

KNPR Issues and Programs List

Q3: July 01, 2022 – September 30, 2022

The most significant community issues during this period covered by Nevada Public Radio are listed here. The producers and Program Director direct the content and selection of the program KNPR's State of Nevada airing weekdays 9 – 10am and 7 – 8pm.

July 7, 2022 - We know Nevada will continue to grow, but how can it be built sustainably?

- Climate change threatens not just our way of life, it's an existential threat.

July 19, 2022 - How do Nevada artists use art to manage mental health? Podcast takes a look

- Since the onset of the pandemic in 2020, depression and anxiety have skyrocketed, and Nevada has some of the highest rates in the country.

July 20, 2022 - With lithium batteries and solar energy, how big can Nevada's energy economy get?

- In June, state officials approved a permit to mine a massive lithium deposit in Northern Nevada.

Aug 15, 2022 - EPA grant could help clean up polluted air in east Las Vegas

- Las Vegas is a bustling city and air pollution is nothing new.

Aug 18, 2022 - 'Sorry We're Closed' looks at restaurant survival, closures during pandemic

- The restaurant business isn't what it used to be, and the last two years of the pandemic took a slice out of already low profit margins.

Sep 14, 2022 - Food costs are up, so a Las Vegas-area urban farming project aims for self-sustainability

- The federal government says food prices overall have risen 11%, or 11 cents per dollar, in the last year. So what are people doing?