THURSDAY 1/11/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
ON SHIFTING GROUND WITH RAY SUAREZ
Bye Bye Boomers, Hello Perennials

This week, we're revisiting one of our favorite episodes from 2023 about the future of work. While many Baby Boomers have already left the workforce behind, almost half are considering coming out of retirement in search of a new purpose in life. Leading sociologist and business economist Mauro Guillén joins Ray Suarez to explain why the days of "OK Boomer" are coming to an end... and why the future of work will be "post-generational."

THURSDAY 2/8/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
APM PRESENTS - Dating While Gray: Beyond 'Reality' TV, Inside the Lives of Older Singles"

ABC's "The Golden Bachelor" brought long-overdue attention to the dating lives of older singles. But how much of the reality TV show actually rang true? In this special, Dating While Gray host Laura Stassi sifts through research and talks to older singles about our dating lives, including: tools and strategies to make love connections, ways we're incorporating – and discarding – traditional arrangements for marriage and living together 24/7, and how we're navigating new romance around already established family commitments.

Wednesday 2/14/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
DATING LATER IN LIFE

About a third of American adults over the age of 50 are single. What is dating like during the later phase of life? We'll learn about trends in dating among older people, what some of the challenges and advantages are—and how to find a good match. We'll also hear about the role of physical and emotional intimacy later in life.

Thursday 3/7/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
SENIOR GAMES

Just because someone is older doesn't mean they lose their interest in athletic activities and competition. Maine Senior Games offers adults age 45 and up the chance to participate and compete in athletic and recreational events, from basketball to bowling to, yes, pickleball. Events take place in different cities and towns throughout Maine, and, on even years, people can qualify for the National Senior Games. We'll learn what to expect this year, and how to get involved.

Tuesday 1/2/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

We examine the reasons we make New Year's resolutions, and why it's so hard to meet our goals. We'll also discuss common plans to improve habits, such as exercise, diet, drinking and relationships. What do you think of resolutions, and did you make any this year?

MONDAY 1/8/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
OPEN TO DEBATE - David Brooks on the Art of Seeing and Hearing Others

With polarization rising within our society and two wars encouraging division, people are feeling more afraid to engage with people who have differing perspectives. How can we solve that issue, build deeper connections, and get to know someone? New York Times columnist David Brooks says you help them feel seen and understood. John Donvan sits down with Brooks to discuss his book "How to Know a Person: The Art of Seeing Others Deeply and Being Deeply Seen", how to foster connections in daily life, and offers a solution to a society in need of appreciating each other's differences.\

MONDAY 1/15/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
CITY ARTS AND LECTURES -Tracy K. Smith

Tracy K. Smith is the author of five acclaimed poetry collections, including the Pulitzer Prize-winning Life on Mars. From 2017 to 2019, she served as the 22nd Poet Laureate of the United States. In 2020, heartsick from constant assaults on Black life, Smith found herself soul-searching, and digging into the historical archive for help navigating the “din of human division and strife.” In her new book, To Free the Captives: A Plea for the American Soul, Smith draws on several avenues of thinking – personal, documentary, and spiritual– to understand who we are as a nation and what we might hope to mean to one another.

Wednesday 2/7/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
“FOURTEEN DAYS: A COLLABORATIVE NOVEL”

Set in a New York City tenement during the early days of pandemic lockdowns, Fourteen Days was written in a unique way. Each character in the novel was written by a different author—all of whom are notable literary figures. They range from Tess Gerritsen to John Grisham, and the editors are Margaret Atwood and Douglas Preston. We talk with some of the authors about their work, and the process of writing a collaborative novel.

TUESDAY 2/13/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
OPEN TO DEBATE - Is the American Dream in Decline?

The American Dream – the idea that anyone can achieve success in the U.S. through hard work and determination – is under scrutiny, and some worry it’s no longer achievable for the broader population. Those who agree say increasing healthcare, education, and housing costs create difficulty in having financial stability. Those who disagree argue that the U.S. still offers more opportunities for personal and financial growth than elsewhere. Now we debate: Is the American Dream in Decline?

