TEXAS FIRES

VO :19

The Texas wind is driving the governor to the Panhandle. Texas Governor Rick Perry is scheduled to visit the burning part of his state today. He plans a news conference after his tour. Texas wildfires, fanned by 50 mile-an-hour wind gusts, have scorched nearly a (m) million acres. Authorities say the fires northeast of Amarillo moved 40 miles further to the northeast yesterday, and are nearing the Oklahoma border. Texas officials have urged residents in six small towns in Lipscomb County to evacuate, but the order isn't mandatory. Eleven people have died since the fires flared and officials estimate ten-thousand horses and cows have been killed.

SEX EDUCATION

VO :18

School districts in Kansas must get parents' written permission before teaching their children sex education, the state Board of Education decided Wednesday. The board adopted the policy in a 6-4 vote. Up to now, most Kansas districts had an "opt-out" policy -- they enrolled children in sex ed unless a parent objected in writing. Only a few other states have such "opt-in" requirements on sex education, according to the Sexuality Information and Education Council of the United States, a group that promotes sex education. Among them: Arizona, Nevada and Utah. Board members who voted for the new policy said some parents told them they did not know their children were taking sex education until the classes had started.

CONGRESS IRAK & KATRINA BILL

VO :26

President Bush gets much of what he requested in a $92 billion House measure for wars and hurricane cleanup, despite a newfound willingness by GOP leaders to challenge the president. The bill the House is expected to approve Thursday would bring the overall price tag for Iraq and Afghanistan operations since the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks to nearly $400 billion and total Hurricane Katrina-related spending to more than $100 billion.

PORT SECURITY DEAL

VO :16

A Dubai-owned company is giving itself up to six months to sell all $700 million worth of its newly acquired U.S. port operations to an American buyer, a plan forced by congressional concerns over terrorism security. DP World, the world's third-largest ports company, disclosed new details and the timetable Wednesday for its plans to surrender its U.S. businesses. The announcement was the first time it described its plans for the newly acquired U.S. operations as a "sale" to a single, unrelated American buyer and indicated it would retain no stake.

IMMIGRANT LEGISLATION

PKG 2:07

LOURDES MELUZA/ WASHINGTON, D.C.

Senators writing an immigration bill moved closer Thursday to preventing millions of employed illegal immigrants from being deported in the face of a political stampede to make it harder for them to cross into the United States or stay. Majority Leader Bill Frist, who is looking at running for president in 2008, prepared his own bill focused more narrowly on tightening borders and said the Senate will begin debating it the week after next if the Judiciary Committee cannot agree on a broader bill by then.

SECURITY ANTHRAX VACCINE

VO :25

California pharmaceutical firm VaxGen Inc. has further delayed shipment to the U.S. government a new version of its anthrax vaccine, an element of the U.S. bio-warfare defense program, The Washington Post reported Friday. VaxGen Inc. officials said in interviews that their vaccine had failed in a key human trial, putting the company at least a year behind schedule, the newspaper said. The Brisbane, California-based company has an $877 million contract to supply 75 million doses of the vaccine. VaxGen said in November that it expected to begin deliveries to the government for its emergency stockpiles in the fourth quarter of 2006, instead of the first half of the year as originally planned. The delay was announced after U.S. regulators tightened requirements for the product.

YOUTH INHALANTS

PKG 1:42

BLANCA ROSA VILCHEZ/ NUEVA YORK

Nearly 1.8 million adolescents between the ages of 12 and 17 began using inhalants to get high within the last three years. That's according to a new federal report on young people's use of products such as glue, lighter fluid and other commonly found products. The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, who conducted the survey, hopes the report will raise awareness about inhalant abuse.

TEXAS FLOODS*PKG 1:23*OLGA SANTOS/ HOUSTON, TEXAS

Forecasters are predicting some tremendous flooding problems in North Texas, following another night of rain. One death has already been attributed to high waters. Officials suspect a woman's car was washed into a creek by the flooding. Her body has been recovered. More than five inches of rain fell Sunday in parts of North Texas. The area has received a total of six inches of rain since Friday. Police say officers are working with firefighters to evacuate several homes in west Dallas because of rising floodwaters. Officials say numerous people have been rescued from high-water situations. Weather conditions on Monday are expected to be drier and warmer.

HEALTH COSTS*VO :18

A Denver company thinks it's time Americans learn just how much health care costs. So beginning Monday, consumers can find out the cost of 42 medical procedures ranging from gastric bypass to cataract surgery through the Web site of HealthGrades Incorporated. Company spokesman Scott Shapiro says the Web site will help an individual "shop for health care, which is a very new concept." Shapiro says for seven dollars, 95 cents and some patient information, the site will generate a report giving expected out-of-pocket costs for people with insurance; the average price negotiated by health insurers in the region; and the average amount charged by the provider. An insurance analyst says consumers will benefit. He says the information will obviously put pressure on the high-cost institutions to bring their prices down, if for no other reason than because they would look bad.

HISPANIC BUSINESSES*VO :22

The number of Hispanic-owned businesses grew at three times the national rate for all companies from 1997 to 2002, the government said Tuesday. Hispanics owned nearly 1.6 million businesses in 2002, a 31 percent increase from five years earlier, according to the Census Bureau report.

AIRLINES MISSING BAGGAGE*VO :25

A study says it's a global problem and it's getting worse and it's also costing airlines more money. An estimated 30 (m) million bags were temporarily lost by airlines in 2005, and 200-thousand of them were never reunited with their owners. An industry report by SITA Incorporated, a company that provides technology solutions for the air transport industry, also notes that the problem "is worsening on both sides of the Atlantic." The 30 (m) million misdirected bags amounts to only one percent of the three (b) billion bags that were processed last year. That's up three tenths of a percent from 2004. SITA is promoting technology to reduce the problem. Last year, mishandled luggage cost world airlines two-and-a-half (b) billion dollars, nearly a (b) billion more than the year before. The increased cost partly reflects improved data collection but also reflects inadequate baggage management.

GAS PRICES UP

VO :31

The average retail price of gasoline soared by almost 14 cents last week, rising above $2.50 a gallon for the first time since late October. The federal Energy Information Administration said Monday that U.S. motorists paid $2.504 cents a gallon on average for regular grade last week, a rise of 13.8 cents from the previous week. Pump prices are still 39.5 cents higher than a year ago. The jump in retail prices follows a 42-cent-per gallon rise in unleaded gasoline futures since mid-February. On Monday, gasoline for April delivery settled at $1.8301 per gallon. Gasoline prices were most expensive last week on the West Coast, averaging $2.571 per gallon, and cheapest in the Rocky Mountain region, averaging $2.395 per gallon.

BUSH PRESS CONFERENCE

VO :33

President Bush says he doesn't see civil war in Iraq. At a White House news conference, a reporter asked Bush if he agrees with former interim Prime Minister Ayad Allawi who said that Iraq is in a civil war. The president said, "We all recognize that there is violence," but he says Iraqis have turned away from civil war. And he says "there are other voices coming out of Iraq" who say it's not a civil war. Bush again said progress in Iraq gives him confidence in success there. He acknowledged there will be "more tough fighting ahead." But he says Iraqi political leaders are working hard to put together a government that represents all Iraqis.

BUSH TODAY

VO : 17

President Bush hits the road again today. This time he takes his Iraq message to Wheeling, West Virginia. Yesterday he told reporters American troops will remain in Iraq for years, but that progress is being made. He also rejects allegations that Iraq has fallen into a sectarian civil war.

GASOLINE PILL

VO :23

Rising gas prices have some drivers searching for new ways to save money. A Perrysburg, Ohio company is promising to save people money at the pump with a magic pill for the gas tank. Recent ads in a Toledo, Ohio newspaper promise a break from the rising costs by as much as much 45 percent, with "bio performance fuel", a pill for the gas tank. Tapped-out drivers may be willing to try it. But, Toledo's Better Business Bureau isn't buying the claims from CRMG, the Perrysburg company whose name is attached to the ad.

CITRUS DISEASE

VO :20

Residents in Florida are on the lookout Wednesday (03/22) night for a new disease affecting citrus crops, but the sales of fruit trees apparently isn't being affected by the problem. Now that the citrus canker ban is over, there is an increasing threat of citrus greening. Citrus greening is carried by an insect instead of being spread in the air. Experts say there are a number of certain symptoms residents can look for, and the nurseries are keeping a close eye on potential problems with citrus trees in the Cape Coral (FL) area. Despite the possibility of a citrus tree problem in the future, Florida residents are buying more citrus trees despite the possibility of more problems in the future.

