Este programa se desarrolla en Lares, una de las regiones más productivas de la montaña. Allí, Francisco González recién había levantado la finca familiar con un proyecto de cilantrillo en sistema hidropónico. El huracán dejó el cincuenta por ciento de las estructuras en el suelo; la falta de electricidad amenazó con destruir lo único que le quedaba: la esperanza, pero su voluntad pudo más. Los derrumbes impidieron el paso a la finca de Erick Cruz, donde sus empleados quedaron incomunicados. A los ocho días del huracán pudo llegar para encontrarse con la siembra de café y plátanos destruídas, y la cosecha de chinas totalmente perdida; aun así se dijo: "No me quito, sigo trabajando la finca". Esta temporada Del campo a la mesa regresa con las historias de ocho agricultores que viven lo que trabajan, todos los días, de corazón
