for the period

April 1 to June 30, 2011

Idea Center®
1375 Euclid Avenue
Cleveland, OH 44115-1835

The list below represents the current issues of community importance to which ideastream's news, public affairs and general programming staffs addressed their attention during the designated reporting period noted above. The list has been compiled by the ideastreamsm Content Department, under my direction and supervision.

The subjects are a consequence of current news as it developed in Northeast Ohio during the reporting period and the staff's newsgathering and outreach which included contact with officials in the region, community leaders, business leaders, healthcare representatives, other news media and a diverse mix of private citizens among others.

The Content staff regularly follow news of local issues or impact as presented by other news organizations, consult informally with colleagues in the media, and routinely read a wide variety of daily and weekly news publications from area communities, including The Plain Dealer, The Beacon Journal, and occasional additional neighborhood publications; minority news and special interest publications such as the City News and The Call and Post; area weekly and monthly news publications, including Crain's Cleveland Business, Cleveland Magazine; and online news sources such as www.CoolCleveland.com and blogs such as www.brewedfreshdaily.com, as well as national news and special interest publications such as The New York Times, and The Wall Street Journal in order to stay aware of issues and events inside and outside of our region and to gain various perspectives on what is newsworthy.

The staff also exchanges reports daily with INFOHIO station in Columbus, and accesses the daily Ohio Public Radio Statehouse News Bureau (Columbus) audio feeds. Local, state, regional, national and international news from Associated Press is also part of the daily diet of the Content staff, as are other regularly-produced independent productions.

The ideastreamsm Content staff also regularly reaches out to community civic groups and agencies for research and/or scholarly data to provide supplementary background material to assist in understanding local issues. The College of Urban Affairs at Cleveland State University, the Center for Regional Economic Issues at Case Western Reserve University, the Citizens League of Greater Cleveland, the League of Women Voters are examples of academic agencies or organizations whose written and programmatic materials have been particularly instrumental in helping us address community issues.

In addition, ideastream's ongoing utilization and broadcasting of cross-cultural and international-content materials is a valuable means to stay abreast of concerns and issues of immediate interest to the people of the many cultural heritages represented in the Greater Cleveland area.

The attached list represents the current issues of community importance to which ideastream's news and public affairs and general programming staffs have addressed their attention for the above-designated reporting period.

The programming listed was broadcast, in response to these issues, and after consultation with the ideastream Community Advisory Board, which provided specific recommendations about stories and issues to be considered.

In addition, the list and programming were developed with the advice and assistance of the staff of the ideastream news and public affairs staff, drawing on their extensive and on-going contacts with area officials, community leaders and private citizens representing the broad spectrum of endeavors and interest in Northeast Ohio.

The attached program descriptions represent materials that were locally produced and broadcast in WCPN's morning, afternoon and evening news, and as specials; plus materials that were obtained from a variety of other sources specifically for broadcast in conjunction with WCPN's presentation of programming related to community issues.

Segment Title: Goodbye to the Brooks Theatre

Major Guests:

N/A

Points:

The curtain is preparing to come down on the current location of the Cleveland Play House. We look at what lies ahead for CPH as renovations are underway at their new home, the Allen Theatre. We look at what makes a new house going up on the eastside of Cleveland a "smart home." Musician Brent Kee Young doesn't play a steady gig or have a hit record, but by no means is he a starving artist.

Major Guests:

Evalyn Gates, PhD, executive director & CEO, Cleveland Museum of Natural History

David Beach, director, GreenCityBlueLake Institute, Cleveland Museum of Natural History

Chuck Miller, principal, Doty & Miller Architects

Clint Cravens, field operations manager, Green Street Solutions

Points:

Try to imagine a house so efficient it doesn't have a furnace or an air conditioner. It may sound like magic, but the people at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History claim to have pulled it off. On The Sound of Ideas we'll find out why the Museum's Smart Home uses just ten per cent of the energy of a normal house. Plus: how it's built, how some of the materials are truly local, and how to adapt the ideas found there to just about any home. Hear from the smart people who designed and built Ohio's first passive house Thursday morning at 9:00 on 90.3.

Major Guests:

Sandy E. Wright, National Wildlife Strike Database Manager, U.S. Department of Agriculture
Richard Dolbeer, Science Advisor, U.S. Department of Agriculture

Points:

Bird and other wildlife collisions with aircraft are an increasing safety and economic concern to civil and military aviation worldwide, costing well over $1 billion each year. Aircraft have been destroyed by wildlife strikes, the most notable of which was the Airbus 320 which landed in the Hudson River in January 2009 after hitting a flock of Canadian geese. And these strikes reported to the Federal Aviation Administration have increased from about 1,800 in 1990 to over 9,100 in 2009.

Major Guests:

Rear Admiral Michael N. Parks, Commander, Ninth Coast Guard District

Points:

The U.S. Coast Guard is famous for its search and rescue work, but there's a lot more to policing the Great Lakes than fishing unlucky boaters out of the drink. The Coast Guard secures waterfront borders, protects the environment, keeps traffic moving on the St. Lawrence Seaway, aids commerce and responds to natural disasters. Rear Admiral Michael Parks commands the Coast Guard's vast 9th district -- Guardians of the Great Lakes -- from his post in Cleveland. Monday at 9 on 90.3 we bring you an encore presentation of this maritime discussion.

Terry Stewart, president and CEO, Rock & Roll Hall of Fame

Points:

When budgets get tight, government funding for the arts often gets squeezed. On the next Sound of Ideas, we'll talk about public subsidies for the arts. Is it an essential investment in vital to our well being, or a luxury we may have to live without? Cuyahoga County has a steady stream of arts funding from a voter-approved cigarette tax. Could that be a model for other communities worried about maintaining arts funding as other sources dry up? Join us tomorrow at 9 on 90.3.

Segment Title: Show 1124

Major Guests:

N/A

Points:

The state will have about $1.5 billion surplus dollars at the end of this month. But budget director Tim Keen told lawmakers that most of the money is already spoken for. This week brought a deal between Gov. John Kasich and Rock Ohio Caesars, the company run by Cleveland Cavaliers owner Dan Gilbert, who shut down construction on his two casinos in a dispute over taxes. Among other things, the deal would legalize electronic slot machines, or VLTs, at Ohio's seven horseracing tracks. State lawmakers have passed a bill to allow people with concealed-carry permits to take their firearms into facilities where alcohol is served and consumed, as long as they don't drink. The changed bill passed both the House and Senate mostly along party lines, and Gov. Kasich will sign it next week. The Republican-dominated Senate also approved opening up state parks and other lands in Ohio to oil and gas drilling. The House has passed the bill, but would have to agree to the Senate's changes before it could go to the governor. The budget is in the hands of the six-member conference committee, which has set June 28 as the date by which it will finish its work. Republican House peaker Bill Batchelder held a news conference with other lawmakers and the National Federation of Independent Business-Ohio to talk about the budget and small businesses. And he also made clear he believes the budget deficit was $8 billion. But there are still questions about that deficit figure being raised by the progressive think-tank Innovation Ohio. Spokesman and longtime Democratic strategist Dale Butland talks about them. We took a break from the budget this week – and headed out to one of the most unique places not only in Ohio, but in the world. It's Cranberry Bog, a floating island in the middle of Buckeye Lake in eastern Ohio. And it's not only very unusual, but it's not going to be around for much longer.

We journey to the Rainey Institute, where healing happens through the arts. And, when Wallace Coleman was almost ready to get into the music business, legendary bluesman Robert Lockwood Jr. came calling to try and convince him join his band. And Coleman turned him down - tune in for how that turned out. Plus, the art of aging with the founder of Groundworks, David Shimotakahara.

Dr. Michael Anderson, VP and associate chief medical officer, University Hospitals

Bernie Sokolowski, restaurateur, Sokolowski's University Inn

Points:

The Healthy Cleveland Initiative, a partnership between the city and four major hospitals, seeks to make Northeast Ohioans more fit by promoting better choices. But it doesn't simply entail education and encouragement. There's legislation in the works in Cleveland that would further limit where smokers can light up and bans trans fats in local restaurants. Critics think the city is over-reaching. Let's have a healthy discussion, Tuesday at 9:00 on The Sound of Ideas.

When they met in college, they both believed their different traditions—she is Catholic, he is Jewish—would prevent them from ever getting married. Yet in 1966, they found themselves together in the garden of Cokie's girlhood home, standing under a flower-covered chuppah. Almost forty-five years later, they have learned not only to respect and reconcile the religious traditions they once thought might divide them, but to celebrate those traditions as well.

Gov. John Kasich says Ohio should get more money from casinos, saying he thinks taxpayers "got a raw deal" from casino operators. He's also hired two out-of-state firms – for $400 an hour – to advise him on gaming policies surrounding casinos, electronic slot machines at horseracing tracks and Indian gaming. A bill allowing concealed guns to be carried into establishments where alcohol is served has passed the Ohio Senate. Ohio is on track to break a record for the number of death row prisoners executed in a calendar year with the execution of jailhouse killer Clarence Carter this week. Nearly every state agency is taking a cut in Gov. John Kasich's proposed budget. But no agency is taking a bigger hit than the office of the Ohio Consumers Counsel – a 50% cut. Ohio Consumers Counsel Janine Migden Ostrander talks about why she's been told her budget will be slashed so deeply and what might happen if that stands. Ohio's huge prescription drug abuse problem is getting more financial help from the state and the federal government. Talking about the problem and the road to a solution are the heads of two state agencies very involved in it. Orman Hall is the director of the Ohio Department of Alcohol and Drug Addiction Services. And Kevin Miller is the executive director of the Rehabilitation Services Commission. .

