National security and policing take center stage three days before the first Clinton/Trump debate: The issue of race and policing crashed back into the national dialogue this week and onto the 2016 campaign trail following two shootings of African American men by police in Oklahoma and North Carolina. With just three days before presidential candidates Hillary Clinton and Donald Trump will square off in their first debate, their responses to the shootings and to potential terror attacks in New York, New Jersey and Minnesota could not be more different. Trump called for racial profiling and expanding controversial stop and frisk policies while Clinton said Trump's words are used as a recruitment tactic by terrorists. Will the debate be a make-or-break moment for either candidate?

Health, Taxes and Birtherism: The debate over transparency on the campaign trail: After building his political brand questioning President Obama's birth certificate, Donald Trump declared Friday that Obama was "born in the United States." The new position came during a week when both presidential candidates faced questions of transparency. After Clinton was diagnosed with pneumonia, she and Trump released new details about their health, but Trump faces ongoing questions about his tax returns. Plus, a new census report showed good news for the American economy.

Sex trafficking of African migrants in Europe is a 'modern plague': African women seeking a better life in Europe face a long, perilous, often fatal journey across the Mediterranean. But when they do arrive, they confront yet another threatening prospect: conscription into sex slavery. Eighty percent of all Nigerian women who survive the trip to Italy end up coerced into prostitution by "Madams," who are often former sex slaves themselves. Malcolm Brabant reports.

National security and policing take center stage three days before the first Clinton/Trump debate: The issue of race and policing crashed back into the national dialogue this week and onto the 2016 campaign trail following two shootings of African American men by police in Oklahoma and North Carolina. With just three days before presidential candidates Hillary Clinton and Donald Trump will square off in their first debate, their responses to the shootings and to potential terror attacks in New York, New Jersey and Minnesota could not be more different. Trump called for racial profiling and expanding controversial stop and frisk policies while Clinton said Trump's words are used as a recruitment tactic by terrorists. Will the debate be a make-or-break moment for either candidate?

Is this 'syndrome' causing American political dysfunction? Has our political system gone crazy? Jonathan Rauch thinks so. In a recent piece for the Atlantic, Rauch explores what he calls "chaos syndrome" in Washington: government stagnation, he argues, is resulting from politicians' inability to compromise, combined with constant calls for transparency. Judy Woodruff speaks with Rauch about the history of American politics and where they stand today.

National security and policing take center stage three days before the first Clinton/Trump debate: The issue of race and policing crashed back into the national dialogue this week and onto the 2016 campaign trail following two shootings of African American men by police in Oklahoma and North Carolina. With just three days before presidential candidates Hillary Clinton and Donald Trump will square off in their first debate, their responses to the shootings and to potential terror attacks in New York, New Jersey and Minnesota could not be more different. Trump called for racial profiling and expanding controversial stop and frisk policies while Clinton said Trump's words are used as a recruitment tactic by terrorists. Will the debate be a make-or-break moment for either candidate?

In an unheated shed near Stapleton, Nebraska in the late 1950's Emery Blagdon began twisting old wire and foil, threading hundreds of beads, and shaping everyday castoff materials with one purpose - to generate natural energy to heal. Spurred on by personal tragedy, Blagdon's obsession to create a "Healing Machine" was life-long as he believed people could be cured by his artful chandlers, cascades of wire, and geometric paintings. All which he deemed gave off healing power. Now, 40 years after his death Emery Blagdon is considered to be a man with boundless visionary creativity: an American artist of great significance. Blagdon's work is part of the permanent collection at John Michael Kohler Art Center in Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

Education Revolution, hosted by author, producer and comedian Baratunde Thurston and actor and singer Sara Ramirez, focuses on how education is changing to adapt to our new digital world. The program features talks from educator Sal Khan, who examines what the classroom might look like in the future and the impact of online teaching, Victor Rios, who takes a deep dive into the problems of the school-to-prison pipeline, and Principal Nadia Lopez, whose middle school is in the most dangerous borough in New York and where almost all her students live below the poverty line. TED Talks: Education Revolution also addresses the issue of over-parenting with some revolutionary ideas from Julie Lythcott-Haims, author of How to Raise an Adult, who believes chores and love are more important than a check-listed childhood. The program also features music from Meshell Ndegeocello and a performance piece from the legendary Anna Deavere Smith from her one-woman show, Notes from the Field: Doing Time in Education.

Boston brings the music back by boosting arts education: At a time when schools across the country are cutting arts education, this city is aiming to make it universal. Myran Parker-Brass, a classically trained mezzo-soprano who sang for the Boston Symphony, is working to provide weekly arts education to all middle and elementary Boston public school students. And she's not stopping there. Special correspondent Lisa Stark of Education Week reports.

With debate momentum, Clinton works to win over young voters: Hillary Clinton sought to monopolize on her momentum from Monday's debate at a rally in New Hampshire, where Sen. Bernie Sanders joined her to appeal to younger voters and talk about student debt. Meanwhile, Donald Trump rallied his supporters by stepping up his criticisms of Clinton. Gwen Ifill reports on how the race is shifting.
