U.S. Senate Democrats reached a compromise Saturday with holdout Senator Ben Nelson that secured the 60 votes they need to pass the broad healthcare overhaul sought by President Barack Obama. Nelson said a long day of negotiating on Friday concluded with an agreement that meets his goal of ensuring federal funds are not used to pay for abortions under the bill. The plan that we've put together here, that we have agreement on, in fact walls off that money in an effective manner," Nelson told reporters, pledging to back final passage and support Democrats on upcoming votes to clear Republican procedural hurdles.

OBAMA HEALTHCARE

President Barack Obama says he thinks the country is on the cusp of making health care reform a reality. Obama spoke at the White House on Saturday not long after Senate Democratic leaders secured the support of Nebraska's Ben Nelson to provide the 60th and deciding vote for health care legislation. He called Saturday's development a major step forward in extending coverage to the uninsured and saving money for businesses and the government in the long term. Obama also said that overhauling the nation's health care system will save lives.

There are 12 million illegal immigrants in the USA. Activists call for an overhaul of immigration law that would offer them a way to earn legal status. Rep. Luis Gutierrez, D-Ill., introduced a bill Tuesday that would give illegal immigrants who pay fines, pass background checks and meet other requirements a path toward legal residency. College students who are illegal immigrants fall under a separate proposal called the Development, Relief, and Education for Alien Minors Act - the DREAM Act. Requirements would include arrival in the USA at 15 or younger, a five-year residency or more, and at least two years of college or military service. Versions of the act have been introduced since 2001 without success.

HEALTHCARE LATEST LOURDES DEL RIO. IN HOUSE PKG 1:58

In the run-up to a crucial make-or-break vote on health care legislation, lawmakers are stepping up their rhetoric. Republican Sen. Tom Coburn called Democratic deal making to get the 60 votes needed to pass the bill "corruption." On the Senate floor, Democratic Sen. Sheldon Whitehouse responded by saying Republicans have embarked on a "no-holds barred mission of propaganda, obstruction and fear." Under Senate rules, Democrats need 60 votes on three separate occasions to pass the measure, the first of which is set for about 1 a.m. Monday. Democrats say Sen. Ben Nelson's announcement yesterday that he'd support the measure gave them the 60 votes they need.

U.S. health officials said this week that 100 million doses of H1N1 vaccine were now available or had been delivered and urged everyone to get vaccinated. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that 47 million Americans have been infected with H1N1, nearly 10,000 have been killed by it and more than 200,000 hospitalized. While the severity appears somewhat milder than seasonal flu, which kills an estimated 36,000 people a year, most patients who die or have severe disease from swine flu are children or non-elderly adults.

The vote came shortly after 1 a.m.

WHITE HOUSE ON TRACK TRIMMING COSTS VO 0:45

An Obama administration program is on track to slice $40 billion from U.S. government spending on outside contractors. LABOR DEPT SURGE HIRING TEMPORARY WORKERS
VO 0:18

The hiring of temporary workers has surged, suggesting that the nation's employers might soon take the next step, bringing on permanent workers. As demand rose after the last two recessions, in the early 1990s and in 2001, employers moved more quickly. They added temps for only two or three months before stepping up the hiring of permanent workers. Now temp hiring has risen for four months.

There's some more compromising to do, before President Barack Obama will have a health care reform package to sign. The one that was approved by the Senate today differs from the House version -- although the White House says they're "95 percent" similar. Democrats in the House and Senate vow to finish their work early in the New Year. The Senate passed its version today on a 60-39 vote, following 24 days of floor debate. President Barack Obama is looking forward to signing what he calls "the most important piece of social legislation since Social Security." Obama has been offering congratulations by phone to senators who worked to pass health care reform -- and to Vicki Kennedy, whose late husband Ted had made health care his life's work in the Senate.

IMMIGRATION AND HARD TIME
BLANCA ROSA VILCHEZ. NEW YORK
PKG 1:46

The Obama administration said last week that it would begin a major push for immigration reform this year. The country's two big labor federations just announced that they are joining forces to support that effort, which includes a path to citizenship for undocumented workers. That's double good news. The administration is saying that it will keep its promise to fix the broken system, even if it means pushing the hottest of hot buttons: legalization, the dreaded "amnesty" that sets the Republican right wing ablaze and makes many Democrats quiver.