WEDNESDAY 2/28/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
IDEAS - The Art of Everyday Living

In Joyce's great novel Ulysses, the half-Jewish Leopold Bloom meets up with the young student Stephen Dedalus, and over the 24 hours of the novel, he teaches Stephen a few things about how to be in the world: how to live with contradictions, how to deal with jealousy and anxiety, how to be a man and an adult. Irish scholar and writer Declan Kiberd argues that Joyce's novel also offers all of us a model for living well.

WEDNESDAY 3/6/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
IDEAS FROM THE CBC - Subverting Identity

Identity is our rock, the very foundation of who we are, and how we present ourselves to the world. But identity is also a slippery, malleable thing, unpredictably shaped by forces internal and external. Writers often map the grey zones of identity, and the 2023 winners of Governor General's Literary Awards are no exception. Hear fiction, essays, poetry, and thinking on the theme of subverting identity in this annual IDEAS collaboration with CBC Books and the Canada Council for the Arts.

PASSIONS & PASTIMES

What do you do for fun? What interesting hobbies and activities are you involved with? Maine Calling's series, "Passions & Pastimes," aims to highlight many of these pursuits throughout the year. We'll talk about how this series came about and which topics we plan to cover. And we'll hear from some of our Maine Public colleagues about their favorite pastimes.

Tuesday 2/27/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
RICK STEVES

Just before he flies out to Rome for a weeklong guide-training tour, travel expert Rick Steves joins us to discuss his latest adventures. He'll suggest off-the-beaten path places to visit, and as always, he'll answer listener questions about where to go and what to know about European destinations.

Thursday 2/29/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
GABRIEL BYRNE

Award-winning actor Gabriel Byrne has been living a peaceful life in Maine with this family since 2021. We'll talk about his life and career, from his roots in Ireland to Hollywood—where he made his mark in films like "The Usual Suspects" and, more recently, playing Irish playwright Samuel Beckett. Byrne will appear at a screening in Camden of "The Usual Suspects" on March 9th to support domestic abuse awareness.

WEDNESDAY 3/13/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
COMMONWEALTH CLUB OF CALIFORNIA - Chris Anderson: Infectious Generosity

Let's face it: Recent years have been tough on optimists. Hopes that the Internet might bring people together have been crushed by the ills of social media. Is there a way back? Chris Anderson returns to Commonwealth Club World Affairs to explore one of humankind's defining but overlooked impulses, and how we can super charge its potential to build a hopeful future. Anderson believes it's within our grasp to turn outrage back into optimism. He says it all comes down to reimagining one of the most fundamental human virtues: generosity.

Wednesday 3/20/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
RICK STEVES

Travel expert Rick Steves joins us to discuss his latest adventures, including a recent guide-training tour in Rome. He'll suggest off-the-beaten path places to visit, and, as always, he'll answer listener questions about where to go and what to know about European destinations.

MUSIC IN MAINE

A new exhibit at the Maine Historical Society, "Music in Maine," showcases the state's diverse musical heritage. From Shaker spirituals to Wabanaki instruments to bluegrass tunes, the exhibit features the many musical genres and eras that have shaped Maine. We'll learn about the history and influence of Maine's rich musical traditions.

Monday 3/25/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
SUPERCOMMUNICATORS by CHARLES DUHIGG

We talk with award-winning journalist Charles Duhigg about his new book, Supercommunicators: How to Unlock the Secret Language of Connection. He combines stories, studies and analysis to examine what makes certain conversations work well, and how people can learn to be better communicators.

CRIME/CORRECTIONS/COURT/LAW ENFORCEMENT

TUESDAY 1/16/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
OPEN TO DEBATE - Mock Trial: Is Trump Guilty in the January 6th Case?

After the 2020 election, former President Trump discredited the election results. The January 6 attack on the U.S. Capitol and Trump's federal indictment on four charges are tied to his claims. The defense claims proof is needed that he had planned to commit a crime and he conducted himself under legal advice. The prosecution argues his actions showed criminal intent to defraud the U.S. and was done knowingly.

Thursday 2/8/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
MAINE AND THE COURTS

We discuss some of the significant court cases from Maine's history—both state and federal—and the repercussions these cases had on people's lives.

