's terrible!" Trump said. What qualifies Trump to be president? "I'm really smart," he said. In fact, he's so smart that as soon as he was to move in to the White House he could solve problems in no time at all. He told the crowd he would be able to get hostages returned "in an hour" and would tax Mexico each time someone crossed the border illegally. He said he could convince the head of Ford Motor Co to move a plant back to the United States from Mexico overnight, with a couple of phone calls. About 20 minutes into the speech a group of protesters interrupted the real estate mogul but were immediately drowned out by supporters shouting "U-S-A! U-S-A!" ... "I wonder if the Mexican government sent them over here. I think so," Trump said. "Don't worry, we'll take out country back."

PENTAGON ANNOUNCES PLAN TO EASE BAN ON TRANSGENDER SERVICE IN U.S. MILITARY

VO: 25 SEC.

Synopsis:

Department of Defense today issued two directives that are expected to ease regulations that prohibit transgender people from serving openly in the U.S. military. Under current regulations, transgender people are automatically deemed medically unfit for duty and face separation from their unit if their gender identity is disclosed. Secretary of Defense Ash Carter announced the formation of a six-month working group to study the impact of lifting the ban on unit readiness. Additionally, the announcement elevates the decision authority regarding administrative discharge for trans service members and those diagnosed with gender dysphoria to Under Secretary of Defense for Personnel and Readiness Brad R. Carson.

Synopsis:

Mohammad Youssuf Abdulazeez was carrying 30-round magazines when he opened fire, according to a source briefed by law enforcement. Abdulazeez kept police at bay for some time with the amount of ammunition he had, according to the source. The shooting suspect was armed with an AK-47 style weapon at the time of the attack according to two law enforcement officials briefed on the investigation. Suspected shooter Mohammad Youssuf Abdulazeez, 24, had not said much more about him. Witnesses saw Abdulazeez spray a hail of bullets at the glass doors of a military recruiting center in a strip mall. Then the gunman, who according to a law enforcement official was driving in a rented silver Ford Mustang convertible, moved on to his next target more than seven miles away: a Naval reserve center. There, he rammed into a gate at some point during his shooting rampage and was eventually killed by police, a U.S. official said.

Synopsis:

Eleven commercial flights reported that lasers illuminated their aircraft when they over New Jersey last night. The events occurred between 9 and 10:30 p.m. There were no injuries reported. The FAA will investigate. Eleven commercial flights reported lasers illuminated their aircraft Wednesday night as they flew over New Jersey between the hours of 9 p.m. and 10:30 p.m., according to the Federal Aviation Administration. Several of the incidents were reported approximately 15 to 20 miles southwest of Newark Liberty International Airport in Newark, New Jersey, and the planes were bound for that airport, as well as LaGuardia Airport in New York City and Pittsburgh, officials said. "Just for your information, there's someone shooting a laser about four or five miles back off our back wing," one pilot told the Newark airport control tower. "That just happened again?" the tower responded. "Yes, about four to five miles back," the pilot answered. "They lit us up pretty well." FAA Probing Reports of Drones, Green Lasers Over New York FBI Aims Crackdown at Airplane Laser Pranks. It happened later to another flight from Charlotte, North Carolina. "American 1976 checking in with you, and we just got the laser also, here at 3,000 [feet]," the pilot said. There were no injuries reported overnight, and the FAA is investigating the multiple incidents. The New Jersey State Police said in a statement that it was notified of the incidents by the FAA and will assist the investigation. Pointing a laser into a cockpit is a federal crime that carries a maximum of five years in prison and a $250,000 fine. The FBI launched a campaign in January aimed at people who focus potentially blinding lasers at airplanes, and is offering as much as $10,000 for any information leading to the arrest of an individual who intentionally aims a laser at an aircraft. The number of nationwide laser hits is climbing each year, the Federal Aviation Administration said, from 2,200 incidents in 2010 to 3,400 in 2012 and more than 3,900 in 2013, an all-time high. That's more than 10 incidents every day across the country. Newark Airport had 28 reported laser-pointing incidents last year, according to the office of Sen. Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y. The most recent were two incidents were this March. Nearby New York City airports have reported similar incidents, particularly with green lasers, which are considered more dangerous than red lasers because they are more visible to the human eye. In 2014, Schumer's office reported, there were 17 green laser incidents out of a total 19 laser incidents at John F. Kennedy International Airport and 37 green laser incidents out of a total 41 laser incidents at LaGuardia Airport.

LUCIA BURGA / MIAMI, FL

PKG 2:12

Synopsis:

Florida Sen. Marco Rubio says Donald Trump's comment that Sen. John McCain is not a war hero should disqualify him from the 2016 presidential race. "It's not just absurd, it's offensive. It's ridiculous. And I do think it's a disqualifier as commander-in-chief," Rubio said in an interview Sunday on CNN. The Florida senator was the latest Republican White House contender to hit Trump after the real estate mogul said Saturday that McCain "is not a war hero" because he was captured and held prisoner in Vietnam. "He is a war hero because he was captured," Trump said. "I like people that weren't captured, OK?" He walked back those comments on Twitter later, saying that "captured or not, all our soldiers are heroes!" But opponents who'd been looking for openings to criticize Trump were already piling on. Rubio defended Republicans who were slow to criticize Trump over his controversial comments about undocumented Mexican immigrants a week ago, too, saying that it's been Trump's rise in the polls that has "required people to be more forceful on some of these offensive things he is saying." Trump defended himself Sunday, issuing a statement touting his financial contributions to veterans' causes and criticizing Veterans Affairs hospitals with long waits for military veterans to receive medical care.

TEXAS IS ILLEGALLY DENYING BIRTH CERTIFICATES TO CITIZENS WITH IMMIGRANT PARENTS

PEDRO ROJAS / BROWNSVILLE, TX

PKG 2:11

Synopsis:

The United States has a long history of birthright citizenship. That is to say - if you are born in the United States, you are a citizen. It doesn't matter who your parents are, where they are from, or what their legal status is. Simply by being born in the United States, you are an American citizen. This standard for citizenship by birth received a lot of scrutiny in 2010, when Republican lawmakers were obsessed over the "anchor baby," the xenophobic topic du jour. The idea was that undocumented immigrants were purposefully planning to come into the country without authorization, give birth to a child, and use that child as an anchor to U.S. citizenship. As far too many families know, your children (or sibling's) legal status is not a magic cure to the constant threat of deportation hanging over those members of the family who are not documented. Children can help their parents gain documentation, this much is true. The United States provides unlimited Immediate Relative Immigrant Visas to family members, including spouses, unmarried children, orphans who will be adopted, and parents. But a child cannot even start this extensive process until they turn twenty one.

RULING ON DETENTION OF MIGRANT CHILDREN
DANAY RIVERO / MIAMI, FL

PKG 1:51

Synopsis:

A federal judge in California has ruled that the Obama administration's detention of children and their mothers who were caught crossing the border illegally is a serious violation of a longstanding court settlement, and that the families should be released as quickly as possible. In a decision late Friday roundly rejecting the administration's arguments for holding the families, Judge Dolly M. Gee of Federal District Court for the Central District of California found that two detention centers in Texas that the administration has opened since last summer fail to meet minimum legal requirements of the 1997 settlement for facilities housing children.

Judge Gee also found that migrant children had been held in "widespread deplorable conditions" in Border Patrol stations after they were first caught, and she said the authorities had "wholly failed" to provide the "safe and sanitary" conditions required for children even in temporary cells. The opinion was a significant legal blow to detention policies ordered by Homeland Security Secretary Jeh Johnson in response to an influx of children and parents, mostly from Central America, across the border in south Texas last summer. In her 25-page ruling Judge Gee gives a withering critique of the administration's positions, declaring them "unpersuasive" and "dubious" and saying officials had ignored "unambiguous" terms of the settlement. The administration has struggled with a series of setbacks in the federal courts for its immigration policies, including decisions that halted President Obama's programs to give protection from deportation and work permits to millions of undocumented immigrants. Officials did not comment immediately on the new ruling.

Judge Gee's decision was based on the 18-year-old settlement in a hard-fought class action lawsuit, known as Flores, which has governed the treatment of minors apprehended at the border who are unaccompanied - not with a parent. Judge Gee found that the Flores settlement, which has been carried out with little dispute from federal authorities, also applies to children caught with their parents.

