TEXT: Managed Care Push Brings Campaign Cash and Lobbying – The Frontier, February 8, 2021

Cut insider deals to ship millions of our tax dollars to out-of-state insurance companies...

Managed care push brings a flow of campaign cash and lobbying that is likely to continue [Frontier, 2/8/21]

Four private health insurance companies will handle much of Oklahoma's Medicaid program starting in October: Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Oklahoma; Humana Healthy Horizons; Oklahoma Complete Health, which is a subsidiary of managed care giant Centene; and United Healthcare... Three physicians groups — the Oklahoma State Medical Association, Oklahoma Osteopathic Association and the state's chapter of the American Academy of Pediatrics — released a scathing joint statement on Friday afternoon, criticizing the move. Although there's room to improve the state's Medicaid program, handing over control to for-profit companies is ill-advised, the statement said. [Frontier, 1/29/2021]

Health care companies competing for one of the contracts to handle Oklahoma's Medicaid program spent tens of thousands of dollars on lobbyists and campaign donations last year, while many of the health associations fighting against the effort increased their own campaign contributions to state lawmakers. Not every dollar or lobbyist meal can be directly attributed to the controversial program referred to as managed care. But money and influence flowed heavily from the companies and organizations at the center of a debate that is likely to continue in the months to come. [Frontier, 2/8/21]

At least two other companies were competing for the contracts, including one that hired one of Gov. Kevin Stitt's top policy advisers as its lobbyist. In September, with the bidding window for Oklahoma's managed care contracts weeks from opening, CareSource Oklahoma hired Samantha Davidson, Stitt's policy director. Over the next several weeks, Davidson spent more than $3,200 on meals for lawmakers, the governor, and his staff. [Frontier, 2/8/21]

Insurance companies like United Healthcare are national companies located outside of Oklahoma. United Healthcare is based in Minnetonka, Minnesota. [Dun & Bradstreet]

NARRATOR:...at the expense of rural hospitals.

... At the expense of rural hospitals.

- How the CARES Act Forgot America's Most Vulnerable Hospitals

"The scope of those problems is clearly visible in Oklahoma, which tied for the third-highest number of hospital closures in the country in the nine years before the pandemic. One hospital used more than $1 million in federal aid to pay off its years-old debt to a management company that left before Oklahoma's first coronavirus case was diagnosed, a potential violation of federal guidelines that could require the hospital to return the money, according to experts.

Three Oklahoma hospitals that were purchased last year after filing for bankruptcy were unable to access more than $6 million in funds deposited by the Department of Health and Human Services, the agency in charge of the rollout for health care providers. The money was instead deposited into accounts tied to the previous owners, leaving the new owners with few options as they tried to keep the facilities from becoming insolvent". ProPublica, [1/26/21]

• Managed Medicaid: Bad for rural hospitals ... bad for Oklahoma

Hospitals are typically the largest employers in most rural communities. Managed care threatens to squeeze this segment of the health care industry out of business, which could lead to mass unemployment and migration of these professionals to other states, taking with them any state income, sales and property taxes. Simply put, ruining rural economies in the state is no way to achieve "Top 10" status.

Oklahoma's Medicaid program isn't broken and doesn't need to be fixed. It represents a safety net for health care services to roughly a million of the state's most vulnerable citizens. Adding a "for-profit" middleman to the mix dilutes the value of Oklahoma's Medicaid program even further and should be avoided. On behalf of rural hospitals and physicians in Oklahoma, we respectfully ask the Legislature to not approve funding for managed Medicaid. The Oklahoman, [2/10/21]

The Oklahoma Hospital Association has serious concerns that outsourcing Medicaid will result in reduced provider payments for physicians, hospitals, nursing homes and other

[Oklahoma Hospital Association, February 2018] The Supplemental Hospital Offset Payment Program (SHOPP), enacted in 2011 and extended in 2013, assesses a fee paid solely by certain hospitals. This "state share" is then matched with federal funds and paid back to hospitals and other providers to more adequately cover the cost of care that has already been provided to SoonerCare patients. This helps OHCA pay physicians more fairly, and for many rural hospitals these supplemental payments enable them to operate in the black. SHOPP's current supplemental payment program would not be compatible if the state were to enact an outsourced Medicaid program. Kevin Stitt's former campaign manager and staff adviser is earning up to $130,000 in CARES Act funds on a state contract. Donelle Harder, 34, left Stitt's office in February at a salary of $140,600. On March 31, she signed a contract with the Oklahoma State Department of Health that began March 16 and ended June 30 for "communication support for the OSDH during the COVID-19 (Corona Virus Disease)." She was paid $27,500, according to information provided by the agency under the Oklahoma Open Records Act. On June 1, she signed another contract with the Office of Management and Enterprise Services, which was also obtained through the Oklahoma Open Records Act. The contract is with a company she recently founded called Pliris Strategies. Steven Harpe, Office of Management and Enterprise Services, signed for the state. Harpe is a former employee of the mortgage company, Gateway, that Stitt founded. Stitt appointed him to the Board of Corrections, where he served as chairman briefly before going to work for OMES. Under that contract, also paid for with Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security Act (CARES) funds, she will earn up to $130,000 a year for 28 hours a week of work and being on call. Oklahoma got more than $1 billion in federal aid under the act. "Services shall be provided by Donelle Harder, who shall provide twenty-eight (28) hours' services per week and additionally make herself available anytime upon request," according to an attachment to the

The Oklahoma State Department of Health granted a local public relations and marketing firm a $3 million contract to help get the word out about the COVID-19 pandemic response. However, that contract also included brand management for the state's embattled public health lab, help crafting and selling its agenda in the Legislature and more. Saxum, an integrated digital media agency based in Oklahoma City, has been helping the agency respond to media questions and organize briefings since the early days of the pandemic. At the time, the health department paid the firm $15,000 a month for support. The department and the firm entered a new contract this summer. Monthly payments were scheduled to ramp up — from $50,000 per month over the summer, to $65,000 per month throughout the fall and winter, and $95,000 per month in 2022.State Impact Oklahoma, [11/19/21]

We'd like to send a big TLO attaboy to Saxum PR CEO Renzi Stone! Late last week, Catherine "Oops! I Left The Oven On" Sweeney reported for State Impact Oklahoma that Saxum PR has secured a lucrative $3-million state contract with the Oklahoma Department of Health. The Lost Ogle, [11/23/21]

Stitt has more power and control over state agencies and decisions than any governor in Oklahoma history. "Oklahoma's new CEO-turned-governor will soon have the power to hire and fire heads of the state's five largest agencies in a major win for his first legislative session."
