MAKING IT GROW

July

Please join us July 7 at 7pm on SCETV for “Making It Grow” as Clemson Extension Agent and Host Amanda McNulty answers gardening questions with SC Master Gardener Program Coordinator Terasa Lott and Extension Agents Laura Lee Rose and Zack Snipes.

Our first segment is trip to Beaufort, SC and The Spanish Moss Trail. Special Thanks to Laura Lee for setting this segment up for us back in November. Also joining us is Dr. Juang-Horng (JC) Chong, assistant professor and Clemson Extension specialist at the Clemson University Pee Dee Research and Education Center, for the first part of a two-part feature on neonicotinoids. The second part will air next week. Lastly, we will talk with Floriculturist Katie Dickson of Magnolia Plantation and Gardens who in her spare time, created a pollinator garden to help the community vegetable garden where she lives. The show will stream on FB as always and we will be online to answer gardening questions.

Please join us July 14 at 7pm on SCETV for “Making It Grow” as Clemson Extension Agent and Host Amanda McNulty answers gardening questions with SC Master Gardener Program Coordinator Terasa Lott and Extension Agents Laura Lee Rose and Zack Snipes. Also, during the show Laura Lee talks about vermicomposting and Zack introduces his four-legged “vegetable specialist”.

Our first segment is the second part of our feature on neonicotinoids with Dr. Juang-Horng (JC) Chong, assistant professor and Clemson Extension specialist at the Clemson University Pee Dee Research and Education Center. Our second segment will be a trip to downtown Lake City, SC and their renovated Theater Park. We talk with horticulturist Bradly Roberts from Moore Farms Botanical Garden about the various plant material there. The last segment is trip to Greenwood, SC and talk with Master Gardener Rusty Wilson about their Monarch Waystation. These field segments were recorded before Coronavirus. The show will stream on FB as always and we will be online to answer gardening questions.

How would you like to go to a party with a dozen fun, smart people and talk about things that are happy or instructive with a cheerful presentation all the while remaining perfectly safe in the comfort of your own home? “Making It Grow” this Tuesday, July 28 at 7 PM on SCETV takes a trip around the state visiting with Clemson Extension Agents for a “show and tell” extravaganza all the way from Beaufort to Pickens County.

First up, Terasa Lott talks about squash diseases but ends with news she learned to use that healthy vegetable in brownies. Even someone with a hard heart towards turf will soften when Adam Gore shows off a super soft-looking picnic spot on his Saint Augustine lawn. Not your usual native plant choice is Amy Dabbs’ contribution with ‘Peachie’s Pick’ Stokes aster. Precious Emma Tanner showed off blueberry muffins she made thanks to her father Cory Tanner’s creative net-covered frame which keeps the birds away. Already thinking about cooler weather and fall, Laura Lee Rose has sweet potatoes growing in her Beaufort garden. With South Carolina’s humidity, native dogwoods are taking a hit, but Paul Thompson shares photographs of a gorgeous Korean cultivar that scoffs at mildew problems. Who except our creative Trish DeHond could transform her yard’s curb appeal with a bale of pine straw? And, that elusive backyard tomato becomes more likely to happen if you follow Zack Snipes’ spot-on advice for controlling those troublesome spots. Surprises happen at every twist and turn in Barbara Smith’s Japanese maple collection at Crooked Trail Farm. With a childhood spent roaming the woods, no wonder Chase Smoak thinks several native plants deserve to be in our in-town landscapes, while our colorful Vicky Bertagnolli rescues Great Crested Fly Catcher babies when their house ends up on the ground. A fig as big as your fist – trust Tony Melton to have unusual fruit that we, too, can have in our yard – but we could never reproduce his made by his own hands house. To end things up with a twenty-year-old tradition, Amanda McNulty shows you how to make a very colorful (and a little top-heavy) “Making It Grow” chapeau with flowers from her yard. Put your worries and cares away for an hour while Clemson Extension horticulture agents show you why connecting with people is at the top of their resume. Tuesday night, July 28, 7 PM sharp on South Carolina ETV and streaming here on Facebook! The invitation list is wide open.

