Florida's Constitutional Convention was held in 1838 in one of the territory's newest boom towns, St. Joseph in the Florida Panhandle. Prized for its deep water port and resort climate, the old city of St. Joseph was gone by the time Florida was admitted as the 27th state in 1845. In another installment of our Florida Crossroads history series called "Florida Remembers," Gary Williams explains the rise, fall and eventual rebirth of the area and how the legacy of some influential businessmen played a role in the development of Northwest Florida.

8/8/13 - #2606 Bolts from Above

Produced by Kirsti Satterstrom

Florida is the "Lightning Capital of the United States" and for a good reason. With more than 1.5 million lightning strikes per year, lightning kills more Floridians than any other weather hazard including hurricanes, tornados and floods. Although science has expanded in the 250 years since Benjamin Franklin's experiments with lightning, much about the natural phenomena remains a mystery. Scientists still do not fully understand how lightning gets started in the clouds, how it decides to attach itself to objects on the ground and why it takes a crooked path to get there.

8/15/12 - #2607 Florida Remembers: Florida's Underground Railroad – Southern Routes to Freedom

Produced by Theresa Marsenburg

Centuries before a secret network was formed to help slaves escape to Northern states and Canada, The Underground Railroad ran South. As early as 1587, Spain's La Florida was recorded to be a safe haven for freedom seekers resisting enslavement. Produced by Kirsti Satterstrom

Millions of drivers cruise down US Highway One from the Florida mainland to Key West every year. In fact, the overseas highway has become a tourist attraction. Converted from a railway into a highway in the 1930s, every mile marker tells a story. As part of our ongoing Florida Crossroads history series called "Florida Remembers," producer Kirsti Satterstrom travels the scenic highway to get a glimpse of the Key's rich history from the 1935 Labor Day Hurricane to the founding of the Conch Republic.

9/12/13 - #2611 Florida Remembers: The Tampa Bay Region

9/19/13 - #2612 Florida Remembers: The Big Bend Region

Produced by Mike Licquia

Florida's journey to becoming part of the United States of America was a long one. Spain once controlled the territory, so did the British. It was more than three hundred years after Juan Ponce de Leon put it on the map in 1513 that the territory stopped changing hands. In this edition of Florida Remembers, Florida Crossroads looks back at the General- turned President- that claimed the territory for the U.S., the wars that followed and the final battle that set in stone the location of Florida's Capitol.

9/26/12 - #2613 Rocks, Water, Life: Florida's Geology

Produced by Melissa Klinzing

When people think about geological wonders, they usually imagine soaring mountains, deep canyons and spouting volcanoes. Florida has none of those. But the geology of Florida has its own amazing stories to tell if you know where to look. The deepest rocks in Florida, for instance, are among the most ancient on the planet and were once part of Africa. More than any other state, Florida was formed and influenced by oceans. And every inch of the Florida we inhabit today was created by living creatures. Join Florida Crossroads as we work with scientists to reveal Florida's unique geological history and some of the marvels people can see for themselves.