Points:

Gov. John Kasich passed a milestone this week – 100 days in office. The governor talked up his accomplishments in a little more than three months in office, but critics such as Ohio Democratic Party chair Chris Redfern are giving him poor reviews. Two Democratic lawmakers and the liberal policy group Progress Ohio have filed a lawsuit saying JobsOhio violates seven sections of the Ohio Constitution. The Ohio Supreme Court heard arguments this week on a complicated issue involving who can claim damages when public records are destroyed illegally. And for the first time in more than 130 years, Ohio State Fair visitors will be able to sip on wine and beer this summer. One of the biggest items of note in Gov. John Kasich's proposed budget affects one of the largest state agencies – the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction. Kasich has proposed the privatization of five prisons for $200 million. But the budget also assumes some savings from prison sentencing reforms, which have been talked about for years but have never been pushed through. The director of the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction, Gary Mohr, talks about the budget and the state's prisons.

It's certainly not too early to think about the presidential election of 2012 – just ask Barack Obama, Mitt Romney, Mike Huckabee, Tim Pawlenty, Haley Barbour and of course Donald Trump. With that in mind, an organization backed by politicians and lobbyists in both parties are pushing the states to pass legislation that would change the way electoral votes are awarded to the candidates. Tom Golisano, who founded the payroll processing company Paychex, is the spokesperson for the group National Popular Vote.

A Cincinnati double murderer has become the fourth person executed in Ohio this year, and the oldest person to be put to death since the state resumed executions in 1999. Two new Quinnipiac polls this week have good news for opponents of Senate Bill 5 and surprising predictions for next year's election. A controversial election reform has passed the House on a party line vote. With the fact that drug overdoses are now the leading cause of accidental death in Ohio driving it, the bill to crack down on so-called pill mills is now law. The biggest single program in the state budget is Medicaid spending - Medicaid covered 2.3 million Ohioans last year, and accounts for 3.2% of Ohio's economy. It's been estimated that Medicaid would cost Ohio $1.6 billion more next year if no changes were made – a 49% increase. Gov. John Kasich's budget sought to get a grip on Medicaid spending by pulling all six state agencies that play a role in administering Medicaid under one office, the Office of Health Transformation. Greg Moody is a longtime health care expert, consultant and former agency administrator who's now in charge of that office.

Points:

Another chapter in the shrinking of Cleveland was published last month, with the revelation that the population of Northeast Ohio's largest city had dipped below the 400,000 mark. Tom Bier, a housing expert from Cleveland State, has some thoughts about what's behind this population drain and what it will take to plug the leak.

Joe Cimperman, Cleveland City Council

Dr. Gilbert Ross, executive and medical director, American Council on Science and Health
Dr. Michael Anderson, VP and associate chief medical officer, University Hospitals
Bernie Sokolowski, restaurateur, Sokolowski's University Inn

Points:

The Healthy Cleveland Initiative, a partnership between the city and four major hospitals, seeks to make Northeast Ohioans more fit by promoting better choices. But it doesn't simply entail education and encouragement. There's legislation in the works in Cleveland that would further limit where smokers can light up and bans transfats in local restaurants. Critics think the city is over-reaching. Let's have a healthy discussion, Tuesday at 9:00 on The Sound of Ideas.

Points:

President Obama is now calling for a balanced approach to reducing the nation's massive debt. But Republicans, like U.S. Representative Paul Ryan, say we need much more drastic measures, including privatizing Medicare and handing Medicaid over to the states. How important is it that we get the debt under control? And are cuts the only way to get there? What about higher taxes? The politics and economics of the national debt, Thursday at 9 on 90.3.

Points:

A Cincinnati double murderer has become the fourth person executed in Ohio this year, and the oldest person to be put to death since the state resumed executions in 1999. Two new Quinnipiac polls this week have good news for opponents of Senate Bill 5 and surprising predictions for next year's election. A controversial election reform has passed the House on a party line vote. With the fact that drug overdoses are now the leading cause of accidental death in Ohio driving it, the bill to crack down on so-called pill mills is now law. The biggest single program in the state budget is Medicaid spending - Medicaid covered 2.3 million Ohioans last year, and accounts for 3.2% of Ohio's economy. It's been estimated that Medicaid would cost Ohio $1.6 billion more next year if no changes were made – a 49% increase. Gov. John Kasich's budget sought to get a grip on Medicaid spending by pulling all six state agencies that play a role in administering Medicaid under one office, the Office of Health Transformation. Greg Moody is a longtime health care expert, consultant and former agency administrator who's now in charge of that office.

Major Guests:

Rev. Jawanza Karriem Lightfoot Colvin, pastor, Olivet Institutional Baptist Church

Rabbi Joshua Caruso, Anshe Chesed Fairmount Temple

Points:

A new faith-based organization says it will advocate for social justice policies in Northeast Ohio, putting more than just the power of prayer behind its efforts. Christian, Jewish and Muslim congregations are banding together. On the next Sound of Ideas, we'll ask what differentiates this effort from many others intended to help the neediest. And we'll ask why the Cleveland Catholic Diocese is taking a pass. Join us, Tuesday at 9:00 a.m. on 90.3.

Major Guests:

Sen. Sherrod Brown
Mark Kantrowitz, Publisher, Fast Web.com and FIN Aid.org
Sheryl Harris, Consumer Columnist, The Plain Dealer

Points:

Not every new college graduate receives a degree in finance, but they're all going to have to learn how to manage their money. New grads have to figure out how to pay for a place to live, manage college loans, and still have money left over to eat. Sheryl Harris, Consumer Affairs Columnist at The Plain Dealer, joins the conversation with advice on what it takes for college students, and new grads, to be money wise. Brendan Foreman, associate professor of education, John Carroll Univ.

Stuart Buck, doctoral fellow in education reform at the University of Arkansas

Points:

The Ohio legislature wants teachers to be paid on merit, not based on their educational attainment or seniority. But how exactly will merit be measured? How would student test scores blend with subjective administrator evaluations to determine which category teachers are slotted: Accomplished, proficient, developing or ineffective? And if a teacher is judged ineffective, should they be teaching? A close look at merit pay, Thursday at 9:00 on the Sound of Ideas.

Gov. John Kasich says Ohio should get more money from casinos, saying he thinks taxpayers "got a raw deal" from casino operators. He's also hired two out-of-state firms – for $400 an hour – to advise him on gaming policies surrounding casinos, electronic slot machines at horseracing tracks and Indian gaming. A bill allowing concealed guns to be carried into establishments where alcohol is served has passed the Ohio Senate. Ohio is on track to break a record for the number of death row prisoners executed in a calendar year with the execution of jailhouse killer Clarence Carter this week. Nearly every state agency is taking a cut in Gov. John Kasich's proposed budget. But no agency is taking a bigger hit than the office of the Ohio Consumers Counsel – a 50% cut. Ohio Consumers Counsel Janine Migden Ostrander talks about why she's been told her budget will be slashed so deeply and what might happen if that stands. Ohio's huge prescription drug abuse problem is getting more financial help from the state and the federal government. Talking about the problem and the road to a solution are the heads of two state agencies very involved in it. Orman Hall is the director of the Ohio Department of Alcohol and Drug Addiction Services. And Kevin Miller is the executive director of the Rehabilitation Services Commission. .

The bill that backs up the budget plan to open state forests, parks and wildlife areas to oil and gas drilling is halfway to the governor's desk, now that it's passed the Republican-led House. One of the Senate's top leaders is leaving - Senate Majority Leader Jimmy Stewart of Albany in southeast Ohio says he's taking what he describes as a "fantastic opportunity in the private sector", but Democrats say he's the first victim of Senate Bill 5. The casino tax battle moved to New York City this week, with the company set up by Cleveland Cavs owner Dan Gilbert to develop casinos in Cleveland and Cincinnati meeting with the gaming consultants hired by Gov. John Kasich. Meanwhile, developers of the Columbus casino have settled a legal dispute with the city that threatened to delay the project. In all the cuts in the proposed state budget, the group that got smacked the hardest overall may be the state's local governments. The local government fund lost 25% of its funding in the first year, and took a 50% hit in the second. The governor's budget also accelerates the phase out of certain payments to local governments that made up for previous tax changes. And the budget passed by the House eliminates the estate tax – 80% of that tax goes to local communities. Talking about the criticism about local government, the cuts and the future are the leaders of three key groups representing local government: Sue Cave, executive director of the Ohio Municipal League, Larry Long, executive director of the County Commissioners Association of Ohio and Matt DeTemple, executive director of the Ohio Township Association.

Points:

The state will have about $1.5 billion surplus dollars at the end of this month. But budget director Tim Keen told lawmakers that most of the money is already spoken for. This week brought a deal between Gov. John Kasich and Rock Ohio Caesars, the company run by Cleveland Cavaliers owner Dan Gilbert, who shut down construction on his two casinos in a dispute over taxes. Among other things, the deal would legalize electronic slot machines, or VLTs, at Ohio's seven horseracing tracks. State lawmakers have passed a bill to allow people with concealed-carry permits to take their firearms into facilities where alcohol is served and consumed, as long as they don't drink. The changed bill passed both the House and Senate mostly along party lines, and Gov. Kasich will sign it next week. The Republican-dominated Senate also approved opening up state parks and other lands in Ohio to oil and gas drilling. The House has passed the bill, but would have to agree to the Senate's changes before it could go to the governor. The budget is in the hands of the six-member conference committee, which has set June 28 as the date by which it will finish its work. Republican House peaker Bill Batchelder held a news conference with other lawmakers and the National Federation of Independent Business-Ohio to talk about the budget and small businesses. And he also made clear he believes the budget deficit was $8 billion. But there are still questions about that deficit figure being raised by the progressive think-tank Innovation Ohio. Spokesman and longtime Democratic strategist Dale Butland talks about them. We took a break from the budget this week – and headed out to one of the most unique places not only in Ohio, but in the world. It's Cranberry Bog, a floating island in the middle of Buckeye Lake in eastern Ohio. And it's not only very unusual, but it's not going to be around for much longer.