MONDAY 3/18/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
IDEAS FROM THE CBC - City of Peace and Justice: The Hague

The Dutch capital city of The Hague bills itself as 'the city of peace and justice.' A peace conference in 1899 led to the creation of a building to house the world's first two international courts of justice. Today, The Hague is home not only to the International Criminal Court which tries individuals for a variety of crimes against humanity, but also to the International Court of Justice, the 'world court,' which tries the most serious disputes between nations. Today's program paints a portrait of The Hague as a kind-of 'center of excellence' for thinking about the possibilities — and the future — of international law.

ECONOMY/FINANCE/BUSINESS

MONDAY 1/1/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
APM PRESENTS - Get Your Money Life in Order (12/13)

An encore presentation of this special from "This Is Uncomfortable," the Marketplace podcast about life and how money messes with it. Host Reema Khrais helps listeners get their financial life together in time for the new year.

She'll unpack some practical tips with a personal finance expert and then share a personal money story that is sure to captivate listeners.

Wednesday 1/3/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
ECONOMIC OUTLOOK FOR MAINE

What does the year ahead look like for Maine's economy? We talk with experts about the factors that will affect the state's economic health, including current trends in housing, jobs, new residents, tourism and more.

Monday 2/26/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
ZONING IMPACTS ON HOUSING

This show is part of our series "The Cost of Living: Maine's Housing Shortage." In towns across Maine, zoning issues add to the complex problems contributing to the housing crisis. We talk with experts about how zoning works, how it can affect the makeup and population of municipalities in Maine, and what changes might create affordable housing opportunities to help alleviate the statewide shortage.

Monday 3/4/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
PERSONAL FINANCIAL ADVICE

Personal finance expert Michelle Singletary offers her perspective on money matters. We'll discuss what it takes to spend less and save more, how to avoid credit card debt and other pitfalls, what to remember for tax season, and planning for the future.

MONDAY 3/11/24 2:00PM 2PM Program
IDEAS FROM THE CBC - The Way of the Trucker

"On the open road, there's only one person in command. You." So begins a sales pitch to potential new truckers, published by the Canadian Trucking Alliance. The romance of the long-haul route and the solitary life, in charge of a giant machine, draws a certain sort of person. Someone who relishes facing a battle against the forces of time, distance, and weather. But it may not draw enough people. An Ontario trucking union predicts a shortage of 30,000 truckers in Canada as old hands retire faster than new ones take on the job. IDEAS producer Tom Howell visits a trucking school in northern Ontario, where new recruits consider their options, and the road ahead.

Monday 3/18/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
TINY HOMES

Tiny homes are more than just cute and novel places to live. These small-scaled houses are being considered as one way of alleviating the statewide housing crisis. We'll learn what it's like to live in a tiny home, and what's being done to create tiny home communities in Maine. This show is part of our series "The Cost of Living: Maine's Housing Shortage."

Wednesday 3/27/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
NEW LIFE FOR OLD TOWNS

Many towns in Maine have fallen on hard times, often due to a source of jobs disappearing--like a mill closing. Some of these towns are finding ways to grow and revitalize. A new film, "Resilience," highlights three towns that are turning things around. We'll hear from some local leaders about how they are bringing new life to old towns. The documentary "Resilience" airs on Maine Public Television on March 28. There is also a Maine Public film screening at Somerset Abbey in Madison on March 28 at 7 pm, followed by a panel discussion.

EDUCATION

Friday 3/29/24 11:00AM Maine Calling
SCHOOL NUTRITION

In 2022, Maine became one of the first states to pass legislation providing free school meals. We'll discuss how that is working, what has been done to improve and diversify school nutrition, and what's still needed to meet the needs of childhood hunger.

CLIMATE ONE - Rewind: Just a Walk or Bike Ride Away: The 15-Minute City

Can you imagine if everything you needed in your everyday life was just a walk or bike ride away? That's the goal of the 15-minute city, a new name for an old idea. Reducing the need for cars cuts emissions and gets autos off of the roads, which is a boon for safety, air quality and the climate. But, as is often the case, good ideas become a lot more difficult when you have to implement them in real places, with real people, who don't always share the enthusiasm for the idea.