PKG 2:20

Synopsis:

In the first national telephone poll since Donald Trump earned rebukes from Republican leaders over his comments about Senator John McCain's military service, the real estate mogul has increased his support among GOP voters and now stands atop the race for the party's nomination. The new CNN/ORC Poll finds Trump at 18% support among Republicans, with former Florida governor Jeb Bush just behind at 15%, within the poll's margin of error. They are joined at the top of the pack by Wisconsin Governor Scott Walker, with 10% support among Republicans and Republican-leaning independents who are registered to vote. Trump's backing has climbed 6 points since a late-June poll, while support for Bush and Walker has not changed significantly. None of the other 14 candidates tested in the new CNN/ORC survey earned double-digit support.

Though Trump currently tops the race for the nomination, his advantage is by no means firm. A majority of Republican voters, 51%, say they see the field as wide open, and that it's too soon to say which candidate they will ultimately get behind. Among that group that sees the contest as wide open, Bush has 14% support, while Trump has the backing of 13% and Walker stands at 9%. Trump does much better among those Republicans who say they've narrowed it down to one or two candidates, 24% of that group backs him, 16% Bush and 12% Walker. Trump's popularity among Republican voters does not translate to the broader pool of registered voters. When tested in hypothetical general election matchups against top Democrats, he trails both frontrunner Hillary Clinton and upstart Senator Bernie Sanders by wide margins. Bush and Walker run just behind Clinton and about even with Sanders. Trump's non-favorability rating is sky high. Overall, 59% of all registered voters have an unfavorable opinion of Trump, though that dips to 42% among GOP voters. None of the other Republicans landing near the top of the field have such a negative image nationwide, though many remain little known. Clinton is the only candidate who is about as well-known as Trump, and while she is more well-liked than the developer, her favorability rating is net negative among registered voters nationally: 49% have an unfavorable view while 44% have a positive impression.

Synopsis:

Police say an escort in West Virginia shot and killed a client in self-defense. Now, authorities are investigating the possibility that the man was a serial killer. A West Virginia woman says she narrowly escaped with her life after meeting 45-year-old Neal falls. The woman known as heather met falls, after he answered her escort ad on the backpage.com. She says he became aggressive within minutes -- wrapping his hands around her throat. Moments later, she was running from her Charleston home -- chasing down a neighbor, who called 9-1-1. Investigators say falls may be a serial killer after finding an arsenal of weapons described as a "kill kit" in his Subaru. He also had a list of ten women with names, ages, and contact information -- all of them escorts, at least nine of them in West Virginia. None appear to have met the suspect. Investigators are now looking at falls' past and possible connections to cases in Nevada, Oregon, and Illinois. Authorities say an item found in his car is believed to be linked to evidence discovered on several dismembered bodies in Las Vegas back in 2005, where falls lived at the time. Their remains found in trash bags... all of them escorts. one of the cases under scrutiny: Lindsay Marie Harris, whose dismembered legs were recovered in Illinois three weeks after she went missing. Falls former landlord says she had him evicted a year after he moved in and describes his behavior as odd. While sources say that no evidence has yet pointed to a direct link, heather believes she stopped falls from hurting others. Police say the victim, "heather," suffered a broken vertebra and a separated shoulder during her struggle with Neal Falls. Detectives say she will not face charges in the shooting.

Topic: JEB BUSH AND HOW HE SAYS HE WILL DEAL WITH THE ISSUE OF UNDOCUMENTED IMMIGRANTS

Synopsis:

Republican White House hopeful Jeb Bush vows to launch comprehensive immigration reform, including stronger borders and finding a way for the 11 million undocumented people in the country to make their status legal. Back in 2008, then-candidate Barack Obama pledged to seek a major immigration policy reform that would let the undocumented stay indefinitely. But his efforts hit a wall in the Republican-run Congress.

According to former Florida governor Bush, a president is only going to be able to carry off the sometimes controversial issue if the new leader "is committed to protecting the border" and to building peoples' trust. "That is the way it is. I am making the commitment, and I know that we can get it done," Bush said in an interview with Telemundo network, the first he has done completely in Spanish since throwing his hat in the ring.

The son of ex-president George H.W. Bush and brother to former president George W. Bush explained his plan would see 11 million people come out of the shadows, get a legal work permit, pay taxes and a fine, as well as learn English without getting federal benefits but while eventually obtaining permanent legal status. Jeb Bush's take on immigration -- far more liberal than most Republicans' stands -- could help him get more support from Hispanics, the United States fastest-growing minority group.

Millions of Americans were battling a heat wave Wednesday, facing blazing temperatures and thick humidity which will make the summer scorcher only feel worse. Excessive heat warnings were in effect from St. Louis down the Mississippi River and past Memphis - into northeastern Louisiana and including Philadelphia. In total, around 35 million people will be under some sort of heat advisory on Wednesday, according to The Weather Channel. After a blazingly hot Tuesday - with temperatures hitting 94 degrees in New York City - the northwest and northeast were bracing for more tropical weather. The most dangerous heat is forecast for Missouri and Memphis, with predictions that the heat index could climb to 110. Texas and Florida, too, will see temperatures top 100 degrees. Staying cool isn't the only thing to worry about, however: environmental officials have warned the hot and humid weather will produce poor air quality in southern Connecticut, coastal Rhode Island and southeastern Massachusetts.

Synopsis:

The City Council of Los Angeles had voted to ban the ice cream man and other vendors from city parks. The 13-2 vote requires permits for vending food and wares in parks. There is no permit for cart-based businesses, however. The vote presents new language designed to work around a court ban on the council's previous park-vending prohibition, Rob Wilcox of the L.A. City Attorney's Office explained. The dissenting votes came from Gil Cedillo and Curren Price, who've supported forthcoming legislation that would legalize and permit street vendors. Until then, those who hawk fresh fruit and corn in this most Latino of America mega-cities are outlaws. East L.A. Community Corporation has been pushing to legalize the city's 50,000 or so vendors through its Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign. It says the action, which requires a second vote before it can become law, is a minor hurdle. The organization had been hosting regional meetings with vendors to determine how they'd like the legalization proposal to take shape. Ideas include requiring special city permits (county health clearances are standard for food handlers) and creating some off-limits zones. If the measure goes into effect, it could mean heavy fines and even jail fines for those who insist in operating in parks, beaches or public spaces without proper permits.

CALIFORNIA LESS WATER CONSUMPTION

JAIME GARCIA / LOS ANGELES, CA

PKG 1:53

Synopsis:

New satellite images released on Thursday (July 31) by NASA show two weather extremes on the east and west coasts of the United States. The data shows a visualization of heavy rainfall in the eastern half for the country and a persistent drought in the west for the first half of 2015. The findings from NASA's earth observing satellites also point to a prolonged drought for California that is already struggling with its worst drought on record. The dry weather has damaged the state's $45 billion agriculture industry and forced officials for the first time in 40 years to limit longtime water rights for farmers and others in Northern and Central California.. Experts have also predicted an unusually active and destructive wildfire season for the state as a result of the dry conditions. "The situation in California right now is pretty extreme, even as you look across the United States and out further to the rest of the globe. Essentially, to compensate for the deficit you see in California right now, you'd need to fill the entire state knee-deep in water," said NASA scientist Dr. Doug Morton.

Synopsis:

Donald Trump is staking his run for U.S. president in part on a vow to protect American jobs. But this month, one of his companies, the elite Mar-a-Lago Club resort in Florida, applied to import 70 foreign workers to serve as cooks, wait staff and cleaners. An analysis of U.S. government data reveals that this is business as usual in the New York property magnate's empire. Trump owns companies that have sought to import at least 1,100 foreign workers on temporary visas since 2000, according to U.S. Department of Labor data reviewed by Reuters. Most of the applications were approved, the data show. Nine companies majority-owned by Trump have sought to bring in foreign waitresses, cooks, vineyard workers and other laborers on temporary work-visa programs administered by the Labor Department. The candidate's foreign talent hunt included applications for an assistant golf-course superintendent, an assistant hotel manager and a banquet manager. Two of his companies, Trump Model Management and Trump Management Group LLC, have sought visas for nearly 250 foreign fashion models, the records show. Trump's presidential campaign and a lawyer for the businessman declined to comment. The Mar-a-Lago Club could not be reached for comment.