Points:

The Healthy Cleveland Initiative, a partnership between the city and four major hospitals, seeks to make Northeast Ohioans more fit by promoting better choices. But it doesn't simply entail education and encouragement. There's legislation in the works in Cleveland that would further limit where smokers can light up and bans trans fats in local restaurants. Critics think the city is over-reaching. Let's have a healthy discussion, Tuesday at 9:00 on The Sound of Ideas.

Gov. John Kasich says Ohio should get more money from casinos, saying he thinks taxpayers "got a raw deal" from casino operators. He's also hired two out-of-state firms – for $400 an hour – to advise him on gaming policies surrounding casinos, electronic slot machines at horseracing tracks and Indian gaming. A bill allowing concealed guns to be carried into establishments where alcohol is served has passed the Ohio Senate. Ohio is on track to break a record for the number of death row prisoners executed in a calendar year with the execution of jailhouse killer Clarence Carter this week. Nearly every state agency is taking a cut in Gov. John Kasich's proposed budget. But no agency is taking a bigger hit than the office of the Ohio Consumers Counsel – a 50% cut. Ohio Consumers Counsel Janine Migden Ostrander talks about why she's been told her budget will be slashed so deeply and what might happen if that stands. Ohio's huge prescription drug abuse problem is getting more financial help from the state and the federal government. Talking about the problem and the road to a solution are the heads of two state agencies very involved in it. Orman Hall is the director of the Ohio Department of Alcohol and Drug Addiction Services. And Kevin Miller is the executive director of the Rehabilitation Services Commission. .

Gov. John Kasich passed a milestone this week – 100 days in office. The governor talked up his accomplishments in a little more than three months in office, but critics such as Ohio Democratic Party chair Chris Redfern are giving him poor reviews. Two Democratic lawmakers and the liberal policy group Progress Ohio have filed a lawsuit saying JobsOhio violates seven sections of the Ohio Constitution. The Ohio Supreme Court heard arguments this week on a complicated issue involving who can claim damages when public records are destroyed illegally. And for the first time in more than 130 years, Ohio State Fair visitors will be able to sip on wine and beer this summer. One of the biggest items of note in Gov. John Kasich's proposed budget affects one of the largest state agencies – the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction. Kasich has proposed the privatization of five prisons for $200 million. But the budget also assumes some savings from prison sentencing reforms, which have been talked about for years but have never been pushed through. The director of the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction, Gary Mohr, talks about the budget and the state's prisons. It's certainly not too early to think about the presidential election of 2012 – just ask Barack Obama, Mitt Romney, Mike Huckabee, Tim Pawlenty, Haley Barbour and of course Donald Trump. With that in mind, an organization backed by politicians and lobbyists in both parties are pushing the states to pass legislation that would change the way electoral votes are awarded to the candidates. Tom Golisano, who founded the payroll processing company Paychex, is the spokesperson for the group National Popular Vote.

A Cincinnati double murderer has become the fourth person executed in Ohio this year, and the oldest person to be put to death since the state resumed executions in 1999. Two new Quinnipiac polls this week have good news for opponents of Senate Bill 5 and surprising predictions for next year's election. A controversial election reform has passed the House on a party line vote. With the fact that drug overdoses are now the leading cause of accidental death in Ohio driving it, the bill to crack down on so-called pill mills is now law. The biggest single program in the state budget is Medicaid spending - Medicaid covered 2.3 million Ohioans last year, and accounts for 3.2% of Ohio's economy. It's been estimated that Medicaid would cost Ohio $1.6 billion more next year if no changes were made – a 49% increase. Gov. John Kasich's budget sought to get a grip on Medicaid spending by pulling all six state agencies that play a role in administering Medicaid under one office, the Office of Health Transformation. Greg Moody is a longtime health care expert, consultant and former agency administrator who's now in charge of that office.

The bill that backs up the budget plan to open state forests, parks and wildlife areas to oil and gas drilling is halfway to the governor's desk, now that it's passed the Republican-led House. One of the Senate's top leaders is leaving - Senate Majority Leader Jimmy Stewart of Albany in southeast Ohio says he's taking what he describes as a "fantastic opportunity in the private sector", but Democrats say he's the first victim of Senate Bill 5. The casino tax battle moved to New York City this week, with the company set up by Cleveland Cavs owner Dan Gilbert to develop casinos in Cleveland and Cincinnati meeting with the gaming consultants hired by Gov. John Kasich. Meanwhile, developers of the Columbus casino have settled a legal dispute with the city that threatened to delay the project. In all the cuts in the proposed state budget, the group that got smacked the hardest overall may be the state's local governments. The local government fund lost 25% of its funding in the first year, and took a 50% hit in the second. The governor's budget also accelerates the phase out of certain payments to local governments that made up for previous tax changes. And the budget passed by the House eliminates the estate tax – 80% of that tax goes to local communities. Talking about the criticism about local government, the cuts and the future are the leaders of three key groups representing local government: Sue Cave, executive director of the Ohio Municipal League, Larry Long, executive director of the County Commissioners Association of Ohio and Matt DeTemple, executive director of the Ohio Township Association.

Karen Kasler, Bureau Chief, Statehouse News Bureau

Points:

Call back the construction teams - we have a casino deal. The action has jumped from a $500 million to a $900 million investment, but the Rock Ohio Caesar's group says its ready to bankroll Cleveland's riverside casino - now with the full support of Governor John Kasich, whose new deal lands more bucks for the state. We'll also hear federal wiretaps of former Cuyahoga County Commissioners Jimmy Dimora and Frank Russo - after we clean up the language.

Points:

The state will have about $1.5 billion surplus dollars at the end of this month. But budget director Tim Keen told lawmakers that most of the money is already spoken for. This week brought a deal between Gov. John Kasich and Rock Ohio Caesars, the company run by Cleveland Cavaliers owner Dan Gilbert, who shut down construction on his two casinos in a dispute over taxes. Among other things, the deal would legalize electronic slot machines, or VLTs, at Ohio's seven horseracing tracks. State lawmakers have passed a bill to allow people with concealed-carry permits to take their firearms into facilities where alcohol is served and consumed, as long as they don't drink. The changed bill passed both the House and Senate mostly along party lines, and Gov. Kasich will sign it next week. The Republican-dominated Senate also approved opening up state parks and other lands in Ohio to oil and gas drilling. The House has passed the bill, but would have to agree to the Senate's changes before it could go to the governor. The budget is in the hands of the six-member conference committee, which has set June 28 as the date by which it will finish its work. Republican House peaker Bill Batchelder held a news conference with other lawmakers and the National Federation of Independent Business-Ohio to talk about the budget and small businesses. And he also made clear he believes the budget deficit was $8 billion. But there are still questions about that deficit figure being raised by the progressive think-tank Innovation Ohio. Spokesman and longtime Democratic strategist Dale Butland talks about them. We took a break from the budget this week – and headed out to one of the most unique places not only in Ohio, but in the world. It's Cranberry Bog, a floating island in the middle of Buckeye Lake in eastern Ohio. And it's not only very unusual, but it's not going to be around for much longer.

Kathy Mulcahy, Mayor of Orange Village

Susan Renda, Mayor of Moreland Hills

Charles Smith, Mayor of Woodmere

Ed Jerse, Director of Regional Collaboration, Cuyahoga County

Points:

There's been a lot of talk in Northeast Ohio about regional collaboration. Will there finally be some action? Four local communities -- Moreland Hills, Orange, Pepper Pike and Woodmere -- are considering a merger. On the next Sound of Ideas, we'll discuss the benefits and the barriers and look at other communities ripe for merger. Would you be happy if your city joined with its neighbors in the name of government efficiency? Let's talk about it Monday at 9 on 90.3.

Brendan Foreman, associate professor of education, John Carroll Univ.

Stuart Buck, doctoral fellow in education reform at the University of Arkansas

Points:

The Ohio legislature wants teachers to be paid on merit, not based on their educational attainment or seniority. But how exactly will merit be measured? How would student test scores blend with subjective administrator evaluations to determine which category teachers are slotted: Accomplished, proficient, developing or ineffective? And if a teacher is judged ineffective, should they be teaching? A close look at merit pay, Thursday at 9:00 on the Sound of Ideas.

Points:

The Healthy Cleveland Initiative, a partnership between the city and four major hospitals, seeks to make Northeast Ohioans more fit by promoting better choices. But it doesn't simply entail education and encouragement. There's legislation in the works in Cleveland that would further limit where smokers can light up and bans trans fats in local restaurants. Critics think the city is over-reaching. Let's have a healthy discussion, Tuesday at 9:00 on The Sound of Ideas.

