SPECIAL REPORTS

NOW OR NEVER: IDEAS TO SAVE THE FAILING BUDGET PROCESS

MARCH 4TH

In the 16 years since the House, the Senate and the President have failed to agree on a set of bills to fund the government for an entire fiscal year, hope for an efficient process has withered. Since 1997, over 90 different CRs have been passed in order to fund agencies.

Federal News Radio believes there is a better way to avoid this ongoing federal budget acrimony.

Our special report, "Now or Never: Ideas To Save the Failing Budget Process," highlights best practices, real-life successes and research that could save time, money and sanity in federal budgeting, and give agencies and contractors the stability needed to help meet the missions of the government.

We asked a range of experts — liberal, conservative, civilian, military, Democrat, Republican, federal and state — for their solutions.