CLIMATE ONE - Youth Activists 15 Years Later

From the climate movement's earliest days, young people have been at the forefront of activism. But the first major international climate conferences took place 30 years ago. The first cohort of youth activists are now adults, some with children of their own. The emotional cost of seeing so little payoff for years spent fighting can be agonizing at any age, but perhaps more so for young people who put so much of themselves into the effort. Many youth activists burned out along the way, frustrated by participating in actions that rarely led to meaningful and lasting change. How do former youth activists now view the work of their younger selves? And what advice do they have for the next generation?

APM PRESENTS - Community Science Unifies Us Around Climate Change

Climate change can feel apocalyptic and unsolvable. Yet, communities across the U.S. are finding ways to adapt and build resilience to its impacts. Higher Ground tells the stories of people engaging in community science to take control and find understanding in changes to their environment. Empowered with information, these communities are able to keep cool heads in the face of global warming. Hope and progress in the eye of the storm.

CLIMATE ONE - Indigenous Perspectives: What Makes a Just Transition?

We often talk about a "just transition" from dirty to clean energy as if the term means the same thing to everyone. Indigenous people have seen their resources extracted and exploited to further the wealth of others for centuries. Now renewable energy is looking to expand to Indigenous land. How can we, as Chéri Smith, Founder of the Alliance for Tribal Clean Energy, says, "make sure that Tribes are not only having a seat at the table, but they're building the table and inviting everyone else to it?"

CLIMATE ONE - Geothermal: So Hot Right Now

When most people hear the phrase renewable energy, they imagine fields full of solar panels or giant spinning wind turbines. But another source may be heating up: geothermal. Twenty years ago it was thought that geothermal could provide at most 10% of any given area's electricity, and only in very limited regions. There were also environmental concerns about depleting groundwater. But new technological advances may have unlocked the potential for scalable geothermal energy just about anywhere. And in a bit of irony, those technological advances came from the oil and gas industry.

CLIMATE ONE - What More Can I Do?

If you're a climate-conscious person, you likely already know some of the main ways you can reduce your contribution to greenhouse gasses: buy less, eat less meat, ride your bike. But there are other, less obvious methods we don't always think of: voting, having climate conversations, engaging with your local government, changing where your money is invested. And while our role as individuals does matter, we're more powerful when we work together in collective action.

Kevin Adler returns to The Commonwealth Club to provide an urgent look at homelessness in America, showing us what we lose—in ourselves and as a society—when we choose to walk past and ignore our neighbors in shelters, insecure housing, or on the streets. Adler is the co-author of "When We Walk By," which argues that we have sacrificed our humanity by ignoring, downplaying, and refusing to address the homelessness problem. The authors offer an evidence-based people-first approach and community-driven solutions, and they lay out some practical steps that individuals can take to address homelessness.

SCENE ON RADIO - Echoes of a Coup (1/16)

Ops: <https://exchange.prx.org/pieces/512977-echoes-of-a-coup>

In November 1898 an armed white supremacist mob murdered untold Black Wilmington residents and drove the city's elected Fusionist government from power, installing Democrats in their place. (Fusionists were a biracial coalition of mostly-Black Republicans and mostly-white members of the Populist Party.) The coup in North Carolina's then-largest city violently snuffed out some of the last flickers of multiracial democracy in post-Civil War America. Echoes of a Coup tells the story and puts these events in historical context, at a time when the United States is once again facing threats of political violence, amid orchestrated attacks on democracy – from within.

From Turtle Island to Aotearoa: Indigenous Voices of the 'Just Transition

When world leaders gathered at APEC Leaders' Week in San Francisco to discuss poverty reduction and climate change policies, a key group was left out: Indigenous communities. These stakeholders attended a second forum in the lead-up to APEC to explore how the world can become carbon neutral without creating global inequalities. Ray Suarez speaks with Indigenous leaders Chéri A. Smith, founder of the Alliance for Tribal Clean Energy; Maui Solomon, Chairman of Moriori Imi Settlement Trust, and Raylene Whitford, Director of the Canadian Sustainability Standards Board, about what their vision of a "just" transition away from fossil fuels should look like.