Gov. John Kasich says Ohio should get more money from casinos, saying he thinks taxpayers "got a raw deal" from casino operators. He's also hired two out-of-state firms – for $400 an hour – to advise him on gaming policies surrounding casinos, electronic slot machines at horseracing tracks and Indian gaming. A bill allowing concealed guns to be carried into establishments where alcohol is served has passed the Ohio Senate. Ohio is on track to break a record for the number of death row prisoners executed in a calendar year with the execution of jailhouse killer Clarence Carter this week. Nearly every state agency is taking a cut in Gov. John Kasich's proposed budget. But no agency is taking a bigger hit than the office of the Ohio Consumers Counsel – a 50% cut. Ohio Consumers Counsel Janine Migden Ostrander talks about why she's been told her budget will be slashed so deeply and what might happen if that stands. Ohio's huge prescription drug abuse problem is getting more financial help from the state and the federal government. Talking about the problem and the road to a solution are the heads of two state agencies very involved in it. Orman Hall is the director of the Ohio Department of Alcohol and Drug Addiction Services. And Kevin Miller is the executive director of the Rehabilitation Services Commission. .

Points:

Gov. John Kasich passed a milestone this week – 100 days in office. The governor talked up his accomplishments in a little more than three months in office, but critics such as Ohio Democratic Party chair Chris Redfern are giving him poor reviews. Two Democratic lawmakers and the liberal policy group Progress Ohio have filed a lawsuit saying JobsOhio violates seven sections of the Ohio Constitution. The Ohio Supreme Court heard arguments this week on a complicated issue involving who can claim damages when public records are destroyed illegally. And for the first time in more than 130 years, Ohio State Fair visitors will be able to sip on wine and beer this summer. One of the biggest items of note in Gov. John Kasich's proposed budget affects one of the largest state agencies – the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction. Kasich has proposed the privatization of five prisons for $200 million. But the budget also assumes some savings from prison sentencing reforms, which have been talked about for years but have never been pushed through. The director of the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction, Gary Mohr, talks about the budget and the state's prisons. It's certainly not too early to think about the presidential election of 2012 – just ask Barack Obama, Mitt Romney, Mike Huckabee, Tim Pawlenty, Haley Barbour and of course Donald Trump. With that in mind, an organization backed by politicians and lobbyists in both parties are pushing the states to pass legislation that would change the way electoral votes are awarded to the candidates. Tom Golisano, who founded the payroll processing company Paychex, is the spokesperson for the group National Popular Vote.

Points:

If a scientific study claims something is true, is it true? And if a science expert testifies in court, is that testimony unassailable? On Monday two legal experts contend that science is often manipulated to support positions in legal trials or debates over public health issues. Plus, we'll take a few minutes to speak with MIT lecturer and author Peter Senge about how to create a sustainable world. Join us at 9 on 90.3.

George Cvijovic, Chief Operating Officer, Forest City Residential Management

Mike Piepsny, Executive Director, Cleveland Tenant's Organization

Points:

One business that's booming in Northeast Ohio despite the sluggish economy: Rental Housing. Apartment vacancies are at a historic low in our region and real estate developers throughout Northeast Ohio are looking to build new rental units. On the next Sound of Ideas, we'll tell you where rental housing is taking off and why. We'll also talk about renting versus buying and share tips on how to be a smart renter. Wednesday the Sound of Ideas takes a break as we broadcast Steve and Cokie Roberts' discussion at the City Club of Cleveland. They will be talking about their new book, "From This Day Forward" which chronicles their experiences as an interfaith couple and how they've made it work over the years. When they met in college, they both believed their different traditions—she is Catholic, he is Jewish—would prevent them from ever getting married. Yet in 1966, they found themselves together in the garden of Cokie's girlhood home, standing under a flower-covered chuppah. Almost forty-five years later, they have learned not only to respect and reconcile the religious traditions they once thought might divide them, but to celebrate those traditions as well.

Rob Lamppa, sustainability and energy management director, Oberlin College
Chris Trepal, executive director, Earth Day Coalition

Points:

The city of Cleveland wants to solve a trash problem, an energy problem and a money problem with one idea: a state-of-the-art plant that turns garbage into gas that can be burned to create electricity. How would such a process work and who will come up with the $180-million needed to fund the project? Critics say the process can create emissions that do more environmental harm than good. We'll examine the idea and hear from the critics, Thursday at 9:00 on The Sound of Ideas.

Points:

A Cincinnati double murderer has become the fourth person executed in Ohio this year, and the oldest person to be put to death since the state resumed executions in 1999. Two new Quinnipiac polls this week have good news for opponents of Senate Bill 5 and surprising predictions for next year's election. A controversial election reform has passed the House on a party line vote. With the fact that drug overdoses are now the leading cause of accidental death in Ohio driving it, the bill to crack down on so-called pill mills is now law. The biggest single program in the state budget is Medicaid spending - Medicaid covered 2.3 million Ohioans last year, and accounts for 3.2% of Ohio's economy. It's been estimated that Medicaid would cost Ohio $1.6 billion more next year if no changes were made -- a 49% increase. Gov. John Kasich's budget sought to get a grip on Medicaid spending by pulling all six state agencies that play a role in administering Medicaid under one office, the Office of Health Transformation. Greg Moody is a longtime health care expert, consultant and former agency administrator who's now in charge of that office.

Points:

The state will have about $1.5 billion surplus dollars at the end of this month. But budget director Tim Keen told lawmakers that most of the money is already spoken for. This week brought a deal between Gov. John Kasich and Rock Ohio Caesars, the company run by Cleveland Cavaliers owner Dan Gilbert, who shut down construction on his two casinos in a dispute over taxes. Among other things, the deal would legalize electronic slot machines, or VLTs, at Ohio's seven horseracing tracks. State lawmakers have passed a bill to allow people with concealed-carry permits to take their firearms into facilities where alcohol is served and consumed, as long as they don't drink. The changed bill passed both the House and Senate mostly along party lines, and Gov. Kasich will sign it next week. The Republican-dominated Senate also approved opening up state parks and other lands in Ohio to oil and gas drilling. The House has passed the bill, but would have to agree to the Senate's changes before it could go to the governor. The budget is in the hands of the six-member conference committee, which has set June 28 as the date by which it will finish its work. Republican House peaker Bill Batchelder held a news conference with other lawmakers and the National Federation of Independent Business-Ohio to talk about the budget and small businesses. And he also made clear he believes the budget deficit was $8 billion. But there are still questions about that deficit figure being raised by the progressive think-tank Innovation Ohio. Spokesman and longtime Democratic strategist Dale Butland talks about them. We took a break from the budget this week – and headed out to one of the most unique places not only in Ohio, but in the world. It's Cranberry Bog, a floating island in the middle of Buckeye Lake in eastern Ohio. And it's not only very unusual, but it's not going to be around for much longer.

Major Guests:

Sandy E. Wright, National Wildlife Strike Database Manager, U.S. Department of Agriculture

Richard Dolbeer, Science Advisor, U.S. Department of Agriculture

Points:

Bird and other wildlife collisions with aircraft are an increasing safety and economic concern to civil and military aviation worldwide, costing well over $1 billion each year. Aircraft have been destroyed by wildlife strikes, the most notable of which was the Airbus 320 which landed in the Hudson River in January 2009 after hitting a flock of Canadian geese. And these strikes reported to the Federal Aviation Administration have increased from about 1,800 in 1990 to over 9,100 in 2009.

Points:

The U.S. Coast Guard is famous for its search and rescue work, but there's a lot more to policing the Great Lakes than fishing unlucky boaters out of the drink. The Coast Guard secures waterfront borders, protects the environment, keeps traffic moving on the St. Lawrence Seaway, aids commerce and responds to natural disasters. Rear Admiral Michael Parks commands the Coast Guard's vast 9th district -- Guardians of the Great Lakes -- from his post in Cleveland. Monday at 9 on 90.3 we bring you an encore presentation of this maritime discussion.

Chris Trepal, executive director, Earth Day Coalition

Points:

The city of Cleveland wants to solve a trash problem, an energy problem and a money problem with one idea: a state-of-the-art plant that turns garbage into gas that can be burned to create electricity. How would such a process work and who will come up with the $180-million needed to fund the project? Critics say the process can create emissions that do more environmental harm than good. When a devastating famine descended on Soviet Russia in 1921, it was the worst natural disaster in Europe since the Black Plague in the Middle Ages. Half a world away, Americans responded with a massive two-year relief campaign, championed by a new secretary of commerce, "the Great Humanitarian" Herbert Hoover. The nearly 300 American relief workers, "Hoover's boys," would be tested by a railroad system in disarray, a forbidding climate and — being among the first group of outsiders to break through Russia's isolation following the Bolshevik Revolution — a ruthless government suspicious of their motives. By the summer of 1922, Americans were feeding nearly 11-million Soviet citizens a day in 19,000 kitchens. THE GREAT FAMINE: AMERICAN EXPERIENCE from producer Austin Hoyt (GEORGE H.W. BUSH: AMERICAN EXPERIENCE) tells this riveting story of America's engagement with a distant and desperate people — an operation hailed for its efficiency, grit and generosity — within the larger story of the Russian Revolution and the roots of the U.S.-Soviet rivalry that would dominate the second half of the 20th century.

Segment Length: 02:30:00

"A Very Bloody Affair — 1862" — 1862 sees the birth of modern warfare and the transformation of Abraham Lincoln's war to preserve the Union into a war to emancipate the slaves. Political infighting threatens to swamp Lincoln's administration, and Union General George McClellan wages an ill-fated campaign on the Virginia peninsula. The episode follows the battle of ironclad ships, camp life and the beginning of the end of slavery. Ulysses S. Grant's exploits come to a bloody resolution at the Battle of Shiloh, and rumors swarm about Europe's readiness to recognize the Confederacy. Episode two of nine.