RUMSFELD TROPAS

VO:25

Defense secretary Donald Rumsfeld says trying to predict when all U-S troops will be out of Iraq "just isn't fruitful." He told reporters he doesn't want to speculate about specific numbers or specific dates. His comments came two days after President Bush said the decision about when to withdraw all U-S forces will fall to future presidents. Rumsfeld says he still expects a reduction in U-S troops this year once a new unity government is formed. But he says he has not yet received any recommendation on such a move from the top U-S commander in Iraq. Rumsfeld says creation of a unity government will help reduce the violence that has wracked the country.

GAS PRICES UP

VO :31

More pain at the pump. The Lundberg survey says retail gas prices across the country climbed an average of nearly 15 cents in the past two weeks. The weighted average price for all three grades increased to two dollars, 52 cents a gallon by Friday, according to analyst Trilby Lundberg. Gas prices are 40 cents higher than they were a year ago. Among stations surveyed, the lowest average price in the country for regular unleaded was in Salt Lake City, at two dollars, 25 cents a gallon. The most costly was in Honolulu, where drivers paid two-80 a gallon.

BUSH ON IMMIGRATION

VO :21

President Bush attends a naturalization ceremony today as debate over immigration reform heats up. In his radio address Saturday, Bush said he's always inspired to see immigrants become American citizens. He says he will talk about his plan for immigration reform while he's at the Washington ceremony. Bush is urging Congress to create a guest worker program that would let foreigners gain legal status for a set amount of time to do specific jobs. Some critics argue that a guest worker program will create an underclass of foreign workers. Some Republicans worry the foreign workers will burden America's social services.

SENATE ON IMMIGRATION

VO :32

The thorny issue of what to do with the nation's roughly 12 (m) million illegal aliens is the focus all across Washington this week. The Senate Judiciary Committee faces a midnight deadline for completing a bill that includes a guest worker provision. Immigration reform advocates plan to rally at the U-S Capitol. Some clergy members plan to wear handcuffs to protest the immigration bill passed by the House. They say it will symbolize what they contend is the criminalization of their aid programs.

A new study suggests that weightlifting may improve breast cancer survivors' outlook on life. Researchers say about 80 percent of survivors who took up weight-training twice-a-week saw improved scores on a quality-of-life survey. In contrast, 51 percent of participants in a control group did. Researchers say it appears the weightlifting helped the women regain a feeling of control of their bodies. The physical and psychological benefits of exercise are well-documented. But this study is the first to apply scientific methodology to looking at how weight-training helps women who have had breast cancer. The study is to be published in an upcoming issue of the journal Cancer.

CENSUS DIABETES*VO :22

Today is a special, one- day alert to raise the public's awareness of a growing health menace, diabetes. Across the country, a diabetes risk test is being distributed and promoted through local and national media. One of the tragedies of the disease is that many people do not know they have it until suffering from damaged eyesight, kidneys, or loss of feeling in their feet. The sharp increase in the number of cases of diabetes has prompted some public health officials to describe its spread as an epidemic. The risk of developing the disease is higher among those who are overweight and inactive. Across the U.S., more than 14-million people are known diabetics. Each year, the disease is responsible for some 70-thousand deaths.

IMMIGRATION BILL*PKG 2:23*LOURDES MELUZA/WASHINGTON, D.C.

The Senate Judiciary Committee meet to debate on a new immigration bill. It has approved an amendment protecting individuals and church and charitable groups who give aid to undocumented immigrants. The House had voted late last year to make giving such non-emergency aid a felony. The judiciary panel also approved doubling the current Border Patrol force, to keep more illegal immigrants from entering the country. Immigration reform has sparked big protests on Capitol Hill and elsewhere. President Bush is calling for civil debate, but warns the overhaul won't be easy.

Added to things like heredity and diet -Loneliness might contribute to high blood pressure in people over 50. Researchers say the loneliest people they studied had blood pressure readings up to 30 points higher than those who are surrounded by friends or family. And that suggests loneliness might be just as bad as being overweight or inactive. Scientists say the results are "stunning" -- especially since earlier studies suggest more than nine (m) million Americans often feel isolated or left out.

Teachers and students are turning the pro-immigration walkouts that have emptied high schools across Southern California into a real-life lesson about immigration policy, the lawmaking process and civic duty itself. Students in the Los Angeles school system -- which is the nation's second-largest district and is 73 percent Hispanic -- have walked out of class along with thousands of other young people in other

U.S. cities over the past few days to protest legislation on Capitol Hill that would crack down on the nation's 11 million illegal immigrants. Among other things, the legislation would make it a crime to be in this country illegally. Wednesday morning was relatively quiet in the Los Angeles district after two days of protests that began with blocked freeways and pleas from the mayor to go back to class, and escalated Tuesday to school lockdowns and scores of truancy citations.

Senators have begun arguing the pros and cons of various immigration proposals. Alabama Senator Jeff Sessions says a fence along the U-S border to keep illegal immigrants out is a good idea. He says he's reminded of the phrase "good fences make good neighbors." He says the proposal for guest worker programs amounts to amnesty because it puts illegal immigrants on a path to citizenship. Senator Edward Kennedy disagrees. He argues the guest worker program allows illegal immigrants to earn citizenship through a lengthy process. The Senate debate will begin with a bill that focuses on enforcement. An alternative approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee which includes guest worker programs will be offered as an alternative.

Citing his betrayal of all who work in the health care industry, Superior Court Judge Paul Armstrong sentenced Charles Cullen to eleven consecutive life terms in prison Thursday (03-02). The sentence handed down in Somerville, New Jersey brings to a close a case involving the state's worst serial killer. Cullen has told authorities he may have caused the deaths of forty people during a nursing career that began in 1987. Before his sentence was read, Judge Armstrong gave many of the victims' family members the opportunity to address the court. Several family members spoke of the anguish caused by Cullen's decision to murder their loved ones. Many family members had expressed hope Cullen would use the sentencing hearing to explain why he committed the crimes in medical facilities in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Those hopes were dashed when Cullen had little to say as Judge Armstrong read the sentence.

The agents were trying to make a traffic stop when the suspect fled on foot. Ramos and Compean shot at him, striking him in the buttocks as he crossed into Mexico. They testified they believed he was armed. The agents later found about 700 pounds of marijuana in the suspect's car. But the agents picked up the bullet casings and did not report the incident, testifying that they assumed other agents at the scene had reported it. Prosecuting attorney Debra Kanof said both agents were found guilty of multiple federal crimes including two criminal assault charges, several counts of tampering with an official proceeding, including destroying the scene and not reporting the shooting. They were also found guilty of the use of a firearm in the commission of a violent crime and a civil rights charge.

Police in Santa Cruz this week opened a hotline for illegal immigrants to report alleged abuses by people who hire them as day laborers. The unusual measure was called "an effective education tool" Tuesday by the city councilman behind the idea, who acknowledged that complaints lodged anonymously could be difficult to prosecute. Even so, Councilman Ryan Coonerty said official scrutiny may be enough to keep employers from shortchanging undocumented workers, threatening them with deportation, and denying them breaks. "Having a police officer at your doorstep asking questions may be a signal to stop whatever it is you're doing," he said. What it signals about the community's tolerance of illegal immigration is less clear, according to a group advocating tougher U.S. policies. Santa Cruz officials said they know of no other city or county in California, Arizona or Texas offering a similar hotline. In Illinois, a hotline run by the state labor department started taking calls in January. Hotline callers who do leave their names will not be asked about their immigration status, officials said.

VO: 20

U.S. and international authorities have charged 27 people in connection with an online child pornography enterprise, federal authorities said Wednesday. Those charged were participants in an online chat room that included streaming video of live child molestation, the Justice Department said. Investigators said they identified seven children who were molested on video seen in the Kiddypics & Kiddyvids chat room. Four molesters are among those charged, prosecutors said. In recent days, federal agents have made arrests in Arizona, Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Michigan, Nevada, New York, North Carolina and Tennessee. Thirteen people have been indicted in the United States on charges that include possession, receipt, distribution and manufacture of child pornography. The other 14 have been charged in Australia, Canada and Great Britain. One person remains at large. The investigation began in Canada.

