They intended to discuss Senate bill (SB) 150 which takes effect next week. Two members declined and no one showed up. Kentucky's SB 150 requires schools to notify parents at least two weeks before teaching a human sexuality curriculum. The bill does not allow Kentucky school boards from requiring schools and students to use their pronouns. Community members say they feel SB 150 is illegal and unconstitutional. They say section two, paragraph 1, subsection d uses the word "or" instead of "and" in the bills language and says that creates a loophole.