EDUCATION AND HEART ATTACK

More education may mean a lower heart attack risk later in life, with benefits seen in low-income countries as well as wealthy nations, a new study finds. A number of studies in Western countries have found a link between higher socioeconomic status and lower heart disease risk. However, studies measure socioeconomic status in various ways -- by people's education or current job or current family income, for instance -- and it is not clear whether all of those factors are equally important.

For now, watch this trend for 2010 and beyond: Wedges of interests, disenchanted with our culture, will continue to develop and pull together, even unto isolation, provoked by a growing, cannibalistic U.S. and world governments, which have American riches within their sights. The spiritually enlightened will expand among those pockets. More will embrace the intricate link among every living thing. The tie that binds us all has been ignored for ages, thus we're in trouble in the most simple of life issues such as the foods we eat, cosmetic addictions, and how we treat the Earth and its species; our human brothers and sisters not the least on a long list.

Al Qaeda claimed responsibility for a failed Christmas Day attack on a U.S.-bound passenger plane. The group Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula said the attempt was to avenge U.S. attacks on its members in Yemen. The group said it had provided the Nigerian suspect in the failed airliner bombing with a "technically advanced device" but that it did not detonate because of a technical fault. Speaking during a vacation in Hawaii, President Barack Obama vowed to bring "every element" of U.S. power against those who threaten Americans' safety".

Passengers are facing longer lines at checkpoints and less freedom to move around airplanes during flights. Leisure travelers, such as the families that packed airports to return home after the holiday, are likely to put up with the new inconveniences. LOURDES MELUZA, WASHINGTON, DC

President Barack Obama said Tuesday that the intelligence community had bits of information that should have been pieced together that would have triggered "red flags" and possibly prevented the Christmas Day attempted terror attack on a Detroit-bound airliner. Officials said Obama chose to make a second statement in as many days because a morning briefing offered him new information in the government's possession about the suspect's activities.

BLANCA ROSA VILCHEZ, DC

Employers expect to hire more new workers in 2010 than they did in 2009, as the recession may be easing its grip, research showed on Tuesday. One-fifth of employers plan to add full-time, permanent employees next year, up from 14 percent in 2009, an online jobs site that surveyed more than 2,700 hiring managers and human resource professionals. Just 9 percent said they plan to cut head count in 2010, down from 16 percent in 2009, according to the nationwide survey.

Health effects of the compound have not been well studied, but the events reported to the company have been temporary and not serious.

High-tech security scanners that might have prevented the Christmas Day attempt to blow up a jetliner have been installed in only a small number of airports around the world, in large part because of privacy concerns over the machines' capability to see through clothing. WHITE HOUSE IMMIGRATION BATTLE
JAIME GARCIA LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

With the healthcare battle still unfinished, the Obama administration has been laying plans to take up an issue that could prove even more divisive -- a major overhaul of the nation's immigration system. The bureau says one birth is expected to occur every eight seconds in the United States and one death every 12 seconds. College students who are illegal immigrants fall under a separate proposal called the Development, Relief, and Education for Alien Minors Act - the DREAM Act. Requirements would include arrival in the USA at 15 or younger, a five-year residency or more, and at least two years of college or military service. The number of newly laid-off workers seeking jobless benefits rose more than expected last week, after falling for five straight weeks. Initial claims for unemployment insurance rose by 17,000 to a seasonally adjusted 474,000, the Labor Department said Thursday. That was above analysts' expectations of 460,000 new claims. Claims were partly inflated by a surge following the Thanksgiving holiday week, when many state unemployment offices are closed, a department analyst said. Seasonal layoffs in the construction industry also played a role.