IMMIGRATION REFORM LATEST

LOURDES MELUZA, WASHINGTON, D.C.

PKG 2:06

Farmers and businesses depending on illegal immigrants to fill low-wage jobs are banging against a brick wall in Congress as they push for a temporary worker program. Even with President Bush on their side, advocates have been unable to overcome the opposition of those who are deadset against any proposal that in an election year could be labeled "amnesty." The Senate Judiciary Committee has given itself a Thursday deadline to produce a bill that would tighten U.S. borders, impose new sanctions on illegal immigrants and their employers, and give legal status to some workers now here illegally. Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, R-Tenn., has promised a vote on some kind of temporary "guest worker" program after Congress returns March 27 from a weeklong recess, but not necessarily one that includes illegal immigrants, as advocated by Bush. Bush has proposed a temporary worker program allowing participants to register for legal status for a specific period of time and then be required to return home. It would not provide amnesty, which the administration says it would reject in any proposal, and also would not be an automatic path to citizenship.

In one Colorado county, patients who are transported by ambulance better pay up or they face jail. The emergency services budget in Grand County is stretched thin and the county says it has run out of options. The problem: too many free ambulance rides. Last year Grand County lost $350,000 due to unpaid ambulance bills. Now it plans to arrest people if they don't come up with the money they owe. Three people have already been arrested under the new get tough policy.

PATRIOT ACT

VO :24

The Senate is poised to approve the renewal of the Patriot Act today.

The vote comes ten days before the latest extension of the nation's premier anti-terror law is set to expire. The extra time was needed to hammer out an agreement designed to balance civil liberties protections with the tools the measure gives to law enforcement in hunting for terrorists. But Wisconsin Senator Russ Feingold says the bill doesn't do enough to reign in government powers. He says the bill is as flawed today as it was before the negotiations. Supporters say the law has been a big help in the war on terrorism and can't be held up any longer. Kentucky Republican Jim Bunning says "civil liberties do not mean much when you are dead." Once the bill passes the Senate, quick approval is expected in the House.

CELL PHONES AIRPLANES

VO :22

A new study suggests that the rule about turning off electronic devices on airplanes may have some merit. Researchers, led by Carnegie Mellon University, say cell phones or laptops could disrupt cockpit operations, especially global positioning devices that are increasingly being used to help land planes safely. Researchers monitored radio emissions from passengers on three airlines with the support of the Transportation Security Agency. Carnegie Mellon's Granger Morgan says the disruptions are enough to impact a plane's navigation or other systems. But he also says there's never been an accident clearly caused by electromagnetic interference. The researchers recommended that the Federal Aviation Administration and Federal Communications Commission work together to investigate in-flight use of cell phones.

LOURDES DEL RIO/ NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA

In dramatic and sometimes agonising terms, federal disaster officials warned US President George W. Bush and his homeland security chief before Hurricane Katrina struck that the storm could breach levees, risk lives in New Orleans' Superdome and overwhelm rescuers, according to confidential video footage of the briefings. Bush didn't ask a single question during the final government-wide briefing the day before Katrina struck on August 29 (2005) but assured soon-to-be-battered state officials that the federal government is fully prepared. The president expressed confidence that then-Federal Emergency Management Agency chief Michael Brown and his disaster crews would prevail.

Older Americans and the disabled should be allowed to sign up for the prescription drug benefit without penalty after a May 15 enrollment deadline, Democratic lawmakers told the top Medicare official Wednesday. The theme of delaying the deadline became almost a mantra for the Democrats during a congressional hearing. A couple of Republican lawmakers on the House Energy and Commerce Committee said they were inclined to agree, indicating growing bipartisan support for the idea.

IMMIGRATION DEBATE

VO :25

The seemingly impossible task of finding a way to tighten borders against illegal immigrants while maintaining a flow of low-wage workers for U.S. businesses gets under way in Congress, pitting two Republican bases against each other. The House managed to pass a border security bill last year -- pleasing conservatives clamoring for an immigration crackdown. But that came only after House leaders beat back an attempt by some GOP members to include President Bush's proposal for a temporary worker program. In contrast, the Senate is wading right into the thorny guest worker issue. Debate was starting Thursday with the Senate Judiciary Committee taking up an immigration reform bill drafted by the committee's chairman, Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa.

US KATRINA VIDEO

VO :26

In the hectic, confused hours after Hurricane Katrina lashed the US Gulf Coast, Louisiana's governor hesitantly but mistakenly assured the administration of George W. Bush that New Orleans' protective levees were intact, according to a new video obtained by The Associated Press. In fact, the National Weather Service received a report of a levee breach and issued a flash-flood warning as early as 9:12 a.m. that day, according to the White House's formal recounting of events the day Katrina struck. The timing of the levees breach has been a key issue in exhaustive reviews of failures to respond to Katrina and highlights miscommunication about the scope of the storm's damage at all levels of government. The new video, which runs 45 minutes, details uncertainty and despair among state and local emergency response officials as they began chronicling the disaster that swept across 90 square miles in the Gulf Coast.

READING MATH SCORES

VO :21

In Mississippi, 89 percent of fourth-graders who took a state reading test were rated proficient or better. But when the same students took a federal test, only 18 percent reached that standard. Such discrepancies are not uncommon. Students from all over the country performed worse on a tough federal test than they did on state exams in reading and math -- raising questions about whether states are setting lower standards. The nation's students do glaringly worse on a tough federal test than they do on state exams in reading and math, raising doubts about how much kids are learning. The number of children who were proficient or better on state exams was often solid, if not lofty, in 2005. States have wide latitude in deciding what proficiency means.

But he said homeland security officials are preoccupied with a long list of other concerns, and getting their attention hasn't been easy.

Five well-known private colleges and three highly selective public schools plan to accommodate about 11-hundred more community college transfer students from low- to moderate-income families. PKG 2:09

Senators writing an immigration bill moved closer Thursday to preventing millions of employed illegal immigrants from being deported in the face of a political stampede to make it harder for them to cross into the United States or stay. Majority Leader Bill Frist, who is looking at running for president in 2008, prepared his own bill focused more narrowly on tightening borders and said the Senate will begin debating it the week after next if the Judiciary Committee cannot agree on a broader bill by then. "Our country needs security at our borders in order to slow the flow of illegal immigration and make America safer from foreign criminals and terrorists," said Frist, a Tennessee Republican. He said giving the committee beyond March 27 to reach an accord would mean the Senate would not have the full two weeks he's set aside to debate immigration and border security issues and pass a bill. The House passed a bill in December that makes it a felony for illegal immigrants to be in the United States, imposes new penalties on employers who hire them and erects fencing along a third of the U.S.-Mexico border.

On the third anniversary of the beginning of the U.S. led war in Iraq, members of a group called the 'War Resisters League' carried plywood coffins through the streets of New York on Sunday (March 19) before about a dozen of them were arrested at the end of the march in Times Square. The group chose the coffins to represent what they say is the forgotten tragedy of the war, the thousands of Iraqi civilians killed in the conflict. In an act of civil disobedience at the end of the march, about a dozen members of the group blocked traffic on Seventh Avenue just across from the U.S. Armed Forces Recruiting Station in the heart of Times Square. Locking hands and sitting down in the street, the protesters were cuffed one by one and led to waiting police vans. In all about a dozen activists were arrested while being cheered on by their supporters across the street. Sunday's anti-war action differed from a much larger rally and march the day before that drew over a thousand protesters but remained peaceful and saw no arrests.

BUSH ABOUT WAR

President Bush has marked today's third anniversary of the Iraq War by saying he's "encouraged" by the progress Iraqis are making toward forming a unity government. Speaking to reporters at the White House as he returned from Camp David, he also asked Americans to remember the sacrifices of U-S troops. The president says the anniversary is a time of "reflection" -- and his thoughts have gone to the men and women who've done the fighting, as well as the families who've supported them. Bush also spoke by phone today with U-S Ambassador to Iraq Zalmay Khalilzad (Z AHL'-may kah-LEEL'-zahd). Bush says the envoy left him feeling optimistic about the political situation. He says Iraqi leaders are working together. Bush ignored a shouted question about former Iraqi leader Ayad Allawi's (EE'-yahd ah-LAH'-weez) assertion today that civil war has begun in Iraq.