"Forever Free - 1862" - Convinced by July 1862 that emancipation is now morally and militarily crucial to the future of the Union, Abraham Lincoln must wait for a victory to issue his proclamation. But there are no Union victories to be had, thanks to the brilliance of Confederate generals Stonewall Jackson and Robert E. Lee. With Lee's September 1862 invasion of Maryland, the bloodiest day of the war takes place on the banks of Antietam Creek, followed shortly by the brightest - the emancipation of the slaves. Episode three of nine.

"Simply Murder - 1863" - A nightmarish Union disaster at Fredericksburg precedes two clashes in the spring of 1863: at Chancellorsville in May, where Robert E. Lee wins his most brilliant victory but loses Stonewall Jackson; and at Vicksburg, where Ulysses S. Grant is prevented from taking the city by siege. There is fierce northern opposition to Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, and increasing desperation on the Confederate home front. Lee decides to invade the North again to draw Grant's forces away from Vicksburg. Episode four of nine.

"The Universe of Battle - 1863"- The Battle of Gettysburg is the turning point of the war. For three days, 150,000 fight to the death in the Pennsylvania countryside culminating in Pickett's legendary charge. Vicksburg falls to Union forces, draft riots rage in New York, black troops join the fight for the first time and western battles transpire at Chickamauga and Chattanooga. At the dedication of a new Union cemetery at Gettysburg, Lincoln struggles to put into words what is happening to his people. Episode five of nine.

"Valley of the Shadow of Death - 1864" - Ulysses S. Grant and Robert E. Lee are pitted against each other in an extraordinary series of battles from the wilderness to Petersburg in Virginia. With Grant and Lee finally deadlocked at Petersburg, we move to the ghastly hospitals in both the North and South, and follow Sherman's Atlanta campaign through the mountains of northern Georgia. As the horrendous casualty lists increase, Abraham Lincoln's chance for re-election begins to dim and with them, the possibility of Union victory. Episode six of nine.

"Most Hallowed Ground - 1864" - The presidential campaign of 1864 sets Abraham Lincoln against his old commanding general, George McClellan. The stakes are nothing less than the survival of the Union itself. Opinion in the North has turned strongly against Lincoln and the war, but 11th-hour Union victories at Mobile Bay, Atlanta and the Shenandoah Valley tilt the election to Lincoln, and the Confederacy's last hope for independence dies. In an ironic twist, Robert E. Lee's Arlington mansion is turned into a Union military hospital and the estate becomes Arlington National Cemetery - the Union's most hallowed ground. "War Is All Hell - 1865" - William Tecumseh Sherman's March to the Sea brings war to the heart of Georgia and the Carolinas and spells the end of the Confederacy. Following Abraham Lincoln's second inauguration, Petersburg and Richmond finally fall to Ulysses S. Grant's army. Robert E. Lee's tattered Army of Northern Virginia flees westward towards Appomattox, where the surrender of Lee to Grant takes place. Meanwhile, John Wilkes Booth begins to dream of vengeance for the South.

"The Better Angels of Our Nature - 1865" - On April 14, five days after Robert E. Lee's surrender at Appomattox, Abraham Lincoln is assassinated. Lincoln is buried, John Wilkes Booth is captured and the war finally comes to a close. The series ends by considering the consequences and meaning of a war that transformed the country from a collection of states to the nation it is today.

The story of Fort Niagara is the story of a struggle for a continent. For over 150 years, four nations struggled to control this strategic point at the mouth of the Niagara River, and thus control the critical water artery it protected. But the fort is not only unique for its history, it is unique for its longevity. Visitors to the site today can still explore one of North America's largest collections of original 18th century military architecture--tangible reminders of the fort's important past. Experience for yourself this exciting story of one of America's most unique historic places. Rare archival footage, expert commentaries and spectacular videography of the fort itself come together in brilliant high definition to create a program that is a must for anyone interested in the story of North America.

In 1779, George Washington brought over ten thousand troops to Morristown, New Jersey, where they struggled to survive the worst winter in recorded history, with the American Revolution hanging in the balance. The Continental Army cleared two thousand acres of trees to build their huts in a place called Jockey Hollow, making it the fifth largest "city" in population at the time. There soldiers suffered through a long series of snow storms that sealed them off from supplies of food and clothing. Washington's army was falling apart as the British waited in New York to make their move. When the British attacked in the spring, these same soldiers who'd starved through the winter rallied with local militia to turn the British back. The Morristown story has never received the attention it deserves. Morristown: Where America Survived revisits that "Hard Winter" of 1780 when the entire eastern seaboard was hit by major snowfalls and unrelenting freezing temperatures. It follows the soldiers' experiences through the winter and into the springtime clashes with the British. Primary quotes flesh out the story, from the letters of George Washington to the recollections of Joseph Plumb Martin, who left one of the only detailed accounts of life for a young private at Morristown. The film is narrated award-winning actor Edward Herrmann.

Nearly one year ago this week, the Deepwater Horizon oil rig exploded in the Gulf of Mexico, causing one of the largest environmental disasters in U.S. history. How are residents of Grand Isle, La., faring one year after the incident? We revisit some of the families and business owners we met last year during the oil spill to find out. We also sit down with ecologist Carl Safina and ProPublica's Abrahm Lustgarten to discuss BP's regulatory failures and the accident's impact on the environment, and speak with energy expert Lisa Margonelli about the U.S.'s post-oil spill energy policy.

Also: As a follow-up to our popular "Fixing America" series, we feature another series of "big thinkers" – educators, administrators and policy-makers – who share their thoughts on how to fix American education. Jon Meacham also sits down with Jim Simons, founder of Math for America and one of the richest men in the country, to talk about his dedication to improving American mathematics education.

And: Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the Constitution framers' decision that only native-born Americans may become President.

REDISCOVERING ALEXANDER HAMILTON is hosted and written by prominent author and journalist Richard Brookhiser. The documentary focuses on Hamilton's character in six chronological segments. The film is not meant to be "the definitive chronology of Alexander Hamilton," but rather a look at particular traits in his character – his strengths and weakness – how they were shaped into being, and how they played out within the new nation that was being created around him. To tell that story, the documentary combines traditional documentary techniques with Brookhiser's exploration of Hamilton's legacy and life in contemporary America. The film takes the viewer to the Caribbean Islands where Hamilton was born, to Yorktown and Wall Street where he fought and worked, to Harlem and Weehaken, New Jersey, where he lived and died. A Treasury Secretary, Supreme Court Justice, publishers, pornographers, lawyers, warriors, Calypso singers and urban gang members speak about money, rights, news, war, sex and honor – all the themes that shaped Hamilton's life, which led him to his early death resulting in modern capitalist America. REDISCOVERING ALEXANDER HAMILTON is the second film in the REDISCOVERING documentary film series. The first film, REDISCOVERING GEORGE WASHINGTON, aired on PBS in 2002.

FRONTLINE continues its new monthly magazine program with the lead story "Money and March Madness," an inside look at the multi-billion dollar business of the NCAA and its brand of amateur college sports. In this investigation, correspondent Lowell Bergman gains access to Sonny Vaccaro, a former marketing executive at Nike, Adidas and Reebok, who helped bring about the rapid commercialization of college basketball. Vaccaro's success made coaches, administrators and companies rich. But the players remain at the mercy of the NCAA, which, despite a new $10.8 billion contract for its basketball tournament, has continued to insist that the athletes don't get paid. Now, Vaccaro has left the business world, and he's spearheading a class-action lawsuit that aims to ensure that players get a piece of the action. Also in this hour: a portrait of a man who's sometimes called China's Andy Warhol--Ai Weiwei. He's a global art star who's now using his international renown, along with a video camera and a growing underground Twitter following, to push the boundaries of freedom in today's China. Nearly one year ago this week, the Deepwater Horizon oil rig exploded in the history. How are residents of Grand Isle, La., faring one year after the incident? We revisit some of the families and business owners we met last year during the oil spill to find out. We also sit down with ecologist Carl Safina and ProPublica's Abrahm Lustgarten to discuss BP's regulatory failures and the accident's impact on the environment, and speak with energy expert Lisa Margonelli about the U.S.'s post-oil spill energy policy.

Also: As a follow-up to our popular "Fixing America" series, we feature another series of "big thinkers" – educators, administrators and policy-makers – who share their thoughts on how to fix American education. Jon Meacham also sits down with Jim Simons, founder of Math for America and one of the richest men in the country, to talk about his dedication to improving American mathematics education.

And: Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the Constitution framers' decision that only native-born Americans may become President.

FRONTLINE continues its new monthly magazine program with the lead story "Money and March Madness," an inside look at the multi-billion dollar business of the NCAA and its brand of amateur college sports. In this investigation, correspondent Lowell Bergman gains access to Sonny Vaccaro, a former marketing executive at Nike, Adidas and Reebok, who helped bring about the rapid commercialization of college basketball. Vaccaro's success made coaches, administrators and companies rich. But the players remain at the mercy of the NCAA, which, despite a new $10.8 billion contract for its basketball tournament, has continued to insist that the athletes don't get paid. Now, Vaccaro has left the business world, and he's spearheading a class-action lawsuit that aims to ensure that players get a piece of the action. Also in this hour: a portrait of a man who's sometimes called China's Andy Warhol--Ai Weiwei. He's a global art star who's now using his international renown, along with a video camera and a growing underground Twitter following, to push the boundaries of freedom in today's China. Later in the hour, as the fall-out from WikiLeaks continues, an exclusive interview with Private Bradley Manning's father, who speaks out for the first time about his son's upbringing and troubled youth, Manning's time in the army, and why he still believes his son did not hand over the largest cache ever of classified documents to the whistle-blowing site.