Breast ultrasounds found 100 percent of suspicious cancers in women under 40 who found lumps or other suspicious lumps of the breast, offering a cheaper, less-invasive alternative to surgery or biopsies, U.S. researchers said Wednesday. They said targeted ultrasound -- which examines just the area of the breast where a lump is identified -- should become the standard of care for women under 40. The findings may address some of the concerns raised by a federal advisory panel about breast exams done by women or doctors to investigate lumps or hot spots in the breast, which most often turn out to be harmless.

The decline in weekly jobless claims reported Thursday is "certainly hopeful," White House spokesman Robert Gibbs said. He also told reporters that the White House is open to any idea that could spur job creation. President Barack Obama turns his attention Thursday from Afghanistan to the battle against U.S. unemployment, which has sapped his popularity at home and may shape his political future. Obama is hosting a forum with business leaders at the White House to discuss how to boost jobs after U.S. unemployment hit a 26-year peak of 10.2 percent in October. But the gathering has been dismissed by critics as a public relations exercise.

The debate on health care reform is heating up in the Senate this weekend as Republicans continue to put pressure on Democrats, who themselves are divided over how to pay for the nearly $1 trillion debt legislation. Medicare cuts are a hot button issue, as is a proposed government insurance option. Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid is still short of the 60 votes he needs to shut off debate on health care reform legislation and move to a final up-or-down vote on the bill. Today, he is ed closer to that goal when President Barack Obama made a rare visit to Capitol Hill to rally Democrats. Obama urged moderates and liberals to work harder to resolve their differences, including those involving a government insurance option and abortion.

Even though Democrats in the Senate appear to be ready to get rid of the public option -- it looks like the coalition backing President Barack Obama's health care bill is still together. And a leading liberal, former party chairman Howard Dean, is signaling that he could live with that. But a powerful small business group is voicing its objections to the Democratic bill. The National Federation of Independent Business says it would raise costs and make it harder to create jobs.

FOFECLOSURE FALL IN NOVEMBER

U.S. foreclosure activity fell in November for the fourth month running, but improvement from July's record high came from loan modification programs that may fail to permanently remedy many falling mortgages, real estate Data Company RealyTrack said on Thursday. Foreclosure filings -- including notices of default, auction and bank repossession -- dropped 8 percent last month and were down 15 percent from the July peak. Still, filings were reported on more than 300,000 homes for the ninth straight month, having never been that high in any month before this year, and were 18 percent higher than a year ago.

The number of newly laid-off workers seeking jobless benefits rose more than expected last week, after falling for five straight weeks. Initial claims for unemployment insurance rose by 17,000 to a seasonally adjusted 474,000, the Labor Department said Thursday. That was above analysts' expectations of 460,000 new claims. Claims were partly inflated by a surge following the Thanksgiving holiday week, when many state unemployment offices are closed, a department analyst said. Seasonal layoffs in the construction industry also played a role.

BERNANKE KEEP EYE DOLLAR

Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke on Monday said the central bank will keep a close eye on the sliding U.S. dollar even as he pledged anew to keep interest rates at record-lows to nurture the economic recovery. In remarks to the Economic Club of New York Monday afternoon, Bernanke made clear Fed policymakers will keep rates at super-low levels. Yet with his words, Bernanke is also trying to bolster confidence in the dollar without actually raising rates, a move that could short-circuit the fragile recovery. Economists say a free-fall in the value of the dollar is remote but can't be entirely dismissed.

Americans are worried about hidden costs in the fine print of health care overhaul legislation, an Associated Press poll says. That's creating new challenges for President Barack Obama as he tries to close the deal with a handful of Democratic doubters in the Senate. Although Americans share a conviction that major health care changes are needed, Democratic bills that extend coverage to the uninsured and try to hold down medical costs get no better than a lukewarm reception. The poll found that 43 percent oppose the health care plans being discussed in Congress, while 41 percent are in support. An additional 15 percent remain neutral or undecided.

The 1,000 businesses served with audit notices this week were selected for inspection as a result of investigative leads and intelligence and because of the business' connection to public safety and national security-for example, privately owned critical infrastructure and key resources. The names and locations of the businesses will not be released at this time due to the ongoing, law enforcement sensitive nature of these audits.