SEVERAL TENS OF EVACUEES DUE TO SEVERE WEATHER IN US

JUAN CARLOS AGUIAR / MIAMI, FLA

Synopsis:

Heavy flooding in several parts of western Florida forced families to evacuate their homes on Monday (August 03) as torrential rains battered the 'Sunshine State'. National Weather Service flood warnings remained in effect in the Tampa area and a flood watches were in effect in several of the surrounding areas. Local news stations reported that dozens of people had been forced from their homes. Local residents packed sandbags to try and staunch the rising waters, which closed down numerous roads. The Midwest cleaned up on Monday after a weekend of rough weather that left one person dead, and 25 million people were at risk of severe thunderstorms as the system pushed toward the Northeast. A man was killed when a tent collapsed at a festival outside Chicago on Sunday during a storm that produced 60 mph wind and large hail. At least 15 people were taken to the hospital, three with serious injuries. A strong thunderstorm cut a 5-mile path of destruction in the city of Grayslake, Illinois, bringing down trees and tearing roofs off buildings, and a tornado was captured on camera in Iowa. Barns were reported damaged, but there were no known injuries. In Chicago, organizers had to suspend Lollapalooza for an hour because of a thunderstorm, then end it half an hour early. As the storm system rolled east, the risk of severe weather on Monday stretched from Kentucky to Maine and included Cleveland, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh.

NEW YORK TOY GUN ACTION

ENNY PICHARDO /NEW YORK

PKG 1:46

Synopsis:

A toy gun is supposed to look like a toy - not a gun. In New York, it cannot be black, blue or silver. It should have bright neon colors in New York City, and a strip of orange around the barrel in the state. That's the law. Yet, the office of New York's Attorney General Eric Schneiderman found that retailers had sold more than 6,400 toy guns to New York families in the last three years that looked all too real. If you have not seen what some businesses sell as a fake weapon, look up "toy gun" on the Internet. These are not see-through plastic water pistols. They are replicas of assault rifles, shotguns and handguns that could fool all but a gun expert, especially at a distance. The toy gun problem became national issue after Tamir Rice, a 12-year-old who was carrying a toy gun in a local park, was shot and killed last November by Cleveland police who mistook the toy for a real weapon. Mr. Schneiderman's team found that over the last two decades in New York, there have been hundreds of crimes committed with fake weapons and 63 shootings "as a result of someone holding a toy or imitation weapon." Eight of those encounters were fatal. On Monday, Mr. Schneiderman announced an agreement with five major retailers - Walmart, Kmart, Amazon.com, Sears and ACTA, a California-based company that operates toy websites - to stop sales of these imitation guns and pay more than $300,000 in fines. This is good start. Mr. Schneiderman has also said that his office will continue to monitor stores and websites that fail to ban sales of imitation weapons to New Yorkers. Other states, including California, are also working to restrict sales of fake guns, which can be hazardous, especially to the person holding them.

GOP SELECTS 10 CANDIDATES FOR DEBATE

VO: 22

The first primetime debate of the Republican primary race on Thursday will include ten candidates, according to Fox News: Donald Trump, Jeb Bush, Scott Walker, Mike Huckabee, Ben Carson, Ted Cruz, Marco Rubio, Rand Paul, Chris Christie and John Kasich. Fox, which is hosting the debate in Cleveland, Ohio, announced the list of the top 10 candidates based on recent national polling on air at 6pm ET Tuesday. Ohio Gov. John Kasich, who earlier last week was at risk of missing the cut for the primetime debate in his home state, made the cut at the 10th spot, edging out former Texas Gov. Rick Perry. Candidates that did not make the cut will participate in a separate debate earlier on Thursday. Those Republicans are: Perry, Rick Santorum, Bobby Jindal, Carly Fiorina, Lindsey Graham, Jim Gilmore and George Pataki. The network used the average of five recent national polls to calculate the top 10 candidates. Those polls were conducted by Quinnipiac University, Monmouth University, CBS News, Fox News and Bloomberg.

PUERTO RICO DEFAULTS ON NATIONAL DEBT

Puerto Rico just went into default for the first time in its history. The commonwealth paid a mere $628,000 toward a $58 million debt bill due Monday to creditors of its Public Finance Corporation. This will hurt the island's residents, not Wall Street. The debt is mostly owned by ordinary Puerto Ricans through credit unions. The default is a historic moment in Puerto Rico's economic "death spiral a term the island's governor, Alejandro Garcia Padilla, has used. The island is struggling with about $70 billion in total outstanding debt, and its economy is in recession. Padilla has put together a team to come up with a plan to restructure Puerto Rico's debt crisis by the end of the summer.

The biggest blaze - the so-called Rocky fire north of San Francisco - has already consumed more than 101 square miles (262 sq km) of land. On Monday afternoon the fire jumped a highway that had been containing it. More than 3,000 firefighters were employed to fight that specific blaze. By Tuesday afternoon, cooler weather helped make a buffer between the flames and the 5,500 homes they could destroy. No additional homes were destroyed on Tuesday, after 24 were burnt down the day before.

RACISM STILL A BIG PROBLEM IN THE IS ACCORDING TO PEW STUDY AMONG LATINOS

BLANCA ROSA VILCHEZ / NEW YORK

Pkg 1:57

Synopsis:

A national survey finds the majority of Hispanics say racism continues to be a big problem in society, and they're not the only ones who think this way. The Pew Research Center released a poll Wednesday that shows 58 percent of Latinos characterize racism as a significant problem, along with 73 percent of African Americans. Among whites, just 44 percent say racism is a big problem, but it's an increase of 17 percentage points since 2010. When looking at the country as a whole, half of the American public says racism is a big problem in today's society. Just 33 percent of Americans said this five years ago and only 26 percent said so in January 2009, when Barack Obama was inaugurated as the United States' first black president. The poll, conducted July 14-20 among 2,002 adults, also asked whether or not the country "needs to continue making changes to give blacks equal rights with whites." Roughly six in ten Americans, or 59 percent, say more changes are needed. That's up from 46 percent from a year ago. Meanwhile, almost a third of Americans (32 percent) say the country has already made the necessary changes.

James Holmes was sentenced to life without parole today by a jury at a Colorado courthouse, more than three years after he killed 12 people and injured 70 more. The shooting in Aurora, Colorado on July 20, 2012, rocked the nation and counted among its victims 6-year-old Veronica Moser-Sullivan, who liked coloring and loved to camp. The jury deliberated for just under 7 hours, but could not come to a unanimous decision on the death penalty for two counts of first degree murder for each of the victims who were killed. In order for Holmes to have received the death penalty, the jury -- comprised of 9 women and 3 men -- would have had to all agree on death as the punishment. As a result, Holmes was automatically given life in prison.

Donald Trump is not coming to Atlanta this weekend after all. The organizer of the RedState Gathering has rescinded the Republican presidential candidate's invitation to speak at a Saturday evening rally at the College Football Hall of Fame. Erick Erickson said the billionaire's comments about Fox News anchor Megyn Kelly were "a bridge too far." Trump told CNN on Friday that "you could see there was blood coming out of her eyes. Blood coming out of her wherever" as she questioned him during Thursday's Republican presidential debate. Here's precisely what Trump said: Erickson took issue with Trump's comments - particularly the "wherever" part - in a post to his blog overnight. A taste: "While Mr. Trump resonates with a lot of people with his bluntness, including me to a degree, there are just real lines of decency a person running for President should not cross. "His comment was inappropriate. It is unfortunate to have to disinvite him. But I just don't want someone on stage who gets a hostile question from a lady and his first inclination is to imply it was hormonal. It just was wrong." Erickson elaborated on Saturday morning, telling the event's hundreds of attendees that he thought it was "weak and pathetic to take a tough question from a journalist and assume she's on her period and that's why she asked a tough question."

EE.UU VISAS

VO: 31

The Department of Homeland Security has toughened air travel requirements on foreign governments in response to what it believes is the growing threat from fighters who have gone to Syria and Iraq to join the Islamic State and other groups, senior American officials said Thursday. The changes will be applied to the so-called visa waiver program that the United States has with 38 countries. The program allows citizens of those countries to enter the United States on visits of fewer than 90 days without being interviewed for visas at American consulates and embassies. Countries participating in the program will now be required to allow more American air marshals on flights to the United States. They also must use passports that rely on biometric identifiers, like fingerprints, and have electronic chips that contain a photograph of the holder. Older passports typically do not have these features. A small percentage of travelers who entered the United States last year through the visa waiver program had the older passports.