CHENEY ABOUT WAR

United States Vice President Dick Cheney said on Sunday that Iraq is not in the midst of a civil war, but instead described the violence as a desperate tactic by terrorists in the country to stop the move to democracy. "What we've seen is a serious effort by them to foment a civil war." Cheney said in an interview on CBS's "Face the Nation" Cheney, speaking on the third anniversary of the U.S. invasion of Iraq, added that he did not believe the insurgents had been successful in creating a civil war. He disagreed with Iraq's former interim prime minister, Ayad Allawi, who said in an interview on Sunday that the increasing attacks across his country can only be described as a civil war. Cheney said he did not think optimistic statements that he has made about the war have contributed to Americans' scepticism about the war.

PKG 1:58

The start of the fourth year of the Iraq war has been marked by protests across the country. About 150 protesters gathered outside the building in Cleveland where President Bush gave a speech Monday about progress in Iraq. They held signs reading "Bush step down" and "No blood for oil." But there were no arrests. At the Pentagon more than 50 demonstrators were arrested for trying to deliver a mock coffin to Secretary of Defense Rumsfeld. In San Francisco, police arrested 17 protesters during a rally aimed at shutting down the Guantanamo Bay and Abu Ghraib (grayb) prisons. Meanwhile, President Bush, delivered a speech in Cleveland, Ohio. He says he realizes Americans are losing confidence in his Iraq strategy after three years of bloodshed there. People wonder how he can remain optimistic about prospects for success when the pictures on television are so grim, the president said.

BUSH PRESS CONFERENCE

LOURDES MELUZA/THE WHITE HOUSE

PKG 2:04

President Bush said Tuesday the decision about when to withdraw all U.S. troops from Iraq will fall to future presidents and Iraqi leaders, suggesting that U.S. involvement will continue at least through 2008. Acknowledging the public's growing unease with the war -- and election-year skittishness among fellow Republicans -- the president nonetheless vowed to keep U.S. soldiers in the fight. "If I didn't believe we could succeed, I wouldn't be there. I wouldn't put those kids there," Bush declared. Bush addressed border control along the USA- Mexico border, and defended his proposal to allow citizens from Mexico to work in the USA. The President said, "I also went on to say that people who haven't been here need to get in line like everybody else who is in line legally. My point is that if we were -- first of all, whatever has passed should not say amnesty. In my judgment, amnesty would be the wrong course of action. We have a way toward legality in terms of citizenship."

RISE OF GASOLINE PRICES

LOURDES DEL RIO/MIAMI, FLORIDA

PKG 1:56

The average retail price of gasoline soared by almost 14 cents last week, rising above $2.50 a gallon for the first time since late October. The federal Energy Information Administration said Monday that U.S. motorists paid $2.504 cents a gallon on average for regular grade last week, a rise of 13.8 cents from the previous week. Pump prices are still 39.5 cents higher than a year ago. The jump in retail prices follows a 42-cent-per-gallon rise in unleaded gasoline futures since mid-February. On Monday, gasoline for April delivery settled at $1.8301 per gallon. Average retail prices peaked at $3.07 a gallon in early September, a reflection of the extreme tightness in the market following Hurricane Katrina, which knocked out refineries in the Gulf region, as well as pipelines that deliver fuel to the East Coast and Midwest.

HISPANIC BUSINESSES

JAIME GARCIA/LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

PKG 1:57

Fueled by a rapidly expanding Hispanic consumer market, the number of Hispanic-owned businesses is growing much faster than the national rate for other companies. Hispanics owned nearly 1.6 million businesses in 2002, a 31 percent increase from five years earlier, according to a report Tuesday by the Census Bureau. The number of all U.S. companies grew by 10 percent, to about 23 million, during the same period. "The Hispanic consumer market is exploding," said Michael Barrera, president and CEO of the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce. Hispanic consumers spend $700 billion a year, a figure that is expected to climb to $1 trillion by the end of the decade, Barrera said at a news conference. Ronald Langston, director of the Commerce Department's Minority Business Development Agency, said immigration is helping to increase the diversity of America's economy. He noted that one in 10 U.S. workers is Hispanic, a figure that is expected to grow to one in four by 2050.

LOURDES MELUZA, WASHINGTON, D.C.

PKG 1:54

On Wednesday, March 22, union leaders, immigrant rights groups, grassroots community allies, business and faith-based leaders met on Capitol Hill to denounce current measures that criminalize immigrant workers and announce plans for a 'National Day of Action on Immigrant Rights' on April 10. The purpose of the National Day of Action on Immigrant Rights was to ensure that Congress pursues comprehensive immigration reform legislation that provides a clear path to permanent residency for those hard-working immigrant families already here, respects human rights and rejects harshly punitive, piecemeal measures that criminalize individuals. AFL-CIO Executive Vice President, Linda Chavez-Thompson, joined representatives from the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, the National Capital Immigration Coalition and the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce for a press conference at 11:30 am at Senate room TBA to unveil plans for mobilization on immigrant rights.

SCOTUS COURT HEARS IMMIGRATION CASE

LUIS MEGID, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

PKG 1:43

Humberto Fernandez-Vargas left his home two years ago in Ogden, Utah, on his way to what he thought was a routine interview about changing his undocumented immigrant status to legal permanent resident. He hasn't been home since. Instead, the 53-year-old, originally from Mexico, was arrested on the spot by Homeland Security agents and was ordered to leave the U.S. because he had entered illegally more than 20 years earlier. It was not the first time Fernandez-Vargas had received a notice from immigration authorities, but the last was in October of 1981. He reentered the country in 1982 and had been living in the U.S., working as a truck driver. On March 30, 2001, Fernandez-Vargas married Rita Fernandez, a United States citizen. A month later, he filed a form to become a legal permanent resident. After his arrest in November of 2003, Fernandez-Vargas spent a year in Utah County Jail before he was sent back to Mexico in September 2004, where he is now living. Because of a law that went into effect in 1997, Homeland Security reinstated Fernandez-Vargas' previous deportation order from 1981. The law, known as the "reinstatement statute," states that a prior order of removal may be reinstated to any undocumented immigrant who has illegally reentered the U.S. It also bars the individual from applying for any form of "relief." A waiver to avoid the statute may only be sought following the completion of a 10-year period outside of the U.S. The "reinstatement statute" strictly tightened immigration laws for previously deported entrants to the U.S. Before 1997, only illegal reentrants who had been deported under certain grounds, such as a felony conviction, could have their original deportation orders reinstated. Undocumented immigrants had a right to a hearing with an immigration judge, and individuals could resist reinstatement by petitioning for relief in the form of adjustment to status.

BUSH AND IMMIGRATION

LOURDES MELUZA/THE WHITE HOUSE

PKG 2:21

President Bush is calling for a "civil debate" over immigration policy -- a debate that respects people of all backgrounds. His appeal comes as Congress prepares for a showdown on the issue. Bush wants Congress to create a worker program under which participants could gain legal status for a specific time, and then be required to return home. It wouldn't provide an automatic path to citizenship. Meanwhile, what was billed as "A Day Without Latinos" filled Milwaukee's streets with thousands of demonstrators today. Police estimate more than ten-thousand people turned out to protest congressional efforts to crack down on illegal immigrants. About 90 Latino-owned businesses were closed for all or part of the day in support. The demonstrators oppose a bill that would make it a felony to live or work illegally in the United States. The measure approved by the House would also impose new penalties on employers who hire illegal migrants and build a fence along about a third of the US border with Mexico.

Secretary of state Condoleezza Rice said the challenge with immigration reform seems to be respecting the rights of individuals and still enforcing our nation's laws: "We are obviously determined that US laws should be enforced. It's also the case that we have a population here that needs to be treated humanely. No matter how they came here, I think Americans would like to think that they'll be treated humanely". Meanwhile, Sen. Arlen Specter said he wants a law that would allow immigrants to stay and work while they applied for citizenship: "We're facing a difficult situation, because we have approximately 11 million undocumented aliens here, and we've got to find some way to deal with them. We have a national security problem. They've not been identified. If we do not have some realistic proposal to give them an opportunity to work lawfully and ultimately to obtain citizenship, then they're going to be fugitives, and we need to know who they are and where they are. And if they have criminal records, we need to send them back to their country of origin". And Rep. Tom Tancredo said he wants employers to be held accountable for hiring illegal immigrants.

