Salud	Despierta América	01/06/2016	1:14	We know that being obese can lead to a shorter life, but is there a residual risk of obesity even after you have lost the weight? A new study suggests there is. Researchers compared weight and height data from two waves of the National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey (NHANES) with death certificate records from the National Death Index...
Salud	Despierta América	01/07/2016	0:29	A new study from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention shows that single mothers get the least amount of sleep. Among families with children under age 18, 32 percent are now headed by single parents, and they tend to have fewer financial resources. Now, new data from the CDC shows that they also get less sleep.
Salud	Despierta América	01/15/2016	0:28	The centers for disease control might impose new travel guidelines for women heading to places where a certain virus is present. It's all because of the mosquito-borne Zika virus. The virus was found in fetal and newborn tissues of babies with microcephaly in Brazil. Microcephaly is a neurological disorder that can cause babies to be born with abnormally small heads, which leads to severe developmental issues and sometimes death. There is no vaccine to block the Zika virus and no medicine to treat it. Earlier this week, a case of Zika virus was confirmed in a person who had recently traveled to Latin America. The virus is endemic there.
Salud	Despierta América	02/22/2016	0:29	Drinking coffee has numerous health benefits, including but not limited to improved energy and workout performance. Now, a research team from Southampton University in the UK suggests it may even reduce the risk of developing alcohol-related liver damage. What's more, their findings, published in the journal Alimentary Pharmacology and Therapeutics , reveal the exact amount of coffee needed to reap these alleged protective benefits.
Salud	Despierta América	03/01/2016	0:25	Cases of Zika are expected to rise in Puerto Rico in the coming months. And that raises the likelihood of transfer to the mainland. Zika has landed forcefully in America, in one of its poorest and most vulnerable corners, a debt-ridden territory lacking a functioning health-care system, window screens and even a spray that works against the mosquitoes spreading the virus in homes, workplaces, schools and parks.
Salud	Despierta América	03/22/2016	0:33	There's more evidence that what's good for your heart is good for your head. A new study shows that people who run, swim or do other moderate exercise have brains that look, on average, 10 years younger than the brains of couch potatoes.
Salud	Primer Impacto	01/05/2016	3:00	Dr. Juan Rivera talks in his live segment Cuide Su Salud about child abuse and its consequences in grown up kids and their future. Child abuse can have damaging effects not only on the children who suffer it, but on communities that must address the aftermath of abuse.

Nutrición	Primer Impacto	01/18/2016	2:11	As part of a healthy diet, whole foods play a significant role in helping our bodies function at their best. There are hundreds of extremely nutritious whole foods, but the dozen on this list do more than contribute healthy nutrients -- they help you heal. In fact, every food on this list boasts multiple healing effects, from fighting cancer to reducing cholesterol, guarding against heart disease, and more. Eat these super-healing picks and start feeling pretty super yourself.
Salud	Primer Impacto	01/26/2016	3:30	Dr. Juan river in his live segment cuide su salud, talks about the zika virus and the ways to prevent it. Zika virus is a flavivirus, part of the same family as the viruses that cause yellow fever, west nile, chikungunya and dengue. But unlike some of those viruses, there is no vaccine to prevent zika or medicine to treat the infection. Zika is commanding worldwide attention because of an alarming connection between the virus and microcephaly, a neurological disorder that results in babies being born with abnormally small heads. This causes severe developmental issues and sometimes death.
Salud	Primer Impacto	02/05/2016	0:23	The american heart association is working to raise awareness of the toll heart disease takes on women. They're asking women to wear red and donate to help fund research. The group says heart disease and strokes kill a woman every 80 seconds -- but the vast majority of these events are preventable
Salud	Primer Impacto	02/22/2016	1:44	Cecilia ramirez harris talks in her live segment in regards of food vs sleep. Nothing is more annoying than insomnia, and the evidence is piling up that sleep is essential for good health. Although the research is a bit spotty when it comes to which foods help or harm sleep, anecdotal evidence does suggest that certain items consumed right before bedtime are more likely to be "sleep promoters" while others may be "sleep stealers,"
Seguridad	Primer Impacto	3/01/16	1:48	Could sharing your pictures online with friends and family lead a curious stranger to your door? Online tool called gramfeed that maps instagram pictures in real time to see who was nearby. People are leaving "a trail of breadcrumbs" on their social media sites. To combat stalking, experts say to delay posting pictures when you are out and not to post pictures of your home, or information that reveals your daily routine. They also say to learn to manage the location and privacy settings on your mobile device, by telling it to never use your location when posting to social media. Allways double check to see what settings are available and what privacy settings you have in your phone
Salud	Primer Impacto	3/07/16	1:35	Cecilia ramirez harris talks in her segment about water retention, which occurs in the circulatory system or within tissues and cavities. It can cause swelling in the hands, feet, ankles and legs.there are several reasons why it happens, many of which are not serious. Some women experience water retention during pregnancy or before their monthly period. However, water retention can also be a symptom of a severe medical condition like kidney disease or heart failure. If you're having sudden or severe water retention then seek medical attention immediately. You may be able to reduce water retention with a few simple tricks as eating more potassium-rich foods, eat less salt, increase, your magnesium intake and increase vitamin b6 intake.