BRIBES PAID TO CALIFORNIA DMV EMPLOYEES FOR ILLEGAL COMERCIAL DRIVERS LICENSES

JUAN CARLOS GONZALEZ / LOS ANGELES, CA

PKG 1:51

Synopsis:

At least 100 commercial truck drivers paid up to $5,000 each to bribe California Department of Motor Vehicles employees for illegal licenses, federal authorities said on Tuesday. Officials said up to 23 traffic accidents could be related to the fraud, though there were no fatalities. Emma Klem, a 45-year-old Salinas DMV employee, and trucking school owner Kulwidner Dosanjh Singh, 58, both pleaded guilty Tuesday to commit bribery and identity fraud, U.S. Attorney Benjamin Wagner said. Two other DMV employees in Salinas and Sacramento and two other Central Valley trucking school operators have been arrested on similar charges. The employees changed computer records to falsely show that drivers had passed written and behind-the-wheel tests after they were bribed by the owners of three truck-driving schools between June 2011 and March 2015, according to court documents. "Individuals who use their positions to obtain commercial drivers' licenses for unskilled and untested drivers jeopardize our nation's security and safety. Allowing unqualified drivers to operate heavy commercial trucks on our highways is honestly quite chilling," said Carol Webster, acting assistant special agent in charge of the U.S. Homeland Security Investigations office in Sacramento. DMV examiners Andrew Kimura, 30, of Sacramento and Robert Turchin, 65, of Salinas were indicted last week on charges of conspiracy, bribery and fraud in connection with identification documents, along with trucking school owners Pavitar Dosangh Singh, 55, of Sacramento, and Mangal Gill, 55, of San Ramon. Class A commercial drivers' licenses are required to operate trucks, including 18-wheel cargo semitrailers. They are tougher to obtain than regular driver licenses. Applicants must pass both a written test and a behind-the-wheel test that is offered at a limited number of DMV locations, including Salinas. The DMV has canceled or revoked more than 600 licenses that are potentially linked to fraud, including 100 that were pinpointed by investigators, DMV chief investigator Frank Alvarez said. Drivers can retake the tests, sometimes after a hearing, and Wagner said none are likely to be prosecuted during the ongoing probe because investigators are targeting the organizers.

Topic: FDA APPROVED OXYCONTIN TO CONTROL PAIN IN CHILDREN

Synopsis:

The Food and Drug Administration has approved the powerful narcotic painkiller OxyContin for children as young as 11. While doctors who treat young cancer patients hailed the approval, others expressed concern that prescribing OxyContin to children could put them at risk for addiction. OxyContin, an extended-release version of the painkiller oxycodone, has gained notoriety in recent years because of its frequent abuse. People addicted to painkillers crush the pills so that they can be snorted or injected, producing a powerful high. In 2010, Purdue Pharma reformulated OxyContin to make it more difficult to abuse. The FDA notes that children generally have many fewer options for pain relief than adults. Because of that problem, the FDA asked Purdue to perform studies to see if the drug could be used safely in children ages 11 to 16 with pain caused by cancer, trauma or major surgery, said Sharon Hertz, a physician with the FDA's Center for Drug Evaluation and Research, in an interview on the agency's website. The FDA approved OxyContin for children this age who need "daily, round-the-clock, long-term" pain relief for which there is no alternative, Hertz said. Doctors should only prescribe OxyContin in children who have already been treated with opiate painkillers and who can tolerate at least 20 milligrams a day of oxycodone. Other than OxyContin, the only other long-acting painkiller approved for children is Duragesic, also known as fentanyl, Hertz said. "Children are not treated with opioids very often and usually it's only for a limited period of time with close supervision by health care professionals," Hertz said. "Fewer daily doses may free patients for physical therapy appointments, allow them to go home from the hospital sooner and may help them to sleep through the night without waking up." Doctors who treat pediatric cancer patients hailed the approval as a way to ease children's suffering. Children at the end of life aren't at risk of addiction.

Synopsis:

A fire that has been burning for more than a week about 100 miles north of San Francisco has destroyed nine homes and charred more than 39 square miles. But firefighters are gaining ground against the wildfire with 85 percent containment reported Monday. Fire officials say that over the weekend smoke from the fire drifted into the San Francisco Bay Area and especially east of the city, where it was trapped in valleys for several days, causing hazy skies and breathing difficulties for some. The fire is the second of two blazes that have charred land near dry Lower Lake. The first one, which was contained Friday after more than two weeks, destroyed 43 homes. More crews, including some from the Washington National Guard, were being mobilized as several large fires threatened homes in the Chelan area in central Washington. The blazes have destroyed more than 50 structures, forced about 1,500 residents to flee and scorched more than 155 square miles. Scores of homes remain threatened. Fire incident spokesman Wayne Patterson says air tankers established lines to keep the flames from reaching downtown Chelan, a popular resort town. Helicopters have been dipping into Lake Chelan to pull up water to battle blazes north of the lake. Improved weather helped firefighters Sunday, but hot temperatures and low humidity are expected this week.

Sanders is riding an unlikely wave of popularity in the early days of the democrats' presidential nominating contest, which many have considered a lock for park ridge native Hillary Rodham Clinton. The veteran senator has packed stadiums on the west coast and drawn hordes at the Iowa state fair by comparison, Monday's event was a low-key affair - a $50-per-person fundraiser that drew more than 600 people. But attendees still got the Sanders experience that has come to define his campaign: a nearly hour-long speech punctuated by repeated references to the country's growing wealth divide. Appeals to the crowd as "brothers and sisters." pledges to provide tuition-free college, enact a $15-an-hour federal minimum wage and go after corporations that avoid paying taxes by parking money overseas. Also, Republican presidential candidate Jeb Bush met with veterans and stumped in South Carolina today. When asked about Donald Trump's just-released plan on immigration -- in which he calls for building a wall across the U.S.-Mexico border -- this is what Bush had to say. "I appreciate the fact Mr. Trump has a plan, if that's what it's called, but the better approach is to deal with the 11 million people who are here illegally in a way that is realistic and to have border security done in a way to lessen the number of people who are crossing the border."

Despite criticism from some GOP presidential contenders this week of Donald Trump's immigration plan, the six-page proposal is actually a collection of what many Republicans have already been pushing on the campaign trail. Trump's plan to seek out and deport immigrants who enter the country legally but overstay their visas? That's one of the six points in former Florida governor Jeb Bush's immigration plan. His goals of securing the border, punishing sanctuary cities in the U.S. and expanding an employer's ability to check the immigration status of new hires. Even some groups that oppose illegal immigration have offered critiques. While it's not spelled out in his policy paper, Trump said on Meet the Press on Sunday that he would deport all 11 million undocumented immigrants from the U.S.

UNDOCUMENTED IMMIGRANT WHO WORKS IN A TRUMP HOTEL

VO-SOT 1 MINUTE

Synopsis:

Meet Ricardo Aca, an undocumented immigrant who works at the Trump SoHo hotel in New York City. Aca is the subject of a short video profile produced by New Left Media in which the Puebla, Mexico native addresses Donald Trump's assertion that Mexican immigrants are criminals, drug dealers and rapists. "Trump keeps pointing out all these immigrants that have done these terrible things, but those aren't the immigrants that I know. That's not what we're like," Aca said in the video. "It doesn't make me proud to go to work every day under his name." Though he fears he may lose his job for speaking out against Trump, Aca says he feels compelled to prove the Republican presidential candidate wrong.

TOXIC LEAD REMOVAL COULD BE CALIFORNIA'S BIGGEST YET

JUAN CARLOS GONZALEZ / CALIFORNIA

PKG 2:02

Synopsis:

The task of removing lead-contaminated soil from thousands of homes near a closed Vernon battery recycling plant would be the largest cleanup of its kind in California and rank among the biggest conducted nationwide, say environmental officials and experts in toxic remediation. The California Department of Toxic Substances Control announced last week that soil testing shows decades of air pollution from the Exide Technologies facility deposited toxic dust across a wider area of southeast L.A. County than previously estimated, possibly fouling as many as 10,000 homes. Community groups that rallied for the plant's closure are now urging state officials to dedicate additional funds quickly to expand soil testing and clean more homes. Over the last year, contaminated soil has been removed and replaced at 146 of the homes closest to the facility in Maywood and Boyle Heights, with Exide footing the bill.