But the jury also heard the mastermind of the Sept. 11 attacks, Khalid Shaikh Mohammed, now in U.S. custody, repeatedly state that Moussaoui was to be a part of a second wave of attacks unrelated to Sept. 11. In a 58-page statement read to jurors, Shaikh Mohammed said that he only wanted Middle Easterners for Sept. 11 so that Europeans like Moussaoui stood a better chance of mounting a subsequent attack after security was increased. Testifying against the advice of his court-appointed lawyers, Moussaoui shocked the courtroom. Jurors who will decide whether he is executed or imprisoned for life were almost motionless during his nearly three hours on the stand.

Teachers and students are turning the pro-immigration walkouts that have emptied high schools across Southern California into a real-life lesson about immigration policy, the lawmaking process and civic duty itself. Students in the Los Angeles school system -- which is the nation's second-largest district and is 73 percent Hispanic -- have walked out of class along with thousands of other young people in other U.S. cities over the past few days to protest legislation on Capitol Hill that would crack down on the nation's 11 million illegal immigrants. Among other things, the legislation would make it a crime to be in this country illegally. Wednesday morning was relatively quiet in the Los Angeles district after two days of protests that began with blocked freeways and pleas from the mayor to go back to class, and escalated Tuesday to school lockdowns and scores of truancy citations.

MIAMI PROTEST

VO: 13

A motorcade was planned for Miami Wednesday (3/29) afternoon and students at a least 4 Miami-Dade schools vowed to walk out in protest of new immigration rules being considered in Congress. The immigration rallies familiar in recent days out west are now spreading across the country and hitting South Florida today (Wednesday). The Pew Hispanic Center, a research organization in Washington, estimates there are as many as 12 million illegal immigrants in the United States, though researchers acknowledge they are difficult to count. Other organizations have put the number at 11 million, but all agree the total is rising quickly. Less than half fit the profile of young men sneaking across the border to find jobs and send money back home to their families. Today, most bring their families with them, according to an analysis by the Pew Center.

IMMIGRATION STINGS

The Bush administration has stopped using fake health and safety meetings at job workshops to snag illegal immigrants. Marcy Forman, director of the Homeland Security Department's Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) division, said in a letter to the United Food and Commercial Workers union, that it had stopped using the health and safety sting operations for rounding up illegal immigrants. ICE arrested 49 illegal immigrant workers at North Carolina's Seymour Johnson Air Force Base last summer by luring them with a flier to what was advertised as a mandatory Occupational Safety and Health Administration meeting. Those arrested were contract workers and largely laborers, such as carpenters, with no access to military files.

US President George W. Bush and Mexican President Vicente Fox held a bilateral meeting on Thursday in Cancun, Mexico, where the two leaders discussed border security and US immigration laws. At a joint press conference following the meeting, Bush and Fox suggested one item at the top of their agenda is now out of their hands. The U.S. Senate is debating changes to U.S. immigration laws that could affect an estimated 6 million Mexicans living illegally in the United States. Fox said the matter was now in the hands of the US Congress and no longer a matter for the two presidents to decide. Canadian Prime Minister, Stephen Harper, who is also in Cancun for a three way summit, was expected to join the two leaders later on Thursday for a lavish trilateral dinner. Earlier on Thursday, the three leaders strolled together among the ancient Mayan ruins at Chichen Itza, before sitting down for more intense one-on-one meetings at a beachfront resort hotel.

IMMIGRATION DEBATE LATEST

LOURDES MELUZA, WASHINGTON, D.C.

PKG 2:05

Debate on immigration reform continues in the Senate today. This time senators will be debating a measure endorsed by the Judiciary Committee that includes a guest-worker program. Lawmakers yesterday debated a bill introduced by Majority Leader Bill Frist. His plan focuses on border security and does not offer a path to citizenship for people in the U-S illegally. And it would put a burden on employers to verify the status of their employees. Critics of guest-worker provisions say they amount to amnesty for (m) millions of illegal residents. In contrast to a punitive House version, most senators agree that undocumented workers should be allowed to stay and work in the U-S at least temporarily. The inflammatory issue has sparked still more demonstrations. Thousands of high school students cut classes in California again yesterday to protest restrictions. But in Los Angeles, there were only a few protests as police enforced truancy laws.

Eleven defendants face federal charges today following a massive multi-agency operation led by U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) targeting a string of counterfeit document mills suspected of supplying a significant quantity of the fraudulent immigration and identity documents being sold on the streets of Los Angeles. Yesterday morning, ICE agents and investigators from the California Department of Motor Vehicles executed search warrants at seven suspected counterfeit document mills housed in residences in south Los Angeles. Authorities arrested ten of the defendants as part of yesterday's enforcement action. The remaining suspect was already in custody on unrelated state charges. According to the search warrant affidavits, the four-month ICE undercover probe revealed that the targeted document mills were manufacturing a variety of counterfeit immigration and identity documents, such as permanent resident alien or "green" cards, Social Security cards, and California driver licenses.

12-MONTH EXTENSIONS OF TEMPORARY PROTECTED STATUS (TPS)

The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) today announced the publication of Notices in the Federal Register designating a 12-month extension of Temporary Protected Status (TPS) for nationals of Honduras and Nicaragua until July 5, 2007. Under this extension, those who have already been granted TPS are eligible to live and work in the United States for an additional 12 months and continue to maintain their status. DHS has also automatically extended the validity of Employment Authorization Documents (EADs) for eligible Hondurans and Nicaraguans for 6 months until January 5, 2007. This will allow sufficient time for eligible TPS beneficiaries to receive their extension sticker or an EAD without any lapse in employment

Christopher Hanley, 35, who was attending a conference at the restaurant Windows on the World on the morning of September 11 2001, was one of 28 people whose 911 calls from the trade centre are scheduled to be released in edited form by the city on Friday in response to a court order. The calls, in almost all cases, will include only the voices of the 911 operators. An appeals court ruled last year that the words of the 911 callers should be confidential and in the calls that identified the callers by name, their family members should have the option of deciding whether to release the information. But on Wednesday a judge ordered the Fire Department to release the names of the 28 people who are identified by name in the tapes and also information that could help identify others in edited tapes and transcripts of more than 100 calls for help from the twin towers. State Supreme Court Justice Richard F. Braun issued the order at the request of The New York Times and its reporter Jim Dwyer after hearing arguments that releasing the names of 27 people killed at the Trade Centre and one survivor would not violate privacy interests. In a story that appeared in Thursday's Times, family members of three victims obtained the tapes from the city, with their loved ones' voices not edited out and listened to them with a Times reporter present.

The nation's Roman Catholic leaders received 783 new claims of sex abuse by clergy in 2005, with most of the allegations involving cases that are decades old. The new claims, reported Thursday, bring the total number of accusations against Catholic clergy to more than 12,000 since 1950. The latest figures were released as part of the third audit the bishops have conducted to restore trust in their leadership after abuse allegations soared in 2002. Church leaders, however, drew criticism for changing how this latest review was conducted.

Baseball launched its probe Thursday into steroids use by Barry Bonds and others, and right away the head of the investigation came under attack. Commissioner Bud Selig said former Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell -- and a director of the Boston Red Sox -- will lead the inquiry. Mitchell said he will not resign his position. The probe will be limited to events since September 2002, when the sport banned performance-enhancing drugs. No timetable for the investigation was announced. "Nothing is more important to me than the integrity of the game of baseball," Selig said.

The immigration bill being debated by the Senate is coming under sharp attack from House conservatives. NEW IMMIGRATION LAW IN ARIZONA*VO: 26

The House on Thursday approved a bill to expand Arizona's trespassing law to make undocumented immigrants' presence in Arizona a crime and to enable local authorities to arrest them. Senate Bill 1157, which passed Thursday on a 32-26 vote, had been approved previously by the Senate but now returns to consider changes made by the House. It is considered unlikely to become law because of the likelihood of a veto by Democratic Gov. Janet Napolitano. No Democrats voted in favor of the bill. Under the measure, an undocumented immigrant anywhere in Arizona would be guilty of a felony. Also, a law officer arresting someone for investigation of a crime would be authorized to question the person's nationality and immigration status. The bill would permit a first-time violator to be turned over to federal authorities for deportation but also states the legislative intent that a repeat offender should be criminally prosecuted.

