FOURTH QUARTER 1998

From October 1, 1998 through and including December 31, 1998, KFSN-TV presented regularly scheduled locally produced public affairs programs, syndicated programs, and 19½ hours of local news programs a week. In addition, KFSN broadcast all programs and public service announcements provided by the ABC Television Network. The ABC-TV Network Fourth Quarter News and Public Affairs Program Information Report is also attached.

KFSN through its programming addressed the following issues of concern for communities that make up the six-county area served by ABC-30.

- 1) CENTRAL VALLEY FREEZE
- 2) IMMIGRATION
- 3) DOMESTIC VIOLENCE
- 4) PESTICIDES
- 5) EDUCATIONAL
- 6) EMPLOYMENT
- 7) HEALTH AWARENESS
- 8) CRIMINAL JUSTICE
- 9) PARENTING
- 10) CALIFORNIA GENERAL ELECTION

Programs, program segments, news reports, as well as Public Service Announcements broadcast by KFSN that provided significant treatment to the issues are the following.

CENTRAL VALLEY FREEZE

Early Monday morning December 20, freezing temperatures gripped the state's prime citrus areas including the San Joaquin Valley. Temperatures dropped to the low 20's for the entire week turning a promising crop of oranges and lemons into icy mush and throwing thousands of employees out of work. Freezing temperatures have caused an estimated $591 million in crop losses.

KFSN's local news broadcasts presented the following reports.

Vegetable Damage - Freezing temperatures are also causing damage to the Central Valley's westside. Growers are particularly concerned about broccoli, cauliflower, cabbage and lettuce. Droopy leaves in a broccoli field located in Huron is a sure sign of stress if the frost continues. It will break down the plant's cells and cause damage. If conditions improve the vegetables can be saved.

Citrus Loss - Agriculture officials estimate that 85 percent of the citrus crop is wiped out. The effects will be felt throughout the country, because Tulare county is the top orange grower in the nation. Three nights of freezing have shaken even the sturdiest citrus trees. Growers are hoping for even the slightest change in temperatures.

"Controlling Parents" — The successful entrepreneur who reverts to feeling 12 when he's around his parents, the accomplished adult who desperately craves parental approval, the self-assured mother of two who automatically becomes self-effacing when her parents call or visit ... these are all-too-common dilemmas facing adults raised with unhealthy parental control. Family therapist Dan Neuharth said he grew up with freedom of speech in his own home, and he can't fail to note the irony. His father is Al Neuharth, who is a media mogul, founder of USA Today and the Freedom Forum, a foundation supporting free speech issues. Today they both joined Oprah to explore the differences between healthy parenting and over-controlling, and Dan gave advice on how to break free from controlling parents, make peace with them, and move on with your life.

Today's show faced problems on having rules for teenagers: Conflicts concerning curfew, disputes over driving, and fights about the phone. Oprah heard from teens and parents who disagreed about some of their house rules. Guest and author Dr. Michael Riera said parents should be prepared to take a "demotion" from manager to consultant when their child reaches their teen years; experience is a great teacher, and parents should prepare their kids for the time when they eventually leave the nest by letting them make some of their own mistakes.