IMMIGRATION-CENTER PROTESTERS DEMAND CHANGE

DULCE MASCARENO / PHOENIX, ARIZONA

PKG 2 MIN

Synopsis:

Protesters gathered outside the Phoenix Immigration and Customs Enforcement Office on Thursday morning to memorialize detainees who died at a detention center in Eloy and to demand the shutdown of detention centers nationwide. Thursday marked three months since the death of inmate Jose de Jesus Deniz Sahagun, who federal officials say committed suicide. Denis was the 14th person to die at Eloy Detention Center since 2003, making it the deadliest immigrant-detention facility in the country. Former Eloy detainees and employees of Puente Arizona, a grassroots migrants-right organization, gathered around 11 a.m. holding signs that read, "Justice for Jose de Jesus" and "If I die in ICE custody, don't believe their lies." Puente Arizona maintains that there are discrepancies in the official accounts of the deaths of detainees at Eloy.

DEADLY NYC LEGIONNAIRES' OUTBREAK IDENTIFIED

VO: 30 SEC.

Synopsis:

Health officials have identified a cooling tower at the Opera House Hotel as the source of the Legionnaires' spike that has sickened more than 120 people in the Bronx, killing 12 of them, since July, marking the largest outbreak of the disease in New York City history. The tower at the Opera House Hotel was disinfected Aug. 1, authorities said. The last case reported in connection with the outbreak was reported two days later. Local, state and federal officials tested samples from 25 patients linked to the outbreak, including some who died, and in each case found a match to the strain of Legionella found in the cooling tower at the Opera House Hotel. Health Commissioner Mary Bassett made the announcement at an afternoon news briefing Thursday as she declared the outbreak was "over."

LACK OF UBER'S DRIVER SCREENING PRACTICES

LUIS MEGID / SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

PKG 2 MIN

Synopsis:

The ride-hailing revolution holds the potential to radically change the way people get around. But the political battle over Uber and Lyft in California has focused on something more obscure: fingerprints. Uber is facing some of the fiercest challenges to its business practices from an array of California officials who claim the Silicon Valley-based company does not adequately screen its rapidly expanding pool of tens of thousands of drivers. In Los Angeles, Sacramento and San Francisco, the 5-year-old company valued at $50 billion is battling demands that it use law enforcement fingerprint checks to help ensure customers aren't getting into cars with drivers who have recent records of violence or crime. The debate intensified this week. Los Angeles lawmakers weighed a proposal to allow the services full access to Los Angeles International Airport, while district attorneys in L.A. and San Francisco said they had identified 25 Uber drivers with convictions for murder, assault, driving under the influence and other offenses.

DONALD TRUMP IN ALABAMA

JUAN CARLOS AGUIAR / MIAMI, FL

PKG 2:07

Synopsis:

Supporters from deep red Alabama to a Friday night pep rally in a football stadium, the latest sign that the Republican front-runner has broad, nationwide strength. Over an hour of often rambling remarks, the New York businessman reveled in the crowd size while he offered them his usual menu of patriotic pledges and carefree criticism of the media, his opponents and political correctness that he said his crowd similarly despised. "We've gotten an amazing reception," Trump said as he began his remarks, turning his back to the podium at the Ladd-Peebles Stadium and pointing to the rafters behind him. "Has this been crazy? Man!" The event had the trappings of a big Friday night high school match-up. Trump flew by the stadium in his private jet shortly before 6 p.m., doing a loop around the arena before landing. The fly-by was announced over the stadium's loudspeaker to cheers. The event was previously planned to be held at the nearby Civic Center but was moved to the 43,000-seat Ladd-Peebles Stadium -- a venue normally home to high school football games -- to accommodate the crowd. The City of Mobile confirmed late Friday that 30,000 people attended. Trump -- whose victory in national and early-state polls is no longer a surprise -- has in recent weeks taken steps to quickly professionalize his politics.

PROPOSAL TO CONFISCATE MONEY ORDERS BY UNDOCUMENTED IMMIGRANTS IN THE U.S

VIVIANA AVILA / CHICAGO, IL

PKG 1:59

Synopsis:

The Trump administration would, Congress permitting, confiscate any money sent by unauthorized immigrants back to their relatives. Trump's proposal claims that Mexico got $22 billion in remittances from "illegal immigrants" last year; in fact, that's the amount of remittances sent to Mexico period - from legal immigrants, unauthorized immigrants, and even Mexican emigrants in countries other than the US (though the last group only sent 2 percent of remittances). This raises the question of how Trump would differentiate between legal and unauthorized immigrants' remittances. Trump also wants to ban unauthorized immigrants from receiving tax credits, most of which are supposed to assist their US-citizen children. However, he also wants to get around that problem by banning birthright citizenship (presumably by altering the 14th Amendment or getting the Supreme Court to overturn its 1898 decision that codified it), meaning the US-born children of unauthorized immigrants wouldn't be citizens anyway. Like Jeb Bush, he wants to require all employers to use the E-Verify system to check employees' status before hiring them - which, in theory, would make it impossible for unauthorized immigrants to get jobs.

MORE AND MORE ARE OPTING FOR TINY HOUSES IN THE US

CLAUDIA UCEDA / WASHINGTON, DC

PKG 1:58

Synopsis:

America is having a big love affair with tiny houses. There are television shows: "Tiny House Nation" and "Tiny House Hunters." There are movies: "Tiny: A Story About Living Small" and "Small Is Beautiful: A Tiny House Documentary." Pinterest has more than 900 boards devoted to tiny houses, and design website Houzz showcases thousands of tiny- house photos. "Many Houzz readers have been fascinated by the idea of a portable home they can pay off quickly and personalize down to the smallest detail," says editor Sheila Schmitz. And you know a concept has arrived when "Portlandia" skewers it: Check out the "Micro house" episode. Why are Americans, whose homes average about 2,200 square feet, so obsessed with tiny homes? Perhaps they are responding to the benefits tiny-house owners cite: financial and emotional freedom, a greener lifestyle, the satisfaction of building one's own refuge. The phrase "'tiny house' put a name to the movement that was already there," says Thom Stanton, a tiny-home builder in West Virginia.

JAIME GARCIA / LOS ANGELES, CA

PKG 2:08

Synopsis:

A performance gap on the ACT college entrance exam persisted this year between California's Latino and white high school students, according to new test results Readiness for College...Latinos struggle to close gap with whites in California ACT scores...A performance gap on the ACT college entrance exam persisted this year between California's Latino and white high school students, according to new test results. Educators and experts find this trend particularly concerning. They had hoped for better results from the relatively small segment of test takers who are largely a self-selected group of students who are motivated to get to college. "I find it really disturbing," said Mark Schneider, a vice president at American Institutes for Research who previously directed the federal government's education research arm. Across the country, the class of 2015 stagnated, with 40% of the 1.9 million test takers showing what the organization calls "strong readiness," according to results released Wednesday. In California, 30% of the class of 2015 took the test. California students overall outperformed their peers nationally. While 28% of students across the country met all four ACT targets, intended to represent college success, 37% of California's test takers did so. California's test takers had an average overall score of 22.5, compared to 21 nationally. A maximum score is 36. The gap between Latino and white students has remained since at least 2011. In 2011, 25% of Latino students met three or more ACT targets, compared to 69% of white students. In 2015, 28% of Latino students met three or more, compared to 70% of whites - representing a continuous gap of more than 40 percentage points. The ethnic breakdown of test takers is not precisely the same as the state's: nearly 28% of test takers were white, and about 38% were Latino. According to census data, California's population between the ages of 18 and 24 is 31% white and 47% Latino.

ENNY PICHARDO / NEW YORK

PKG 2 MIN

Synopsis:

A new poll shows Joe Biden performing a little better than Hillary Clinton against the leading GOP candidates in a general election matchup, and his favorability is higher than that of any candidate -- Democrat or Republican. Quinnipiac University's national poll, released Thursday, finds that Clinton remains the Democratic frontrunner with 45 percent, but her lead over Bernie Sanders has slipped by 10 percentage points. Sanders has 22 percent, and Biden comes in third with 18 percent. On the Republican side, Donald Trump broadened his lead -- he's now at 28 percent, with Ben Carson trailing at 12 percent and Jeb Bush slipping back into a three-way tie for third with Ted Cruz and Marco Rubio (they each have 7 percent). But Trump is also the candidate with the highest percentage of GOP voters (26 percent) who say there's "no way" they would support him. Eleven percent of Democrats would say "no way" to Clinton.