Senators writing an immigration bill moved closer Thursday to preventing millions of employed illegal immigrants from being deported in the face of a political stampede to make it harder for them to cross into the United States or stay. Majority Leader Bill Frist, who is looking at running for president in 2008, prepared his own bill focused more narrowly on tightening borders and said the Senate will begin debating it the week after next if the Judiciary Committee cannot agree on a broader bill by then. "Our country needs security at our borders in order to slow the flow of illegal immigration and make America safer from foreign criminals and terrorists," said Frist, a Tennessee Republican. He said giving the committee beyond March 27 to reach an accord would mean the Senate would not have the full two weeks he's set aside to debate immigration and border security issues and pass a bill. The House passed a bill in December that makes it a felony for illegal immigrants to be in the United States, imposes new penalties on employers who hire them and erects fencing along a third of the U.S.-Mexico border.

The U.S. military said on Thursday it launched its biggest air offensive in Iraq since the 2003 invasion to root out insurgents near a town where recent violence raised fears of civil war. A military statement said the operation involving more than 50 aircraft and 1,500 Iraqi and U.S. troops as well as 200 tactical vehicles targeted suspected insurgents operating near the town of Samarra, 100 km (60 miles) north of Baghdad. The statement said "Operation Swarmer" was launched on Thursday morning and is "expected to continue for several days as a thorough search of the objective area is conducted". Samarra was the site of a bombing attack last month on a Shi'ite shrine that set off sectarian reprisals and pushed Iraq to the brink of civil war.

He said results of a secret investigation by the Government Accountability Office, the watchdog arm of Congress, reaffirmed that priority. Hawley said the GAO study, in which investigators carried readily available materials that can be used to make bombs through checkpoints at 21 airports, was limited and on a smaller scale than tests that TSA regularly conducts.

Low carbohydrate, high protein diets may help to shed weight quickly but researchers warned on Friday that they can be unhealthy. "Low-carbohydrate diets for weight management are far from healthy," said Lyn Steffen and Jennifer Nettleton, of the University of Minnesota School of Public Health in Minneapolis, writing in the British Medical Journal. They cited the unpleasant effects and a lack of trials to test the long-term effects of low-carbohydrate diets. In a case report in the journal, doctors at New York University School of Medicine said they had treated a 40-year-old obese woman, who had followed the Atkins diet, for a life-threatening illness known as ketoacidosis. The diet, based on research by Dr Robert Atkins who died in 2003, involves eating proteins such as meat and cheese and limiting carbohydrates such as bread and pasta.

Waters subsided Monday, and the storms may have eased chronic drought. The flooding has had a huge impact on homeowners. Many have been forced to leave their property, while others have chosen to continue living in the soggy conditions. Mother Nature lashed out, even though most skies are clear now, some areas are still flooded and the dark cloud of destruction still hangs over many homes. Although floodwaters receded several feet in a west Dallas neighborhood near Topeka and McBroom streets, many homes still have a foot or more of water inside. Residents are forced to wade through the murky water to get in and out of their homes. The conditions are dangerous, especially since children are playing in the possible contaminated mess.

President Bush replaced longtime chief of staff Andy Card with budget director Joshua Bolten on Tuesday and gave Bolten authority to make further changes in a White House staff that even Republicans have complained is tired, insular and lacking fresh ideas. Appearing with Bush in the Oval Office, Bolten gave no hint about what, if any, shake-up he might order. But White House officials said no one should doubt his ability to replace Bush aides.

John Suhroff walked into the Sausalito police department and showed them the purse he had found. It contained one million dollars in jewelry. Inside were a Cartier watch, various pieces of jewelry made of pearls, emeralds and diamonds, including a 12-carat stone. Sufrohff thought it was costume jewelry. Also in the purse were 300 dollars in American money and 200-dollars in Canadian money. A couple from Toronto was in San Francisco for their daughter's wedding and the husband accidently left the purse on the bench. The Canadians had grave doubts they would ever see this one million dollar treasure again. But thanks to John Sufrohff, purse, money, and a fortune in jewelry are in the process of being returned to the couple in Canada.

IMMIGRATION DEBATE CONTINUES

VO: 28 & SOT:

Senators have begun arguing the pros and cons of various immigration proposals. Alabama Senator Jeff Sessions says a fence along the U-S border to keep illegal immigrants out is a good idea. He says he's reminded of the phrase "good fences make good neighbors." He says the proposal for guest worker programs amounts to amnesty because it puts illegal immigrants on a path to citizenship. Senator Edward Kennedy disagrees. He argues the guest worker program allows illegal immigrants to earn citizenship through a lengthy process. The Senate debate will begin with a bill that focuses on enforcement. An alternative approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee which includes guest worker programs will be offered as an alternative.

L.A. AND MIAMI PROTESTS

PKG 1:42

Teachers and students are turning the pro-immigration walkouts that have emptied high schools across Southern California into a real-life lesson about immigration policy, the lawmaking process and civic duty itself. Students in the Los Angeles school system -- which is the nation's second-largest district and is 73 percent Hispanic -- have walked out of class along with thousands of other young people in other U.S. cities over the past few days to protest legislation on Capitol Hill that would crack down on the nation's 11 million illegal immigrants. Among other things, the legislation would make it a crime to be in this country illegally. Wednesday morning was relatively quiet in the Los Angeles district after two days of protests that began with blocked freeways and pleas from the mayor to go back to class, and escalated Tuesday to school lockdowns and scores of truancy citations.

MIAMI PROTEST

A motorcade was planned for Miami Wednesday (3/29) afternoon and students at a least 4 Miami-Dade schools vowed to walk out in protest of new immigration rules being considered in Congress. The immigration rallies familiar in recent days out west are now spreading across the country and hitting South Florida today (Wednesday). The Pew Hispanic Center, a research organization in Washington, estimates there are as many as 12 million illegal immigrants in the United States, though researchers acknowledge they are difficult to count. Other organizations have put the number at 11 million, but all agree the total is rising quickly. Less than half fit the profile of young men sneaking across the border to find jobs and send money back home to their families. Today, most bring their families with them, according to an analysis by the Pew Center.

US President George W. Bush and Mexican President Vicente Fox held a bilateral meeting on Thursday in Cancun, Mexico, where the two leaders discussed border security and US immigration laws. At a joint press conference following the meeting, Bush and Fox suggested one item at the top of their agenda is now out of their hands. The U.S. Senate is debating changes to U.S. immigration laws that could affect an estimated 6 million Mexicans living illegally in the United States. Fox said the matter was now in the hands of the US Congress and no longer a matter for the two presidents to decide. Canadian Prime Minister, Stephen Harper, who is also in Cancun for a three way summit, was expected to join the two leaders later on Thursday for a lavish trilateral dinner. Earlier on Thursday, the three leaders strolled together among the ancient Mayan ruins at Chichen Itza, before sitting down for more intense one-on-one meetings at a beachfront resort hotel.

IMMIGRATION DEBATE LATEST

LOURDES MELUZA, WASHINGTON, D.C.

PKG 2:05

Debate on immigration reform continues in the Senate today. This time senators will be debating a measure endorsed by the Judiciary Committee that includes a guest-worker program. Lawmakers yesterday debated a bill introduced by Majority Leader Bill Frist. His plan focuses on border security and does not offer a path to citizenship for people in the U-S illegally. And it would put a burden on employers to verify the status of their employees. Critics of guest-worker provisions say they amount to amnesty for (m) millions of illegal residents. In contrast to a punitive House version, most senators agree that undocumented workers should be allowed to stay and work in the U-S at least temporarily. The inflammatory issue has sparked still more demonstrations. Thousands of high school students cut classes in California again yesterday to protest restrictions. But in Los Angeles, there were only a few protests as police enforced truancy laws.