In January, Camden, N.J., one of the most impoverished cities in the country, lost half its police force in budget cuts. In a time when massive local and state budget deficits are threatening cities' ability to provide basic services for their residents, how can struggling cities survive the financial crisis? This week, we visit Camden to explore possible solutions.

FRONTLINE continues its new monthly magazine program with the lead story "Money and March Madness," an inside look at the multi-billion dollar business of the NCAA and its brand of amateur college sports. In this investigation, correspondent Lowell Bergman gains access to Sonny Vaccaro, a former marketing executive at Nike, Adidas and Reebok, who helped bring about the rapid commercialization of college basketball. Vaccaro's success made coaches, administrators and companies rich. But the players remain at the mercy of the NCAA, which, despite a new $10.8 billion contract for its basketball tournament, has continued to insist that the athletes don't get paid. Now, Vaccaro has left the business world, and he's spearheading a class-action lawsuit that aims to ensure that players get a piece of the action. Also in this hour: a portrait of a man who's sometimes called China's Andy Warhol--Ai Weiwei. He's a global art star who's now using his international renown, along with a video camera and a growing underground Twitter following, to push the boundaries of freedom in today's China. Later in the hour, as the fall-out from WikiLeaks continues, an exclusive interview with Private Bradley Manning's father, who speaks out for the first time about his son's upbringing and troubled youth, Manning's time in the army, and why he still believes his son did not hand over the largest cache ever of classified documents to the whistle-blowing site.

High school football has never had a higher profile, with nationally televised games, corporate sponsorships and minute-by-minute coverage on sports websites. In northwest Arkansas, FRONTLINE examines one ambitious high school team working its way towards national renown. With a superstar quarterback at the helm, tiny Shiloh Christian is striving to join the ranks of the country's best high school teams-teams whose workout schedules, practices, and styles of play increasingly imitate the pros. But as high school players grow bigger, faster, and stronger, there are growing concerns about the health and safety of these young players-with rising rates of concussions, career-ending injuries, even death. In Arkansas, FRONTLINE documents a tragic story of heat-stroke injuries that reveal how weak regulation has created a crucial lack of athletic trainers at most high schools. It all raises a critical question: has the amped-up culture of high school football outrun necessary protections for the boys who play the game?

Nearly one year ago this week, the Deepwater Horizon oil rig exploded in the Gulf of Mexico, causing one of the largest environmental disasters in U.S. history. How are residents of Grand Isle, La., faring one year after the incident? We revisit some of the families and business owners we met last year during the oil spill to find out. We also sit down with ecologist Carl Safina and ProPublica's Abrahm Lustgarten to discuss BP's regulatory failures and the accident's impact on the environment, and speak with energy expert Lisa Margonelli about the U.S.'s post-oil spill energy policy.

Also: As a follow-up to our popular "Fixing America" series, we feature another series of "big thinkers" – educators, administrators and policy-makers – who share their thoughts on how to fix American education. Jon Meacham also sits down with Jim Simons, founder of Math for America and one of the richest men in the country, to talk about his dedication to improving American mathematics education.

And: Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the Constitution framers' decision that only native-born Americans may become President.

How are residents of Grand Isle, La., faring one year after the incident? We revisit some of the families and business owners we met last year during the oil spill to find out. We also sit down with ecologist Carl Safina and ProPublica's Abrahm Lustgarten to discuss BP's regulatory failures and the accident's impact on the environment, and speak with energy expert Lisa Margonelli about the U.S.'s post-oil spill energy policy.

Also: As a follow-up to our popular "Fixing America" series, we feature another series of "big thinkers" — educators, administrators and policy-makers — who share their thoughts on how to fix American education. Jon Meacham also sits down with Jim Simons, founder of Math for America and one of the richest men in the country, to talk about his dedication to improving American mathematics education.

And: Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the Constitution framers' decision that only native-born Americans may become President.

From the outrageous drumming palm cockatoo in the tropical rainforests to the shameless red female eclectus parrot of the far north who keeps a harem of males to the golden-shouldered parrot in the woodlands that excavates a nest in a termite mound to the incredibly prolific budgerigars of the deserts, a spectacular array of parrots has evolved here. Big and small, rare and bizarre, colorful and intelligent, they are the most conspicuous and exotic birds on this amazing island continent. Many mate for life, building homes and families together. Their colors, behaviors and habitats are all described in depth by the scientists studying them and the Australians who live among them in this delightful high-definition film from down under.

The Australian outback is the driest place on the driest inhabited continent on the planet. It is a place you might expect to see kangaroos but certainly not waterbirds. Yet once every ten years, rains flood into dried-up river beds and head inland to create the largest lake in Australia, and 100,000 pelicans -- a third of all the pelicans in Australia -- arrive for the event. Leaving their homes on coasts and harbors, they come to feed on fish washed in on the floods and on billions of brine shrimp and other crustaceans which hatch and grow to adulthood in a few days in water twice as salty as the Dead Sea. The pelicans have come home to court and raise as many families as possible before the water and the food disappear once more.

How are residents of Grand Isle, La., faring one year after the incident? We revisit some of the families and business owners we met last year during the oil spill to find out. We also sit down with ecologist Carl Safina and ProPublica's Abrahm Lustgarten to discuss BP's regulatory failures and the accident's impact on the environment, and speak with energy expert Lisa Margonelli about the U.S.'s post-oil spill energy policy.

Also: As a follow-up to our popular "Fixing America" series, we feature another series of "big thinkers" -- educators, administrators and policy-makers -- who share their thoughts on how to fix American education. Jon Meacham also sits down with Jim Simons, founder of Math for America and one of the richest men in the country, to talk about his dedication to improving American mathematics education.

And: Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the Constitution framers' decision that only native-born Americans may become President.

Service: PBS
Format: Documentary
Segment Length: 00:56:46

In its worst crisis since World War II, Japan faces disaster on an epic scale: a rising death toll in the tens of thousands, massive destruction of homes and businesses, shortages of water and power, and the specter of nuclear meltdown at three reactors. The facts and figures are astonishing. The March 11th earthquake was the world's fourth largest earthquake since record keeping began in 1900 and the worst ever to shake Japan. The seismic shock wave released over 4,000 times the energy of the largest nuclear test ever conducted; it shifted the earth's axis by six inches and shortened the day by a few millionths of a second. The tsunami slammed Japan's coast with 30 feet-high waves that traveled six miles inland, obliterating entire towns in a matter of minutes. JAPAN'S KILLER QUAKE combines authoritative on-the-spot reporting, personal stories of tragedy and survival, compelling eyewitness videos, explanatory graphics and exclusive helicopter footage for a unique look at the science behind the catastrophe.

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout - one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

In the second episode of Saving the Ocean, called The Sacred Island, host Carl Safina travels to the island of Pemba, part of the Zanzibar chain off the East African coast, to discover a remarkable story of local villages winning control over their vital fishing grounds. Once threatened by resort development, Pemba's pristine reefs and lagoons are now managed by, and for, the fishermen. Carl fishes with the locals in traditional dhows and dugout canoes, and meets the influential Imams whose sermons explained how the Koran requires good stewardship of the world and its resources. Pemba's fishing families are all Moslem, and Carl believes Islam could be a key to ocean conservation in the large parts of the world where fishing people are Moslem.

On August 24th, A.D. 79, the people of Herculaneum, a prosperous seaside town in Italy's Bay of Naples, watched in horror as Mount Vesuvius erupted, hurling a boiling, churning column of gas and ash 10 miles high into the sky. They saw the wind carry the deadly cloud toward the neighboring city of Pompeii, where the hapless citizens suffered a slow and torturous death in the poisonous detritus. It was only a matter of time before Vesuvius would unleash its fury on Herculaneum, killing its citizens in an even more spectacular and gruesome way.

High school football has never had a higher profile, with nationally televised games, corporate sponsorships and minute-by-minute coverage on sports websites. In northwest Arkansas, FRONTLINE examines one ambitious high school team working its way towards national renown. With a superstar quarterback at the helm, tiny Shiloh Christian is striving to join the ranks of the country's best high school teams-teams whose workout schedules, practices, and styles of play increasingly imitate the pros. But as high school players grow bigger, faster, and stronger, there are growing concerns about the health and safety of these young players-with rising rates of concussions, career-ending injuries, even death. In Arkansas, FRONTLINE documents a tragic story of heat-stroke injuries that reveal how weak regulation has created a crucial lack of athletic trainers at most high schools. It all raises a critical question: has the amped-up culture of high school football outrun necessary protections for the boys who play the game?

FRONTLINE continues its new monthly magazine program with the lead story "Money and March Madness," an inside look at the multi-billion dollar business of the NCAA and its brand of amateur college sports. In this investigation, correspondent Lowell Bergman gains access to Sonny Vaccaro, a former marketing executive at Nike, Adidas and Reebok, who helped bring about the rapid commercialization of college basketball. Vaccaro's success made coaches, administrators and companies rich. But the players remain at the mercy of the NCAA, which, despite a new $10.8 billion contract for its basketball tournament, has continued to insist that the athletes don't get paid. Now, Vaccaro has left the business world, and he's spearheading a class-action lawsuit that aims to ensure that players get a piece of the action. Also in this hour: a portrait of a man who's sometimes called China's Andy Warhol--Ai Weiwei. He's a global art star who's now using his international renown, along with a video camera and a growing underground Twitter following, to push the boundaries of freedom in today's China. Later in the hour, as the fall-out from WikiLeaks continues, an exclusive interview with Private Bradley Manning's father, who speaks out for the first time about his son's upbringing and troubled youth, Manning's time in the army, and why he still believes his son did not hand over the largest cache ever of classified documents to the whistle-blowing site.