JUAN CARLOS GONZALEZ / ESCONDIDO, CALIFORNIA

PKG 2 MIN

Synopsis:

Though they blended in with the vibrant crowd circulating through the San Ysidro Port of Entry on Tuesday, the six people wearing wide grins weren't tourists or daytime shoppers. They were crossing the border with hopes of gaining the right to live in the United States. The six were the first members of a class-action lawsuit eligible to return to the U.S. under the provisions of a settlement reached between the American Civil Liberties Union and the Department of Homeland Security earlier this year. There are likely hundreds of unauthorized immigrants like them. The lawsuit was filed by the ACLU in 2013 accusing U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement and the Border Patrol in Southern California of using coercive tactics to pressure unauthorized immigrants into voluntarily leaving the United States. The suit, filed on behalf of nine Mexican nationals and three immigrant advocacy organizations, said the immigrants were deprived of their right to be heard by an immigration judge, who might have granted them legal status under certain programs.

13,000 FALL INTO HOMELESSNESS EVERY MONTH, REPORT SAYS

JAIME GARCIA / LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

PKG 2 MIN

Synopsis:

About 13,000 people on public assistance tumble into homelessness every month in Los Angeles County, according to a new study that experts say provides the clearest picture yet of extreme poverty in the region. Although many quickly find work or rely on family to get off the streets, the number experiencing "continuous, unremitting, chronic homelessness" continues to grow, even after 10,000 people were housed over the last three years, according to the report being released Tuesday by the Economic Roundtable, a nonprofit research group in Los Angeles. The report recommended that the welfare system intervene to help children and young adults who become homeless before their condition becomes chronic. The group's analysis was based on records for 9 million county residents who received public assistance at any point between 2002 and 2010. The study said many systems, including disability screening, mental health, foster care and criminal justice, fed into the homelessness pipeline. The 2007 to 2010 recession also drove many out of their homes. Several homeless service providers said most of these factors had been discussed anecdotally for years, but the report is the first to capture the scale of the problem and predicted it could have a strong impact.

LUIS MEGID / SAN FRANCISCO, CA

PKG 1:56

Synopsis:

No one disputes that Juan Francisco Lopez Sanchez killed Kathreen Steinle with a gunshot at the San Francisco boardwalk, the question is more if the shot was intentional. A defense expert testified in a preliminary hearing that the gun that delivered the deadly shot was pointed to the ground. Accidentally or not, the weapon was fired before ricocheting into the concrete floor of the boardwalk and wounding the woman mortally. The bullet casing mark can still be seen, the billet could have bounced in a thousand different directions, but, its trajectory was in the direction of Kathreen Steinlee who was net to her father and a friend. The State Attorney insists that it was a homicide, as Lopez Sanchez fired the weapon in a public area and anyone could have been killed. The defendant contends that he found the gun wrapped in a shirt and that it fired as he tried to unfold it. Many insist the tragedy could have been avoided if Sanchez Lopez, (5 times deported) would have been expelled from the U.S when he was in ins hands earlier this year. Republican Legislators in Sacramento want to make sure this does not happen again and are proposing a state law which will not allow cities like San Francisco to take custody of immigration detainees such as Sanchez Lopez.

TRUMP PLEDGE
BLANCA ROSA VÍLCHEZ / NUEVA YORK
PKG 2:07
SYNOPSIS:

US presidential hopeful Donald Trump has agreed not to run as an independent candidate if he loses the Republican nomination for the 2016 elections. "I will be totally pledging my allegiance to the Republican Party and the conservative principles for which it stands," he said on Thursday. He had earlier refused to rule it out. The billionaire business mogul, who has been soaring in the polls, has come under pressure in recent weeks from the Republican Party to sign the pledge. His announcement on Thursday will be seen as a victory for the party, who may have seen a split in its support and given the Democrats a boost had Donald Trump pressed ahead as an independent candidate. He said he had received nothing for signing the loyalty pledge, aside from the assurance that he would be treated fairly in the race. 'Won't tear it up' Mr. Trump was booed by audience members during the Republican presidential debate earlier this month after he refused to rule out a third-party run. He was the only candidate not to commit to back the winner of the party's primaries. The Republican Party National Committee has since sought a loyalty pledge from each of its presidential hopefuls, in what is believed to be a first for the party. "The best way forward... to win, is if I win the nomination and go direct against whoever (the Democrats) happen to put up. So for that reason, I have signed the pledge," Mr. Trump told reporters gathered at his campaign headquarters in New York.

The Assembly passed a bill today by Senate President pro Tempore Kevin de León and Speaker Toni G. Atkins to reduce the threat of deportation of immigrant crime victims and foster their trust and cooperation with law enforcement. SB 674, the Immigrant Victims of Crime Equity Act, requires local and state law enforcement agencies to sign certifications for qualified immigrant crime victims when they have been helpful to the investigation of crimes like sexual assault and domestic violence. These certifications are prerequisites to an application for a Victim of Crime "U-Visa." U-Visas are issued by the federal government and prevent deportation of victims of specific crimes who have been helpful to the investigation or prosecution. Pro Tem De León and Speaker Atkins say that SB 674 is necessary because some local law enforcement officials deny certification based on their political views on immigration and not the criteria established by the U-Visa process. Eleazar Misael Pérez came to one of the most important meetings of his life, today he went to the immigration office to solve his legal situation in the united states. In just 20 minutes he got the signature he needed and was asked to return in one years' time. Eleazar arrived in the us 9 years ago from Guatemala and had been working as a roofer in the state of Arizona (no criminal record at all). This time he sought refuge at a church because of fears of being deport. In 2010 when the SB1070 law came into effect, he feared being deported. During a traffic stop by the Maricopa Sheriff's Office, he was arrested for not having documents and was detained for 18 days. His cousin was deported from Costa Mesa, California. 4 or 5 months later he was found decapitated and his hands mutilated. He hopes his case serves as an example and he supports "Rosa" another undocumented immigrant who is still inside a church in Tucson, Arizona, not being able to solve her legal situation. With Misael, there were 4 immigrants in church sanctuaries who are trying to avoid deportation.

AS THE HEAT WAVE CONTINUES ACROSS SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, SO DOES THE MISERY

VO: 0:23

After a record-breaking heat wave broiled the region this week, temperatures throughout Southern California were expected to dip slightly Saturday as part of a cooling trend that will continue into early next week. High temperatures in most areas around Los Angeles are expected to be about five to 10 degrees cooler than Friday, said Scott Sukup, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Oxnard. Still, forecasters predicted highs of 91 in downtown Los Angeles, 94 in Burbank and 101 in Woodland Hills. The reprieve comes after a heat wave hit Southern California midweek, the result of a large high pressure system that developed over the Four Corners region combined with light onshore winds, according to the weather service. It was the second heat wave to hit the region this month. Friday's high temperatures tied or broke records for the date, including 96 degrees in Long Beach, tying a 2009 record, and 95 in Camarillo, smashing the previous record of 86, also set in 2009.

Forty homes were evacuated as firefighters attacked a fast-spreading brush fire scorching hillsides near Fullerton and La Habra neighborhoods Tuesday. The blaze was first reported just before 4 p.m. Less than two hours later, it had advanced within a few hundred yards of homes, fire officials said. By late Tuesday night, the first was 80 acres and about 95 percent contained. Water-dropping aircraft, including helicopters and a pair of Super Scoopers, were called in to help protect homes. Police were going door to door evacuating at least 10 streets in surrounding neighborhoods, said Chief Julie Kunze, spokeswoman for the Fullerton Fire Department. The evacuations began from Somerset Lane to Euclid Street.

Obama set the tone Friday for a nation marking a dark day with solemn ceremonies. Fourteen years ago Friday, terrorists hijacked four passenger planes and smashed two into New York's World Trade Center. A third jetliner rammed into the Pentagon outside Washington while a fourth one crash-landed on an empty field in Pennsylvania. By the time the carnage was over, the hijackers had killed 2,977 people in the deadliest terrorist attack on American soil. People, buildings and planes fell from the sky. Terrified strangers became friends as Americans united on a day that changed the world forever.

PKG 1:57

Synopsis:

In the U.S' most populous state a controversial law is about to be signed by the Governor Jerry Brown. According to State Senator Bill Monning it is a bill that will forever change the rights of persons with terminal illnesses. The case of 28 year-old Brittany Maynard is at the center of the bill, she asked to be administered a medication that will allow her to die and end her suffering, she was forced to seek assistance in another place. No, according to those who back the bill in the California Senate, there are options for the patient and his or her family. With a vote of 43 in favor and 34 against, the measure overcame tough obstacles. In the state of Oregon, after the approval of euthanasia there has been a 49% increase of assisted suicide amount terminal patients, that is 41 percent over the national average. Religious groups reject the option which will allow the governor's signature in a 90 day period. other states that have approved assisted suicide are: Oregon, Washington, Vermont, Montana and New México.