Christopher Hanley, 35, who was attending a conference at the restaurant Windows on the World on the morning of September 11 2001, was one of 28 people whose 911 calls from the trade centre are scheduled to be released in edited form by the city on Friday in response to a court order. The calls, in almost all cases, will include only the voices of the 911 operators. An appeals court ruled last year that the words of the 911 callers should be confidential and in the calls that identified the callers by name, their family members should have the option of deciding whether to release the information. But on Wednesday a judge ordered the Fire Department to release the names of the 28 people who are identified by name in the tapes and also information that could help identify others in edited tapes and transcripts of more than 100 calls for help from the twin towers. State Supreme Court Justice Richard F. Braun issued the order at the request of The New York Times and its reporter Jim Dwyer after hearing arguments that releasing the names of 27 people killed at the Trade Centre and one survivor would not violate privacy interests. In a story that appeared in Thursday's Times, family members of three victims obtained the tapes from the city, with their loved ones' voices not edited out and listened to them with a Times reporter present.

Women of Fort Worth and Arlington can walk the streets much safer, now that police officials have a suspect in custody. Jose Carrillo, 30, is accused of multiple counts of aggravated sexual assault. He is also being investigated for aggravated robbery and other offenses. A citizen's tip led to Carrillo's arrest on March 10. He was linked to and charged with three assault offenses, two from Fort Worth and one from Arlington, on Wednesday (3.29). Carrillo was transferred to Fort Worth on Thursday (3.30). The offenses began in December 2004 and in June, July, October and November 2005, similar offenses were reported. Sexual assaults followed in Arlington on Dec. 19, 2005, and in Fort Worth on Jan. 24, 2006. Restraints were placed around victims' necks in many of the instances, police said at a news conference held Thursday afternoon at the Fort Worth Police and Fire Training Center.

Construction crews in Sausalito, California are rushing in tarps and plastic sheeting to cover a sliding hillside that's dangerously close to homes. Rain weakened a hillside at Bridgeway and Atwood and more bad weather is expected. Residents near the slide were evacuated Wednesday (03/29), but most were allowed back Wednesday night when engineers determined it was safe. Construction work at a home above the slide may have also contributed to the problems. City of Sausalito engineer Todd Teachout says he doesn't think any of the houses above the slide are at any significant risk. A few decks may be the most vulnerable structures. Wayne Rayburn is a general contractor who built a deck onto his home. He says this hill has a history of problems and from his informal survey, it remains unstable. Until the hill can be engineered and shored up, construction workers are doing their best to weather the next storm, bringing in plastic sheeting and tarps to prevent rain from doing more damage.

Several family members spoke of the anguish caused by Cullen's decision to murder their loved ones. Many family members had expressed hope Cullen would use the sentencing hearing to explain why he committed the crimes in medical facilities in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Those hopes were dashed when Cullen had little to say as Judge Armstrong read the sentence.

Facing a Republican mutiny in Congress, the White House said Thursday that President Bush is open to compromise but would not retreat from a threatened veto of legislation that would block a Dubai-owned company from taking control of some U.S. port operations. By a 62-2 margin, the GOP-dominated House Appropriations Committee voted to bar DP World, which is run by the government of Dubai in the United Arab Emirates, from holding leases or contracts at U.S. ports. In the Senate, Democrats demanded a vote to stop the transaction. The ports provision was added to a must-pass measure funding the war in Iraq and providing new hurricane relief. The White House expressed concern that the tactic could "slow down passage of vital funds and resources" but said Bush's veto threat still stood.

BUSH SIGNS PATRIOT ACT

VO: 20

President Bush signed into law an extension of the controversial Patriot Act, during a ceremony in the East Room of the White House. The president praised members of congress, and his cabinet, for their hard work in getting the legislation to his desk. The president said the United States still faces dangerous enemies around the world. And he said this bill gives law enforcement agencies the tools to protect the nation.

BORDER PATROL TRIAL

VO: 20

Two border patrol agents could face up to life in prison in El Paso, Texas. On Wednesday, agents Jose Alonso Compean and Ignacio Ramos were found guilty of intentionally covering up a shooting of a drug smuggler that happened at the U.S.-Mexico border near Fabens last February. The agents were trying to make a traffic stop when the suspect fled on foot. Ramos and Compean shot at him, striking him in the buttocks as he crossed into Mexico. They testified they believed he was armed. The agents later found about 700 pounds of marijuana in the suspect's car. But the agents picked up the bullet casings and did not report the incident, testifying that they assumed other agents at the scene had reported it. Prosecuting attorney Debra Kanof said both agents were found guilty of multiple federal crimes including two criminal assault charges, several counts of tampering with an official proceeding, including destroying the scene and not reporting the shooting. They were also found guilty of the use of a firearm in the commission of a violent crime and a civil rights charge.

DAY LABORERS HOTLINE

LUIS MEGID, SANTA CRUZ, CALIFORNIA

PKG 2:04

Police in Santa Cruz this week opened a hotline for illegal immigrants to report alleged abuses by people who hire them as day laborers. The unusual measure was called "an effective education tool" Tuesday by the city councilman behind the idea, who acknowledged that complaints lodged anonymously could be difficult to prosecute. Even so, Councilman Ryan Coonerty said official scrutiny may be enough to keep employers from shortchanging undocumented workers, threatening them with deportation, and denying them breaks. "Having a police officer at your doorstep asking questions may be a signal to stop whatever it is you're doing," he said. What it signals about the community's tolerance of illegal immigration is less clear, according to a group advocating tougher U.S. policies. Santa Cruz officials said they know of no other city or county in California, Arizona or Texas offering a similar hotline. In Illinois, a hotline run by the state labor department started taking calls in January. Hotline callers who do leave their names will not be asked about their immigration status, officials said.

BOUNCER LINE UP FOR RAPE

VO:20

A Queens judge today approved putting Darryl Littlejohn, a suspect in the case of a slain graduate student, in a lineup for a separate sex assault in Queens. District Attorney Richard Brown said in a statement that Littlejohn will be placed in the lineup of suspects in with a sex attack last October, in Forest Hills, Queens. Defense attorney Kevin O'Donnell told reporters outside court that Littlejohn maintains his innocence. He added that Littlejohn "feels like a scapegoat" and objected to Littlejohn's mug shot being released earlier this week by authorities. The Queens case is one of three unsolved sex attacks - including one more in Queens and one on Long Island. All of them involved a man who abducted his victims late last year using a van, said a law enforcement official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. Littlejohn is not charged in the killing of Imette St. Guillen. He was a bouncer at The Falls bar, where St. Guillen was last seen alive. The student at John Jay College of Criminal Justice in Manhattan was raped, tortured and suffocated. Her body was found on February 25th in Brooklyn, with her head wrapped with clear packing tape.

IMMIGRANT MARCH

ENRIQUE RODRIGUEZ, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PKG 2:13

Thousands of immigrants are staging a massive protest friday (3/10) In chicago against proposed changes in immigrations laws. Thousands of people, both documented and undocumented, gathered in a park and plan to march downtown to federal plaza. There, they'll voice their opposition to the border security bill. Opponents of the measure say it criminalizes undocumented residents and those who provide them aid and health care. Rally organizers urged people to take the day off of work in order to increase numbers for the march. They say this will help illustrate the importance of immigrants to the u-s economy. Supporters of the bill say it's needed to clamp down on illegal immigration and improve national security.

Just a few days ago, Juan Cruz-Torralva and his 12 year old daughter crossed the u-s Mexico border illegally. They started the two and a half day trek from Oaxaca, Mexico. The trip turned deadly in the desert area a few miles southwest of Interstate 8 and milemarker 78. That's where Cruz-Torralva and his daughter hid behind a bush to avoid getting caught by border patrol. The patrol vehicle ran over him and his daughter, killing her. Now he's behind bars in the Yuma County Jail. In court today, he found out what charges he could face. They include endangerment.

AIRMAN SPEAKS IN VIDEO

VO:21

The 21-year-old Iraq war veteran seen in a video being shot by a sheriff's deputy says in a recorded statement that he has difficulty walking.

Senior Airman Elio Carrion released a videotaped statement through his attorney Thursday, a day after San Bernardino County Sheriff's Deputy Ivory J. Webb pleaded not guilty to attempted voluntary manslaughter and was released on $100,000 bail. "My physical therapy continues to progress and I still have difficulties walking," Carrion says, looking into the video camera. "I'm sorry I haven't been able to speak publicly, but right now I'm focused on my physical therapy and healing." The tape shows him sitting on a couch next to his wife and moving around with the aid of a walker.

ICE GANG ARRESTS

LOURDES MELUZA, WASHINGTON, D.C.