"A Very Bloody Affair - 1862" - 1862 sees the birth of modern warfare and the transformation of Abraham Lincoln's war to preserve the Union into a war to emancipate the slaves. Political infighting threatens to swamp Lincoln's administration, and Union General George McClellan wages an ill-fated campaign on the Virginia peninsula. The episode follows the battle of ironclad ships, camp life and the beginning of the end of slavery. Ulysses S. Grant's exploits come to a bloody resolution at the Battle of Shiloh, and rumors swarm about Europe's readiness to recognize the Confederacy. Episode two of nine.

"Forever Free - 1862" - Convinced by July 1862 that emancipation is now morally and militarily crucial to the future of the Union, Abraham Lincoln must wait for a victory to issue his proclamation. But there are no Union victories to be had, thanks to the brilliance of Confederate generals Stonewall Jackson and Robert E. Lee. With Lee's September 1862 invasion of Maryland, the bloodiest day of the war takes place on the banks of Antietam Creek, followed shortly by the brightest - the emancipation of the slaves. Episode three of nine.

"Simply Murder - 1863" - A nightmarish Union disaster at Fredericksburg precedes two clashes in the spring of 1863: at Chancellorsville in May, where Robert E. Lee wins his most brilliant victory but loses Stonewall Jackson; and at Vicksburg, where Ulysses S. Grant is prevented from taking the city by siege. There is fierce northern opposition to Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, and increasing desperation on the Confederate home front. Lee decides to invade the North again to draw Grant's forces away from Vicksburg. Episode four of nine.

"The Universe of Battle - 1863"- The Battle of Gettysburg is the turning point of the war. For three days, 150,000 fight to the death in the Pennsylvania countryside culminating in Pickett's legendary charge. Vicksburg falls to Union forces, draft riots rage in New York, black troops join the fight for the first time and western battles transpire at Chickamauga and Chattanooga. At the dedication of a new Union cemetery at Gettysburg, Lincoln struggles to put into words what is happening to his people. Episode five of nine.

"Valley of the Shadow of Death – 1864" – Ulysses S. Grant and Robert E. Lee are pitted against each other in an extraordinary series of battles from the wilderness to Petersburg in Virginia. With Grant and Lee finally deadlocked at Petersburg, we move to the ghastly hospitals in both the North and South, and follow Sherman's Atlanta campaign through the mountains of northern Georgia. As the horrendous casualty lists increase, Abraham Lincoln's chance for re-election begins to dim and with them, the possibility of Union victory. Episode six of nine.

"Most Hallowed Ground – 1864" – The presidential campaign of 1864 sets Abraham Lincoln against his old commanding general, George McClellan. The stakes are nothing less than the survival of the Union itself. Opinion in the North has turned strongly against Lincoln and the war, but 11th-hour Union victories at Mobile Bay, Atlanta and the Shenandoah Valley tilt the election to Lincoln, and the Confederacy's last hope for independence dies. In an ironic twist, Robert E. Lee's Arlington mansion is turned into a Union military hospital and the estate becomes Arlington National Cemetery – the Union's most hallowed ground. "War Is All Hell – 1865" – William Tecumseh Sherman's March to the Sea brings war to the heart of Georgia and the Carolinas and spells the end of the Confederacy. Following Abraham Lincoln's second inauguration, Petersburg and Richmond finally fall to Ulysses S. Grant's army. Robert E. Lee's tattered Army of Northern Virginia flees westward towards Appomattox, where the surrender of Lee to Grant takes place. Meanwhile, John Wilkes Booth begins to dream of vengeance for the South.

"The Better Angels of Our Nature – 1865" – On April 14, five days after Robert E. Lee's surrender at Appomattox, Abraham Lincoln is assassinated. Lincoln is buried, John Wilkes Booth is captured and the war finally comes to a close. The series ends by considering the consequences and meaning of a war that transformed the country from a collection of states to the nation it is today.

When a devastating famine descended on Soviet Russia in 1921, it was the worst natural disaster in Europe since the Black Plague in the Middle Ages. Half a world away, Americans responded with a massive two-year relief campaign, championed by a new secretary of commerce, "the Great Humanitarian" Herbert Hoover. The nearly 300 American relief workers, "Hoover's boys," would be tested by a railroad system in disarray, a forbidding climate and — being among the first group of outsiders to break through Russia's isolation following the Bolshevik Revolution — a ruthless government suspicious of their motives. By the summer of 1922, Americans were feeding nearly 11-million Soviet citizens a day in 19,000 kitchens. THE GREAT FAMINE: AMERICAN EXPERIENCE from producer Austin Hoyt (GEORGE H.W. BUSH: AMERICAN EXPERIENCE) tells this riveting story of America's engagement with a distant and desperate people – an operation hailed for its efficiency, grit and generosity – within the larger story of the Russian Revolution and the roots of the U.S.-Soviet rivalry that would dominate the second half of the 20th century.

Nearly one year ago this week, the Deepwater Horizon oil rig exploded in the Gulf of Mexico, causing one of the largest environmental disasters in U.S. history. How are residents of Grand Isle, La., faring one year after the incident? We revisit some of the families and business owners we met last year during the oil spill to find out. We also sit down with ecologist Carl Safina and ProPublica's Abrahm Lustgarten to discuss BP's regulatory failures and the accident's impact on the environment, and speak with energy expert Lisa Margonelli about the U.S.'s post-oil spill energy policy.

Also: As a follow-up to our popular "Fixing America" series, we feature another series of "big thinkers" – educators, administrators and policy-makers – who share their thoughts on how to fix American education. Jon Meacham also sits down with Jim Simons, founder of Math for America and one of the richest men in the country, to talk about his dedication to improving American mathematics education.

And: Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the Constitution framers' decision that only native-born Americans may become President.

REDISCOVERING ALEXANDER HAMILTON is hosted and written by prominent author and journalist Richard Brookhiser. The documentary focuses on Hamilton's character in six chronological segments. The film is not meant to be "the definitive chronology of Alexander Hamilton," but rather a look at particular traits in his character – his strengths and weakness – how they were shaped into being, and how they played out within the new nation that was being created around him. To tell that story, the documentary combines traditional documentary techniques with Brookhiser's exploration of Hamilton's legacy and life in contemporary America. The film takes the viewer to the Caribbean Islands where Hamilton was born, to Yorktown and Wall Street where he fought and worked, to Harlem and Weehaken, New Jersey, where he lived and died. A Treasury Secretary, Supreme Court Justice, publishers, pornographers, lawyers, warriors, Calypso singers and urban gang members speak about money, rights, news, war, sex and honor – all the themes that shaped Hamilton's life, which led him to his early death resulting in modern capitalist America. REDISCOVERING ALEXANDER HAMILTON is the second film in the REDISCOVERING documentary film series. The first film, REDISCOVERING GEORGE WASHINGTON, aired on PBS in 2002.

In its worst crisis since World War II, Japan faces disaster on an epic scale: a rising death toll in the tens of thousands, massive destruction of homes and businesses, shortages of water and power, and the specter of nuclear meltdown at three reactors. The facts and figures are astonishing. The March 11th earthquake was the world's fourth largest earthquake since record keeping began in 1900 and the worst ever to shake Japan. The seismic shock wave released over 4,000 times the energy of the largest nuclear test ever conducted; it shifted the earth's axis by six inches and shortened the day by a few millionths of a second. The tsunami slammed Japan's coast with 30 feet-high waves that traveled six miles inland, obliterating entire towns in a matter of minutes. JAPAN'S KILLER QUAKE combines authoritative on-the-spot reporting, personal stories of tragedy and survival, compelling eyewitness videos, explanatory graphics and exclusive helicopter footage for a unique look at the science behind the catastrophe.

FRONTLINE continues its new monthly magazine program with the lead story "Money and March Madness," an inside look at the multi-billion dollar business of the NCAA and its brand of amateur college sports. In this investigation, correspondent Lowell Bergman gains access to Sonny Vaccaro, a former marketing executive at Nike, Adidas and Reebok, who helped bring about the rapid commercialization of college basketball. Vaccaro's success made coaches, administrators and companies rich. But the players remain at the mercy of the NCAA, which, despite a new $10.8 billion contract for its basketball tournament, has continued to insist that the athletes don't get paid. Now, Vaccaro has left the business world, and he's spearheading a class-action lawsuit that aims to ensure that players get a piece of the action. Also in this hour: a portrait of a man who's sometimes called China's Andy Warhol--Ai Weiwei. He's a global art star who's now using his international renown, along with a video camera and a growing underground Twitter following, to push the boundaries of freedom in today's China. Later in the hour, as the fall-out from WikiLeaks continues, an exclusive interview with Private Bradley Manning's father, who speaks out for the first time about his son's upbringing and troubled youth, Manning's time in the army, and why he still believes his son did not hand over the largest cache ever of classified documents to the whistle-blowing site.