Synopsis:

Los Angeles County investigated abuse of 3 children stabbed to death by their father Luis Fuentes who was officially detained as the prime suspect in the case. Police say a man is suspected of stabbing his three sons to death before apparently stabbing himself in the chest early Wednesday. LAPD Chief Charlie Beck told reporters that police responded to the scene in South Los Angeles, near the University of Southern California, just after 7 a.m. local time Wednesday after receiving a 911 call reporting an assault with a deadly weapon. When police arrived, Beck said they found a man in the front seat of a silver SUV with a stab wound to his chest. The bodies of the man's three sons, who were between 8 and 12 years old, were in the back seat. They had been stabbed multiple times. LAPD spokesman Matthew Ludwig said the man was a suspect in the children's death. He remained hospitalized in critical condition late Wednesday. At his news conference, Beck emphasized that a suspect was in custody and there was no danger to the community. Officials said that the boys' stepmother was being interviewed by police. Beck said the boys' biological mother was believed to be deceased.

The firestorm continues to grow in the "Valley" at "Lake, Sonoma and Napa" counties. Flames cover 67,000 acres and firefighters don't know when they will be able to control the flames. A woman died, 4 firefighters were hurt and several persons are missing in the middle of 585 houses that were reduced to rubble. Firefighters made slow progress against two fast-moving wildfires in northern California early Tuesday, although forecasts for rain midweek signaled temporary relief in what's become a costly, intense wildfire season. The valley fire that sprawled across three counties, including the wine-country counties of Napa and Sonoma, was 62,000 acres and 10% contained, said Cal Fire public information officer Daniel Berlant. While the fire went unchecked across miles of the rolling, drought-parched hillside, any progress was remarkable: as of Monday morning, the third day of the fire, containment had been zero.

When the Valley Fire blew up in this rural area 100 miles north of San Francisco last weekend, many residents fled with only the clothes they were wearing. The suddenness of the fire's surge - half an hour from warning to life-threatening conflagration in many parts of Lake County - sent people scattering, their homes undefended and possessions left to fate or luck. And in a drought-parched state, that luck was bad. The blaze, still only 15 percent contained after consuming more than 67,000 acres, has killed one person and injured four others so far, with 585 homes destroyed and hundreds more that already may be but have not yet been found or recorded, according to state fire officials. About 9,000 structures remain threatened. Financial and personal losses, still uncounted, will be unquestionably staggering.

LOS ANGELES, CA

PKG 2:09

Synopsis:

A five-year-old girl got past Pope Francis' ironclad security operation on Wednesday when she breached the barriers to deliver him a personal letter during the papal parade in Washington D.C. Little Sophie Cruz, who is the daughter of illegal immigrants, managed to make her way through the crowd of thousands lining Constitution Avenue and got within feet of Pope Francis' open-air pope mobile before Secret Service agents stopped her. However, the determined youngster who was wearing a bright yellow T-shirt, caught the eye of the pope who beckoned his guards to allow her to approach. She then handed over a letter pleading for his intervention in her family's battle to stay in the United States. The note called upon the 78-year-old pontiff to help her mother and father, as well as the millions of others who are in the U.S. illegally, to remain in the country. It stated: 'I believe I have the right to live with my parents, I have the right to be happy. 'All immigrants just like my dad help feed this country. They deserve to live with dignity. They deserve to live with respect. They deserve an immigration reform.' She also handed the leader of the Catholic Church a bright yellow t-shirt that read: 'Pope: rescue DAPA, so the legalization would be your blessing.' Pope Francis is renowned for being sympathetic to the plight of migrants and introduced himself to Americans on the podium as 'the son of an immigrant family.' He is expected to lecture Congress of the subject of immigration on Thursday.

Six people who were killed when the SUV they were in crashed following a police chase were being transported by a smuggling organization, federal officials said Thursday. The driver, a U.S. citizen, and two others in the vehicle are believed to be members of the smuggling organization, Leticia Zamarripa, a spokeswoman for U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, said in a statement. The driver was one of the individuals who died in the accident, while the other five killed were immigrants in the U.S. illegally. Officials say the vehicle was packed with the three smuggling ring members and 13 people who were in the country illegally. Those being smuggled in the vehicle were adults from Honduras, Guatemala and Mexico, Zamarripa said. One of the smuggling suspects is from Mexico, and the nationality of the other is unknown, she said. The chase began early Thursday as officers in Edna, 90 miles southwest of Houston, tried to stop the 2003 Ford Explorer for a traffic violation, said city police Chief Clinton Wooldridge. As the vehicle veered onto Highway 59, the driver seemed to overcorrect and the SUV flipped several times, police said. Two of the immigrants were being treated at a hospital in nearby Victoria for fractures, while another was in critical condition at a Houston hospital, Wooldridge said. The other immigrants who were injured in the crash were treated at Jackson County Hospital in Edna and later released into the custody of U.S. Border Patrol agents. Two people who ran from the scene were tracked down and detained.

Topic: DONALD TRUMP / TAX PLAN

Synopsis:

Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump unveiled an ambitious tax plan Monday that he says would eliminate income taxes for millions of households, lower the tax rate on all businesses to 15% and change tax treatment of companies' overseas earnings. Under the Trump plan, no federal income tax would be levied against individuals earning less than $25,000 and married couples earning less than $50,000. The Trump campaign estimates that would reduce taxes to zero for 31 million households that currently pay at least some income tax. The highest individual income-tax rate would be 25%, compared with the current 39.6% rate. Many middle-income households would have a lower tax rate under Mr. Trump's proposal, but because high-income households generally pay income tax at much higher rates, his proposed across-the-board rate cut could have a positive impact on them, too. For example, an analysis of Jeb Bush's plan-taxing individuals' incomes at no more than 28%-by the business-backed Tax Foundation found that the biggest percentage winners in after-tax income would be the top 1% of earners. Mr. Trump's plan appears designed to help him, as the GOP front-runner, cement his standing as a populist-though that message is complicated by the fact that the billionaire, like other Republican leaders, would eliminate the estate tax.

US BORDER PATROL ACUSED OF DESTROYING EVIDENCE OF UNDOCUMENTED IMMIGRANTS

JUAN CARLOS AGUIAR / MIAMI, FL

PKG 1:51

Synopsis:

A federal judge in Arizona has slapped the U.S. Border Patrol with sanctions after he found that agents had "negligently" or "willfully" destroyed evidence of alleged inhumane treatment of immigrants in Tucson detention centers. Videotapes from Tucson sector stations were erased or recorded over in the midst of an ongoing civil rights lawsuit filed against the Border Patrol by a coalition of human rights groups who say agents routinely hold immigrants in cold, dirty, and inhumane cells. The suit (pdf) was filed in June on behalf of three plaintiffs who said detainees are denied food, water, and medical treatment, and held for extended periods of time in facilities which the Border Patrol claims are designed for short term detention. Judge David C. Bury, who issued the sanctions Monday, in August had ordered the Border Patrol not to destroy footage of detainee holding areas-but agents did not comply. Agents will now have to produce all remaining videos from the past several months within two weeks. James Lyall, an attorney with the ACLU, one of the groups which filed the lawsuit, told the Associated Press that a judge issuing sanctions against a government agency is a rare move. The Border Patrol's Tucson sector covers 262 miles of the U.S.-Mexico border. According to the suit, it is one of the most heavily enforced regions. The detention centers are known colloquially as "iceboxes" for their intentionally low temperatures. The lawsuit states: During their confinement, Plaintiffs and many others like them-men, women, and children-have been subjected to inhumane and punitive conditions. They have been packed into overcrowded and filthy holding cells with the lights glaring day and night; stripped of outer layers of clothing and forced to suffer in brutally cold temperatures; deprived of beds, bedding, and sleep; denied adequate food, water, medicine and medical care, and basic sanitation and hygiene items such as soap, sufficient toilet paper, sanitary napkins, diapers, and showers; and held incommunicado in these conditions for days.

CALCIUM DOES NOT STRENGTHEN THE BONES

VO: 25 SEC.