HEALTH CARE REFORM*VO :17

Congressional budget experts say the new Senate health care bill would make a government health plan widely available. The Congressional Budget Office said Thursday that about two-thirds of the U.S. population would have a public plan available in their state, even though the Democrats' 10-year, $848-billion bill would allow states to opt out. Wide availability doesn't mean the government plan would dominate the market, however. LAYAWAY IN BLACK FRIDAY

The term Black Friday comes from old-school accounting, where being in the "red" meant that the company was in the negative financially, and being in the "black" meant that a profit was being made. For tax purposes, being in the "red" is not always a bad thing, but when it comes to making money, every company knows that income must exceed expenses in order to survive. An average day at that Wal-Mart location is about 5,000, so Black Friday actually drew about double its regular customer count. Mathers added that Wal-Mart will be making an extra effort for its customers safety this year. Early shoppers are taking advantage of stores that offer lay-away, too, picking up coveted items early and paying a little at a time on them.

BERNANKE KEEP EYE DOLLAR

VO :17

Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke on Monday said the central bank will keep a close eye on the sliding U.S. dollar even as he pledged anew to keep interest rates at record-lows to nurture the economic recovery. In remarks to the Economic Club of New York Monday afternoon, Bernanke made clear Fed policymakers will keep rates at super-low levels. Yet with his words, Bernanke is also trying to bolster confidence in the dollar without actually raising rates, a move that could short-circuit the fragile recovery. Economists say a free-fall in the value of the dollar is remote but can't be entirely dismissed.

RETAIL SALES

VO :12

Retail sales rose more than expected in October, but the gain largely reflected a big rebound in auto sales. Sales fell at many other retail stores as consumer spending remains under pressure, raising questions about the durability of the recovery.

AMERICANS DIVIDED HEALTH BILLS

VO :16

Americans are worried about hidden costs in the fine print of health care overhaul legislation, an Associated Press poll says. That's creating new challenges for President Barack Obama as he tries to close the deal with a handful of Democratic doubters in the Senate. Although Americans share a conviction that major health care changes are needed, Democratic bills that extend coverage to the uninsured and try to hold down medical costs get no better than a lukewarm reception. The poll found that 43 percent oppose the health care plans being discussed in Congress, while 41 percent are in support. An additional 15 percent remain neutral or undecided.

DRUG MAKERS PRICES

VO :15

In the last year, the industry has raised the wholesale prices of brand-name prescription drugs by about 9 percent, according to industry analysts. That will add more than $10 billion to the nation's drug bill, which is on track to exceed $300 billion this year. By at least one analysis, it is the highest annual rate of inflation for drug prices since 1992.

PKG 2:13

Sweeping new U.S. breast cancer guidelines released Monday recommend against routine mammograms for women in their 40s, but several groups immediately rebelled against the recommendations. The new guidelines by the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force, an influential panel of independent experts, would sharply curtail the number of breast mammograms done in the United States, sparing women the worry of false alarms and the cost and trouble of extra tests. U.S. cancer experts argued the altered schedule may mean more women will die from breast cancer.

U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) Assistant Secretary John Morton today announced the issuance of Notices of Inspection (NOIs) to 1,000 employers across the country associated with critical infrastructure-alerting business owners that ICE will audit their hiring records to determine compliance with employment eligibility verification laws. The 1,000 businesses served with audit notices this week were selected for inspection as a result of investigative leads and intelligence and because of the business' connection to public safety and national security-for example, privately owned critical infrastructure and key resources. The names and locations of the businesses will not be released at this time due to the ongoing, law enforcement sensitive nature of these audits.

HEALTH CARE REFORM*VO :17

Congressional budget experts say the new Senate health care bill would make a government health plan widely available. The Congressional Budget Office said Thursday that about two-thirds of the U.S. population would have a public plan available in their state, even though the Democrats' 10-year, $848-billion bill would allow states to opt out. Wide availability doesn't mean the government plan would dominate the market, however. The budget umpires are estimating only 3 million to 4 million people would sign up, partly because private insurance plans would be able to offer lower premiums.