PKG 2:01

Police in cities across the u-s have arrested hundreds of gang members in recent weeks. In 23 states 375 gang members pulled off the streets. All part of Operation Community Shield, a year-old crackdown pairing local police departments with the Department of Homeland Security. The latest busts in the operation bring the total since February 2005 to almost 24-hundred according to the government. Dallas had the largest number of recent arrests at 44. In San Diego, there were 41 and police in both Miami and Washington D-C arrested 22. Federal officials say the busts send a strong message to gang members, many of whom are illegal immigrants. There were arrests in smaller cities as well, like Des Moines, Providence and Sioux Falls. In Dallas, police are already seeing a difference on the street. Operation Community Shield was launched last year to specifically target the ms-13 gang. The government says roughly 900 of the nearly 24-hundred arrests have been ms-13 members but the gang busts were expanded to go after other gangs as well.

ST. GUILLEN BLOOD MATCHES

VO: 24

Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly said Sunday authorities would seek an indictment against a bouncer with a long rap sheet, the prime suspect in last month's gruesome slaying of a graduate student. Blood found on the plastic ties used to bind Imette St. Guillen has been matched to a bouncer at the bar where she was last seen alive, the New York Police Department commissioner said. Kelly said authorities would take that match and other evidence to a grand jury to get an indictment against Darryl Littlejohn. He didn't give a date for when the grand jury would get the case. Littlejohn, in custody at a Rikers Island jail on a parole violation, had not been arrested in connection with St. Guillen's death as of Sunday afternoon. The 41-year-old maintains his innocence.

TORNADOS DAMAGE

VO: 19

Severe storms swept through parts of Kansas and Missouri today. They brought winds that knocked over airplanes at the downtown Kansas City airport and ripped roofs off homes, businesses, and buildings at the University of Kansas. No reports of deaths or injuries. The National Weather Service had not confirmed whether the storm spawned tornados, but several weather spotters reported twisters in the area. The storms followed powerful tornadoes that ripped across southern Missouri and southern Illinois last night. The twisters destroyed homes along a path of more than 20 miles and killed a married couple whose car was blown off the road.

TEENAGERS DEAD

VO: 24 & SOT: 18

A naked woman and man with his pants down were found dead in a car in a Queens garage yesterday, the apparent victims of accidental carbon monoxide poisoning, witnesses and an FDNY source said. Jonathan Tapia, 21, and Delly Collado, 28, had been dating for a short while and lived with their families a few blocks apart. "We smelled fumes on the first and second floors," said Luis Padilla, who rented the garage attached to his 99th St., Corona, home to Tapia. "I opened the garage and discovered the bodies. They were nude." One of Padilla's relatives tapped on the window of the Acura about 7:30 a.m., but the couple, motionless in the front passenger seat, didn't respond. The engine was still running, the likely source of the deadly gas. By coincidence, one of Tapia's cousins, who was expecting a ride to work, grabbed a spare key and went to the garage. He opened the car and found the bodies cold to the touch, witnesses said.

TEXAS WILDIRES

VO:21

Using bulldozers and air tankers, firefighters struggled Monday to stop wind-blown wildfires that scorched more than 1,000 square miles of the drought-stricken Texas Panhandle. The blazes were blamed for at least seven deaths, four of them in a crash on a smoke-shrouded highway over the weekend. About 1,900 people in seven counties were evacuated. Eleven fires burned over an estimated 530,000 acres Monday, down from 663,000 over the weekend. State fire crews fought more than 160 blazes in one 24-hour period. The cause of the latest blazes was under investigation; the previous fires were apparently sparked by people who burned trash, tossed cigarettes or illegally set off fireworks in the middle of one of the worst droughts in Texas in 50 years.

MARIHUANA AND MEMORY

VO :21

Previous research has found that people who use marijuana have poorer memories and slower reaction times. Now there is new evidence showing that these brain-dulling effects of this drug seem to get worse and worse the longer you smoke. A new study this week compared people who had NOT USED MARIJUANA in the past 2 years to those who had smoked the drug in the short term - for the past 5 to ten years - and also long term users who had smoked for more than 10 years. Tests of cognitive ability, such as remembering a list of words, showed that the non-users performed the best, followed by the short-term users and then the long-term users bringing up the rear.

IMMIGRANT DAD ARREST LATEST*VO: 20

Juan Cruz-Torralva brought his 12-year-old daughter through the desert along the U.S.-Mexico border. Three days into the journey, a U.S. Border Patrol agent spotted the group of illegal immigrants, and as the agent chased them, the Border Patrol truck hit Cruz-Torralva and his daughter, Lourdes, killing her. Yuma County sheriff's detectives determined the death was an accident, but Cruz-Torralva was arrested on charges of endangerment. Deputies argued that he had placed the child in "risk of imminent death" by bringing her into the desert. A prosecutor on refused to pursue the case, saying there wasn't enough evidence to prove the charge. Cruz-Torralva, meanwhile, sat in jail and said he didn't understand why he was there.

Farmers and businesses depending on illegal immigrants to fill low-wage jobs are banging against a brick wall in Congress as they push for a temporary worker program. Even with President Bush on their side, advocates have been unable to overcome the opposition of those who are deadset against any proposal that in an election year could be labeled "amnesty." The Senate Judiciary Committee has given itself a Thursday deadline to produce a bill that would tighten U.S. borders, impose new sanctions on illegal immigrants and their employers, and give legal status to some workers now here illegally. Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, R-Tenn., has promised a vote on some kind of temporary "guest worker" program after Congress returns March 27 from a weeklong recess, but not necessarily one that includes illegal immigrants, as advocated by Bush. Bush has proposed a temporary worker program allowing participants to register for legal status for a specific period of time and then be required to return home. It would not provide amnesty, which the administration says it would reject in any proposal, and also would not be an automatic path to citizenship.

CHILD PORN

VO: 27

U.S. and international authorities have charged 27 people in connection with an online child pornography enterprise, federal authorities said Wednesday. Those charged were participants in an online chat room that included streaming video of live child molestation, the Justice Department said. Investigators said they identified seven children who were molested on video seen in the Kiddypics & Kiddyvids chat room. Four molesters are among those charged, prosecutors said. In recent days, federal agents have made arrests in Arizona, Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Michigan, Nevada, New York, North Carolina and Tennessee. Thirteen people have been indicted in the United States on charges that include possession, receipt, distribution and manufacture of child pornography. The other 14 have been charged in Australia, Canada and Great Britain. One person remains at large. The investigation began in Canada.

The man who was caught on tape kidnapping an eleven-year-old Florida girl has a death sentence for later killing her. A judge in Sarasota has sentenced Joseph Smith to death for murdering CarlIE Brucia (BROO'-shuh). He had earlier given Smith life prison terms for kidnapping and raping the girl. A jury had recommended death for the murder. Smith showed no emotion as the judge read his sentence. A carwash surveillance tape caught the former mechanic leading the girl away by the hand in February 2004.

TEXAS WILDFIRE

VO:20

Firefighters battling wildfires in Texas are bracing for possible strong winds today (Wednesday). Meteorologists are predicting wind gusts of up to 40 miles per hour on the fourth day since the fires erupted. McLean's fire chief said the winds could ignite smoldering embers across the region. They are preparing for the worst. So far, wildfires have scorched 840-thousand acres in the Texas panhandle. 11 people have died and a number of structures have been destroyed. According to preliminary estimates, 10-thousand horses and cattle have been killed by the fires.

CHINO SHOOTING*VO: 17 & SOT: 18

Minutes after shooting an unarmed man at the end of a high-speed chase, a San Bernardino County sheriff's deputy told a sergeant who arrived at the scene that he opened fire because the 21-year-old suspect had "charged him," according to a confidential sheriff's report. But by the time he agreed to be interviewed by detectives investigating the shooting, the deputy had seen a videotape of the incident and said he used deadly force because he believed the man was going for a gun. The statements that Deputy Ivory John Webb Jr. made to the sergeant conflict with the videotape of the Jan. 29 shooting in which Air Force policeman Elio Carrion was shot and wounded. The tape, which has been repeatedly broadcast on television and received national attention, shows Carrion kneeling and then getting shot as he follows an apparent order by Webb to stand. Webb, 45, was charged with attempted voluntary manslaughter last week and pleaded not guilty.