Synopsis:

A new study should put the final nail in the coffin for any lingering beliefs that calcium supplements are good for you. The new study finds that people over 50 don't get stronger bones either by taking supplements or from eating extra servings of calcium-rich foods such as dairy products. The findings, reported in the British Medical Journal's online publication BMJ.com, support what U.S. health officials have been telling Americans for a few years now - taking calcium supplements is not just a waste of time, but it could be harmful. The extra calcium doesn't go to strengthen bones but instead can build up in the arteries, causing heart disease, or in the kidneys, causing kidney stones. Most of the studies showed people over 50 get no benefit at all from taking either calcium supplements or from eating calcium in food. People were just as likely to have a fracture. A few studies showed that people who took calcium supplements might have a lower risk, but they were not very clear.

11:00am : Living with Lupus Living with Lupus

Hispanics are two or three times more likely to be diagnosed with Lupus, an auto immune disease that occurs when the immune system becomes overactive and attacks healthy tissue. According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office of Minority Health, 90% of people with Lupus are women, and Hispanic women tend to develop symptoms at an age younger than women of other nationalities. Recently, the singer Selena Gomez reported that she suffers from Lupus since youth/teenager.

What are the symptoms? How is it diagnosed? What are the treatments? Guests representing the CT Lupus Foundation and Salud Primero respond to these questions. Friends living with Lupus share their own story. In addition, Hartford Hospital informs the community of the new Hartford Mobile Market, in partnership with Hartford Food Systems and Hispanic Health Council.

Guests: Juana Lopez, Irvin Garcia, Cheryl Trzcinski, Eilyn Nieves, Maria Rivera-Velez, Dr. Julian Nieves, Yvette Melendez and Michael Tommasi.

11am : Expanding Health Equity with the CT Health Foundation

What is health equity? If there were an easy answer to that question, there would also probably be an easy solution. But in reality, health equity is a complex and evolving concept. CHF informs our community that health equity is not just an aspiration for them, but is a framework for understanding problems and generating solutions that will help more people, especially populations of color, gain access to better health care.

El Show de Analeh, in partnership with the CT Health Foundation, will begin a series of informational and interactive TV segments featuring in depth coverage about health equity, health care partner agencies and the current perspective on the evolution of access to health care. The segments will air bi-weekly until November 2015.

This half-hour special features: Patricia Baker, Yolanda Caldera-Durant, Dr. Victor Villagra and representatives from the Hispanic Health Council.

Nuestras Forestas Nacionales ...

Alabamos su belleza...nos maravillamos
...con su majestuosidad

Abrazamos su herencia.

Usted sabe cuanto dependemos de
Nuestras Forestas Nacionales?

Para aire puro...materiales para el hogar...
...y agua potable para millones de personas.

Mucho depende de Nuestras Forestas Nacionales, pero ahora ellas dependen de nosotros.

Han sido devastadas por insectos, enfermedad...

...y fuegos tan calientes que destruyen
las semillas del futuro.

La Fundación Arbor Day Foundation le pide ayuda...

... para replantar Nuestras Forestas Nacionales.
Porque mucho depende de lo que hacemos hoy

Tanta belleza.

Tanta vida.

Tanto que apreciamos.

Debemos actuar hoy porque las generaciones del futuro dependen de Nuestras Forestas Nacionales.

DEAR PSA DIRECTOR:

Dear PSA Director, I am a 35-year-old woman with ADHD. I have always been a very organized and diligent person, but since I was diagnosed with ADHD, I have found it difficult to stay organized and focused. I have tried many different strategies, but nothing seems to work. I am looking for your advice and support.

I have also noticed that I often forget things and lose track of time. I have tried using planners and reminders, but I still struggle. I am looking for your advice and support.

I have also noticed that I often feel overwhelmed and stressed. I am looking for your advice and support.

I have also noticed that I often feel frustrated and angry. I am looking for your advice and support.

I have also noticed that I often feel sad and lonely. I am looking for your advice and support.

I have also noticed that I often feel exhausted and tired. I am looking for your advice and support.

I have also noticed that I often feel nervous and anxious. I am looking for your advice and support.

I have also noticed that I often feel hopeless and despairing. I am looking for your advice and support.

I have also noticed that I often feel like I am failing. I am looking for your advice and support.

*The disorder is estimated to affect 4.4% of US adults based on a survey of 3,199 adults aged 18 to 44. By applying this percentage to the full adult population aged 18 and over, about 10 million adults are estimated to have ADHD.

MEGAN: I've always been organized and forgetful. I was late for everything. I would forget really important information. My friends told me I wasn't see my peers having the same difficulties. I was in 10th grade and when my professor approached me about my constant tardiness I knew I had to do something. So I started my sister. And I started to move ADHD. I started my sister because I had no problem seeing a problem, and going to class on time. I couldn't organize anything in an efficient way.

AND IT WAS SOUND (initial) of a school ADHD as a kid and I thought you struggle. And that's Take a quiz at DASH ADHD. You'll find through as the symptoms like hyperactivity, impulsivity and inattentiveness. Then talk with your doctor.

MEGAN: I feel that that is exciting to be ashamed about having ADHD. I know that means that it's all over. I'm proud of it about ADHD. I've been.

Celine Dion :30

Hi, this is Celine Dion and I hope you will help and support the March of Dimes in an effort to put an end to premature birth.

I share the concerns and fears of every parent knowing that more than one million babies around the world die every year simply because they didn't get enough time to grow.

Let's work together for stronger, healthier babies. Visit marchofdimes.com to find out how you can make a difference.

Thank you for caring.

Meet PSA Director:

More than 1 million babies around the world die every year from premature birth.

With you, the March of Dimes continues to support research into the causes of preterm birth and birth defects and find ways to prevent them. It's why we're educating moms about how they can reduce their risk and get the services they need to raise a healthy baby.

With your help to raise the public's awareness of these risks and bring more babies home healthy. In addition to our work with Celine Dion, we have included a number of creative spots to appeal to your various audiences:

Healthy Babies are Worth the Wait®, winner of the 2012 Perinatal Award for best public service announcement in North America, explains to women that if a pregnancy is less than 37 weeks, it's best to wait for labor to begin on its own rather than scheduling an induction or cesarean section (C-section). The campaign continues to be endorsed by and awarded with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecologists (ACOG).

Learn more about our new Olympic (Olympic Gymnast and Medalist) for your younger demographics.

View Spanish TV spots in English and Spanish promoting World Prematurity Day for your Hispanic audience.

Let's begin using these spots immediately. Thank you for working together for stronger, healthier babies. We can't do it without you!

Dear Public Service Director,

Families and friends play a vital role in helping Veterans through challenges they face every day. By airing the enclosed PSA, "Talking About It Matters," you can show Veterans' families and friends how to help Veterans access the support they've earned through the Veterans Crisis Line.

It can be difficult for family members and friends to reach out when they see a Veteran they love in crisis. They may think they can't understand what Veterans have gone through or find words that will be comforting to them. The truth is, asking those hard questions and showing support for Veterans matters. "Talking About It Matters" demonstrates why asking the hard questions is often the first step toward getting Veterans the support they need.

The Veterans Crisis Line is available for Veterans and their families and friends 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year. It is a free source of support for Veterans and Service members of all ages, backgrounds, and service eras—as well as the people in their lives. Raising awareness of this resource among Veterans' families and friends enables them to stand by Veterans, particularly in their times of need.

Since the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs launched the Veterans Crisis Line in 2007, its responders have answered more than 890,000 calls and made more than 30,000 lifesaving rescues. In 2009, the Veterans Crisis Line added an anonymous online chat service and has engaged in more than 108,000 chats. In November 2011, the Veterans Crisis Line introduced a text-messaging service, and has since responded to more than 10,000 texts—providing another way for Veterans to connect with round-the-clock support.

We need your help to encourage everyone who cares about a Veteran to reach out; assistance is only a call, click, or text away. Please view "Talking About It Matters" today and join me in standing by our Veterans by airing it as soon—and as often—as you can. Families of those who have served in your community will thank you.

Sincerely,
Janet Kemp, RN, Ph.D.
National Mental Health Program Director
Suicide Prevention and Community Engagement
U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs

Narrator:

"Talking to Veterans about the real issues they're dealing with can be awkward."

"We think to ourselves, 'I never served, how could I understand?'"

"But when their behavior changes... it's time to act. Because if we don't, our families and relationships will suffer."

"Ask the hard questions. Listen to the Veterans in your life... and show you care."

"Make the call. It matters."