MAMMOGRAMS INSURANCE*VO :15

A top federal health official said Wednesday that the controversial new guidelines for breast cancer screening do not represent government policy, as the Obama administration sought to keep the debate over mammograms from undermining the prospects for health-care reform. ### DEMS READY TO GO-IT-ALONE ON HEALTH CARE

LOURDES MELUZA / WASHINGTON, DC

PKG 2:06

A leading Senate Democrat said Monday his party is determined to push through a health care overhaul bill with or without Republican support because the "system is broken." "We prefer to go at it with Republicans if we can reach compromises in some areas," said Sen. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y. "But we're not going to not pass a bill." Schumer dueled with Republican Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison on a network morning news show in the wake of a key Senate vote Saturday night that advanced a 10-year, $959 billion health bill to full debate. Hutchison argued that "you're going to put taxes and mandates on business" that would be a drag on an economy still struggling to recover from recession. Congressional Democrats are trying to resolve differences within their rank and file over abortion, taxes and letting the government sell health insurance as a competitor with private insurers. Those are all crucial policy questions, and House and Senate Democrats have taken conflicting approaches.

The unemployment rate has surpassed 10 percent for the first time since 1983 -- and is likely to go higher. August job losses were also revised lower, to 154,000 from 201,000. But the loss of jobs last month exceeded economists' estimates. It's the 22nd straight month the U.S. economy has shed jobs, the longest on records dating back 70 years. The House has opened debate on President Barack Obama's landmark health care overhaul that would extend insurance to tens of millions of Americans and enact dramatic changes to the country's medical system. In the opening moments of debate, Democrats hailed the legislation as an advance for the nation's social fabric and a moral and economic imperative. Republicans said it would be a government takeover of the health care system that would damage the economy and erode the doctor-patient relationship. The vote planned for late Saturday was expected to be tight. Democratic leaders hoped a late-morning visit by Obama to Capitol Hill would push it over the edge.

HEALTHCARE REFORM*VO : 24

The House has used a near-party line vote to reject a Republican health overhaul bill. Shortly before beginning its vote on a Democratic plan, the chamber voted 258-176 against a GOP version that would have lowered costs for people with insurance but done little or nothing to expand coverage to those without any. Outnumbered Republicans knew the chamber would reject their measure, but advanced it to present their vision of how the health system should be reshaped. The GOP relied largely on loosening regulations on private insurers to reduce costs for the insured by as much as 10 percent. Congressional budget analysts said the plan would make no dent in the ranks of the uninsured.

LOURDE MELUZA. WASHINGTON, DC*PKG 2:21

The glow from a health care triumph is fading quickly for President Barack Obama as Democrats realize the bill they'd fought so hard to pass in the House will have a tough time in the Senate. The government health insurance plan included in the House bill is unacceptable to a few Democratic moderates who hold the balance of power in the Senate. They don't like the idea of the government competing with private insurers. Sen. Joe Lieberman, the Connecticut independent whose vote Democrats need to overcome GOP filibusters, tells "Fox News Sunday" that if a so-called "public option" is part of the bill, he will not allow it to come to a final vote.

11/09/09*HEALTHCARE REFORM LATEST*LOURDES MELUZA / WASHINGTON, DC*PKG 2:01

As the focus on health care reform shifts to the Senate, analysts aren't expecting the chamber to pass an overhaul bill any time soon. Saturday's close House vote passed a measure that includes a government health insurance plan. That provision is unacceptable to some Democratic moderates who hold the balance of power in the Senate. Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid is already hinting that senators may not be able to finish health care this year. For now, he's trying to find the votes for a different approach: a government plan that states could opt out of. He's expected to keep meeting with senators this week. The goal is to work out a political formula that will give Reid not only the 60 votes needed to begin debate, but the 60 needed to shut off discussion and bring the bill to a final vote.

EPA EMISSIONS*VO :22

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has sent to the White House for review its final proposal on whether carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gas emissions pose a danger to human health and welfare, EPA Administrator Lisa Jackson told Reuters Monday. The EPA's final finding, if it follows the agency's earlier assessment and is approved by the Office of Management and Budget, would allow the EPA to issue rules later to regulate greenhouse gas emissions, even if Congress fails to pass legislation to cut U.S. emissions of the heat-trapping gases that contribute to global warming.