IDEAS FROM THE CBC - From Grit to Glory

Mary Ann Shadd Cary was born in 1823 in Delaware to parents who were free African Americans. She moved to Canada in 1850 after America's passing of the Fugitive Slave Law. She founded a racially integrated school in Windsor, Ontario. Three years later she became the first Black woman publisher in Canada with her newspaper, The Provincial Freeman. The story of this Black woman who was a lawyer, publisher, and educator and whose work and legacy laid the groundwork for Black liberation in Canada has long been hidden from most Canadians. But a growing body of scholarship along with greater cultural attention is bringing Mary Ann Shadd Cary and her remarkable story to the masses.

DEI BACKLASH

Since 2020, the increased attention to racial justice has led to calls for more diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) in our society. Companies and institutions have made greater efforts to raise awareness of diverse backgrounds and to be more inclusive in hiring. But recently, DEI initiatives have prompted a backlash among certain segments. We discuss the goals of DEI efforts, why some object to them, and how to move forward.

ON SHIFTING GROUND WITH RAY SUAREZ - Lost in Immigration (2/3)
Immigrants in California are generally protected from federal deportation under sanctuary and safe haven laws, unless they've been incarcerated. And in 2022, after serving 25 years for murder, San Quentin State Prison parolee Phoeun You was turned over to ICE, and deported without warning. In this episode, Phoeun You tells "On Shifting Ground" senior producer Mateo Schimpf about coming to terms with surviving the Cambodian genocide, how he got caught up in the prison-to-deportation pipeline, and the hard choice he made to find freedom.

Queer Diplomacy: Negotiating LGBTQ Rights In A Fraught World
Hillary Clinton ushered in a new age of diplomacy in 2011, when she addressed the UN Human Rights Council, declaring that gay rights are human rights. But in the decades since, global progress on the rights of sexual minorities have been profoundly uneven. Nahlah Ayed speaks to Canadian diplomat Douglas Janoff about the delicate dance of international queer diplomacy and what's at stake in an era of backlash.

How To Do Diplomacy With Autocrats (12/14)

Autocratic governments, like democratic ones, have a sphere of influence and a logic of diplomacy. They do their diplomatic dance with each other but also with democracies. Sometimes, that dance is a partnership but often it's a competition. Is it possible to have honest and pragmatic engagements, especially in a time of crisis, when the diplomatic temperature is set to a default slow burn?

IDEAS FROM THE CBC - The Never-ending Fall of Rome

The fall of Rome. A terrible day in history, when smoke blackened the sky, barbarians rampaged through the city, Doric columns toppled over, and lascivious emperors were too busy having orgies to do anything about it. Okay, that never happened. But listening to politicians you'd think "the fall of Rome" was a catastrophic incident that could have been avoided if only those Romans had outlawed... something. Maybe divorce. Or immigration. Or homosexuality. This documentary digs up the political history of "the fall of Rome," a hole in time where politicians, activists, and intellectuals can dump any modern anxiety they wish.

David Petraeus and Andrew Roberts on Conflict, War, and Debate

Debate is a form of conflict that is played out through civility, and the capability to exchange ideas with people we disagree with. But what leads leaders and countries to fall into conflict? In this conversation with Retired U.S. Army General David H. Petraeus and historian Lord Andrew Roberts, guest moderator Xenia Wickett speaks with them about their new book, the nature of military conflict, and how civil debate and conflict are intertwined.

Is the Republican Party's Refusal to Raise Taxes Fiscally Irresponsible? (2/1)

Whether to extend four trillion dollars in tax cuts or raise them next year is in question, with 34.1 trillion dollars in federal debt hanging in the balance. Some argue that tax cuts don't do enough to pay off the debt and not raising taxes imbalances the federal budget. Others argue our debt is caused by government overspending and will be helped by tax cuts that help promote a flourishing economy. Now we debate: Is the Republican Party's Refusal to Raise Taxes Fiscally Irresponsible?

OPEN TO DEBATE - Is Engineering Solar Radiation A Crazy Idea?

Right now, climate engineers are working on new technologies, called solar geoengineering, that would reflect the sun's rays away from Earth as a way to cool the planet. Those in favor argue it would be inexpensive and effective, and could buy us time to get carbon emissions down before the worst impacts of climate change. But others argue it would distract from the underlying issues of climate change and express concern about who would control such a powerful technology. So we debate: Is Engineering Solar Radiation A Crazy Idea?