August

We are going to take a look again at some of our favorite recent segments on the next “Making It Grow” this Tuesday, August 4 at 7 PM on SCETV with Clemson Extension Agent and Host Amanda McNulty.

First up, we travel to Camden, SC where Stephanie Tetterton is farming a variety of vegetables including their heirloom Shirley Hammond multiplier onion. Next, Amanda and Dr. John Nelson travel to a seep and look at some of the unique plant material there. Then for a tasty snack we go to Bowman, SC where Blanche Weathers is frying peanuts and shows us how. To learn more about pollinator habitats we visit JoAnna Angle in Chester, SC at Cedar Leaf Farm. Heading over to Clover, SC we talk with twins Madelyn and Logan Bolin about their involvement with 4H and the Dairy Heifer Project. Going from cows to horses, Reed Edwards in Laurens, SC shows us the hay production for his horses at Foxpipe Farm. For our final trip, we finish at the SC State Farmers Market and tour the hydroponic produce facility with Andrew Hare at Vertical Roots.

Again, these are some of our favorite segments from the past couple of years and hope everyone enjoys seeing them again. We will also be streaming the show on the “Making It Grow” Facebook page and answering questions there.

We are going to take a look again at some of our favorite recent segments related to SC fish, oysters and crabs on the next “Making It Grow” this Tuesday, August 11 at 7 PM on SCETV with Clemson Extension Agent and Host Amanda McNulty.

First up, we travel to Charleston, SC where Michael Hodges with SCDNR is improving estuary health along with students as part of the SC Oyster Recycling and Enhancement program. Next, we’ll visit with Andrew Carmines in Hilton Head, SC at Hudson’s Seafood House on the Docks as we take a look at his menu, especially the soft shell crabs. Then we’ll travel to Clemson University where Dr. Lance Beecher talks with us all about aquaponics. Joining us in the studio next is Suzy Ellison from the SC Specialty Food Association and Robert Barber from Bowens Island where he shares with us his cocktail sauce. For the next segment we head back to Hudson’s Seafood House on the Docks just in time for an oyster roast. To see how a seafood market operates, we then go to Harrelsons Seafood Market in Murrells Inlet, SC. Lastly, we’ll go to Little Bulls Island, SC where Rocky Magwood is harvesting oysters and taking them to Art’s Bar and Grill in Mt. Pleasant, SC.

Again, these are some of our favorite segments from the past couple of years and hope everyone enjoys seeing them again. We will also be streaming the show on the “Making It Grow” Facebook page and Terasa Lott and Vicky Bertagnolli will be answering questions there.

For our first featured segment, Clemson Forestry and Wildlife Agent TJ Savereno gives a tour of his landscape and the benefits of these plants for wildlife. Next, we talk with Amy Dabbs, Clemson Extension School & Community Gardening Coordinator, and learn all about this wonderful and growing program. Lastly, we visit Clemson University at the LeMaster Dairy Farm and see how this new facility is doing robotic milking of the cows and much more. We will stream the show on Facebook and Clemson Agent Vicky Bertagnolli will join Terasa Lott to answer gardening questions!

September

Join us for “Making It Grow” this Tuesday, September 15 at 7pm on South Carolina ETV. Clemson Extension Agent and Host Amanda McNulty is joined by fellow agent Terasa Lott who first shares some “Gardens of the Week” photos from viewers on Facebook. Then we talk with Associate Dean and Director of Extension Dr. Thomas Dobbins who highlights how the different programs in extension have adapted during the COVID-19 pandemic. This is a great interview and we will share a link to it once it is online. Then later in the show, Clemson Agents Trish DeHond and Tony Melton answer viewers questions on pecans, palms, mahonia and okra. We will also stream the show on Facebook and will answer gardening questions there. We at MIG would also like to take a minute and thank everyone who has helped with this new remote way we have been doing the show the past few months and those that have provided the extra pictures and videos we have used, especially Barbara Smith at HGIC and Vicky Bertagnolli who has been helping with pictures since this began in April. It has been a big team effort.