SUPREME COURT JUVENILE*LOURDES DEL RIO / MIAMI, FLORIDA*PKG 2:12

The Supreme Court is considering whether sentencing a juvenile to life in prison with no chance of parole is cruel and unusual punishment, particularly if the crime is less serious than homicide. The cases being heard Monday involve two Florida convicts. Joe Sullivan was sent away for life for raping an elderly woman when he was 13. Terrance Graham was implicated in armed robberies when he was 16 and 17.

IMMIGRANTS BECOME CITIZENS SETTLEMENT*VO :26

Immigrants who waited for years for their citizenship applications to be processed due to extraordinary backlogs will finally have the chance to become Americans and enjoy the privileges of citizenship, under the terms of a settlement announced today between the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS), the National Immigration Law Center, the ACLU of Southern California, the Asian Pacific American Legal Center and the law firm of Munger, Tolles & Olson. The settlement puts an end to indefinite delays in processing naturalization applications caused by routine FBI background checks, and requires USCIS to adjudicate hundreds of citizenship applications from the Los Angeles, Santa Ana, and San Bernardino areas within six months. It also requires the federal government to provide naturalization data from the Los Angeles area to the legal groups who filed the lawsuit, in order to ensure that lengthy processing delays do not recur.

A new U.N. report says there are nearly 200 million children around the world who have stunted growth because they don't get enough to eat. The U.N. children's agency says more than 90 percent of those children live in poor Asian and African countries. The UNICEF report also says undernourished children often lack the strength to fight off diseases and complications, and more than a third of all deaths among children under five are linked to the problem.

US OFFICIALS BEGIN PUSH AGAINST HUMAN TRAFFICKING

VO : 16

Fourteen cities are being targeted in a new campaign aimed at alerting people about human trafficking, federal immigration officials have announced.

The "Hidden in Plain Sight" initiative, sponsored by U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, features billboards highlighting "the horrors and the prevalence of human trafficking," which the agency says is equivalent to "modern-day slavery." The words "Hidden in Plain Sight" are displayed on the advertisements with a toll-free number people can call to report situations where they believe people are being sexually exploited or forced to work against their will.

President Barack Obama, facing a 10.2 percent U.S. unemployment rate, will announce Thursday plans for a jobs summit in December, an administration official said. Obama will make the announcement at the White House before departing on a weeklong Asia trip. The U.S. economy began growing again in the third quarter but unemployment has continued to climb, battered by the worst recession since the Great Depression. Unemployment jumped to a 26-1/2 year high in October and the White House has warned that it could get a little worse before it starts getting better.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA. LUIS MEGID

PKG 1:50

Department of Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano's speech today at the Center for American Progress (CAP) will probably be remembered as a key moment in the history of immigration reform. The Secretary didn't just express support for a comprehensive overhaul of our immigration system; she made it clear that it was an imperative for the ultimate security of the United States. This marks a major shift in attitude from the early days of DHS when deportation rather than integration was viewed as the primary method for solving our immigration crisis. It also marks a shift in how DHS will help to shape the next go-around of immigration reform.

The U.S. Senate will not rush consideration of healthcare reform legislation sought by President Barack Obama, and lawmakers can expect a number of amendments, the chamber's top Republican said Sunday. McConnell would not elaborate on a time frame for consideration or say whether the measure to reform the $2.5 trillion U.S. healthcare system could clear the chamber by the end of the year as President Barack Obama has said he hopes.

IMMIGRATION REFORM

VO :27

Democrats and Republicans in Congress are working together to craft an immigration reform bill that could become law as early as next year, a senior White House adviser said Sunday. That legislation could create a path to citizenship for the estimated 12 million illegal immigrants already in the United States, David Axelrod, senior advisory to President Barak Obama, told CNN's State of the Union with John King. The most contentious question surrounding past and future attempts at immigration reform is whether to, and how to, ease rules governing the route to citizenship for people who have entered the country illegally.