High school football has never had a higher profile, with nationally televised games, corporate sponsorships and minute-by-minute coverage on sports websites. In northwest Arkansas, FRONTLINE examines one ambitious high school team working its way towards national renown. With a superstar quarterback at the helm, tiny Shiloh Christian is striving to join the ranks of the country's best high school teams--teams whose workout schedules, practices, and styles of play increasingly imitate the pros. But as high school players grow bigger, faster, and stronger, there are growing concerns about the health and safety of these young players--with rising rates of concussions, career-ending injuries, even death. In Arkansas, FRONTLINE documents a tragic story of heat-stroke injuries that reveal how weak regulation has created a crucial lack of athletic trainers at most high schools. It all raises a critical question: has the amped-up culture of high school football outrun necessary protections for the boys who play the game?

In the second episode of Saving the Ocean, called The Sacred Island, host Carl Safina travels to the island of Pemba, part of the Zanzibar chain off the East African coast, to discover a remarkable story of local villages winning control over their vital fishing grounds. Once threatened by resort development, Pemba's pristine reefs and lagoons are now managed by, and for, the fishermen. Carl fishes with the locals in traditional dhows and dugout canoes, and meets the influential Imams whose sermons explained how the Koran requires good stewardship of the world and its resources. Pemba's fishing families are all Moslem, and Carl believes Islam could be a key to ocean conservation in the large parts of the world where fishing people are Moslem.

In its worst crisis since World War II, Japan faces disaster on an epic scale: a rising death toll in the tens of thousands, massive destruction of homes and businesses, shortages of water and power, and the specter of nuclear meltdown at three reactors. The facts and figures are astonishing. The March 11th earthquake was the world's fourth largest earthquake since record keeping began in 1900 and the worst ever to shake Japan. The seismic shock wave released over 4,000 times the energy of the largest nuclear test ever conducted; it shifted the earth's axis by six inches and shortened the day by a few millionths of a second. The tsunami slammed Japan's coast with 30 feet-high waves that traveled six miles inland, obliterating entire towns in a matter of minutes. JAPAN'S KILLER QUAKE combines authoritative on-the-spot reporting, personal stories of tragedy and survival, compelling eyewitness videos, explanatory graphics and exclusive helicopter footage for a unique look at the science behind the catastrophe.

"A Very Bloody Affair - 1862" - 1862 sees the birth of modern warfare and the transformation of Abraham Lincoln's war to preserve the Union into a war to emancipate the slaves. Political infighting threatens to swamp Lincoln's administration, and Union General George McClellan wages an ill-fated campaign on the Virginia peninsula. The episode follows the battle of ironclad ships, camp life and the beginning of the end of slavery. Ulysses S. Grant's exploits come to a bloody resolution at the Battle of Shiloh, and rumors swarm about Europe's readiness to recognize the Confederacy. Episode two of nine.

"Forever Free - 1862" - Convinced by July 1862 that emancipation is now morally and militarily crucial to the future of the Union, Abraham Lincoln must wait for a victory to issue his proclamation. But there are no Union victories to be had, thanks to the brilliance of Confederate generals Stonewall Jackson and Robert E. Lee. With Lee's September 1862 invasion of Maryland, the bloodiest day of the war takes place on the banks of Antietam Creek, followed shortly by the brightest - the emancipation of the slaves. Episode three of nine.

"Simply Murder - 1863" - A nightmarish Union disaster at Fredericksburg precedes two clashes in the spring of 1863: at Chancellorsville in May, where Robert E. Lee wins his most brilliant victory but loses Stonewall Jackson; and at Vicksburg, where Ulysses S. Grant is prevented from taking the city by siege. There is fierce northern opposition to Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, and increasing desperation on the Confederate home front. Lee decides to invade the North again to draw Grant's forces away from Vicksburg. Episode four of nine.

"The Universe of Battle - 1863" - The Battle of Gettysburg is the turning point of the war. For three days, 150,000 fight to the death in the Pennsylvania countryside culminating in Pickett's legendary charge. Vicksburg falls to Union forces, draft riots rage in New York, black troops join the fight for the first time and western battles transpire at Chickamauga and Chattanooga. At the dedication of a new Union cemetery at Gettysburg, Lincoln struggles to put into words what is happening to his people. Episode five of nine.

"Valley of the Shadow of Death - 1864" - Ulysses S. Grant and Robert E. Lee are pitted against each other in an extraordinary series of battles from the wilderness to Petersburg in Virginia. With Grant and Lee finally deadlocked at Petersburg, we move to the ghastly hospitals in both the North and South, and follow Sherman's Atlanta campaign through the mountains of northern Georgia. As the horrendous casualty lists increases, Abraham Lincoln's chance for re-election begins to dim and with them, the possibility of Union victory. Episode six of nine.

"Most Hallowed Ground - 1864" - The presidential campaign of 1864 sets Abraham Lincoln against his old commanding general, George McClellan. The stakes are nothing less than the survival of the Union itself. Opinion in the North has turned strongly against Lincoln and the war, but 11th-hour Union victories at Mobile Bay, Atlanta and the Shenandoah Valley tilt the election to Lincoln, and the Confederacy's last hope for independence dies. In an ironic twist, Robert E. Lee's Arlington mansion is turned into a Union military hospital and the estate becomes Arlington National Cemetery – the Union's most hallowed ground. "War Is All Hell - 1865" – William Tecumseh Sherman's March to the Sea brings war to the heart of Georgia and the Carolinas and spells the end of the Confederacy. Following Abraham Lincoln's second inauguration, Petersburg and Richmond finally fall to Ulysses S. Grant's army. Robert E. Lee's tattered Army of Northern Virginia flees westward towards Appomattox, where the surrender of Lee to Grant takes place. Meanwhile, John Wilkes Booth begins to dream of vengeance for the South.

"The Better Angels of Our Nature - 1865" – On April 14, five days after Robert E. Lee's surrender at Appomattox, Abraham Lincoln is assassinated. Lincoln is buried, John Wilkes Booth is captured and the war finally comes to a close. The series ends by considering the consequences and meaning of a war that transformed the country from a collection of states to the nation it is today.

FRONTLINE continues its new monthly magazine program with the lead story "Money and March Madness," an inside look at the multi-billion dollar business of the NCAA and its brand of amateur college sports. In this investigation, correspondent Lowell Bergman gains access to Sonny Vaccaro, a former marketing executive at Nike, Adidas and Reebok, who helped bring about the rapid commercialization of college basketball. Vaccaro's success made coaches, administrators and companies rich. But the players remain at the mercy of the NCAA, which, despite a new $10.8 billion contract for its basketball tournament, has continued to insist that the athletes don't get paid. Now, Vaccaro has left the business world, and he's spearheading a class-action lawsuit that aims to ensure that players get a piece of the action. Also in this hour: a portrait of a man who's sometimes called China's Andy Warhol--Ai Weiwei. He's a global art star who's now using his international renown, along with a video camera and a growing underground Twitter following, to push the boundaries of freedom in today's China. In 1779, George Washington brought over ten thousand troops to Morristown, New Jersey, where they struggled to survive the worst winter in recorded history, with the American Revolution hanging in the balance. The Continental Army cleared two thousand acres of trees to build their huts in a place called Jockey Hollow, making it the fifth largest "city" in population at the time. There soldiers suffered through a long series of snow storms that sealed them off from supplies of food and clothing. Washington's army was falling apart as the British waited in New York to make their move. When the British attacked in the spring, these same soldiers who'd starved through the winter rallied with local militia to turn the British back. The Morristown story has never received the attention it deserves. Morristown: Where America Survived revisits that "Hard Winter" of 1780 when the entire eastern seaboard was hit by major snowfalls and unrelenting freezing temperatures. It follows the soldiers' experiences through the winter and into the springtime clashes with the British. Primary quotes flesh out the story, from the letters of George Washington to the recollections of Joseph Plumb Martin, who left one of the only detailed accounts of life for a young private at Morristown. The film is narrated award-winning actor Edward Herrmann.

FRONTLINE continues its new monthly magazine program with the lead story "Money and March Madness," an inside look at the multi-billion dollar business of the NCAA and its brand of amateur college sports. In this investigation, correspondent Lowell Bergman gains access to Sonny Vaccaro, a former marketing executive at Nike, Adidas and Reebok, who helped bring about the rapid commercialization of college basketball. Vaccaro's success made coaches, administrators and companies rich. But the players remain at the mercy of the NCAA, which, despite a new $10.8 billion contract for its basketball tournament, has continued to insist that the athletes don't get paid. Now, Vaccaro has left the business world, and he's spearheading a class-action lawsuit that aims to ensure that players get a piece of the action. Also in this hour: a portrait of a man who's sometimes called China's Andy Warhol--Ai Weiwei. He's a global art star who's now using his international renown, along with a video camera and a growing underground Twitter following, to push the boundaries of freedom in today's China. Later in the hour, as the fall-out from WikiLeaks continues, an exclusive interview with Private Bradley Manning's father, who speaks out for the first time about his son's upbringing and troubled youth, Manning's time in the army, and why he still believes his son did not hand over the largest cache ever of classified documents to the whistle-blowing site.

High school football has never had a higher profile, with nationally televised games, corporate sponsorships and minute-by-minute coverage on sports websites. In northwest Arkansas, FRONTLINE examines one ambitious high school team working its way towards national renown. With a superstar quarterback at the helm, tiny Shiloh Christian is striving to join the ranks of the country's best high school teams--teams whose workout schedules, practices, and styles of play increasingly imitate the pros. But as high school players grow bigger, faster, and stronger, there are growing concerns about the health and safety of these young players--with rising rates of concussions, career-ending injuries, even death. In Arkansas, FRONTLINE documents a tragic story of heat-stroke injuries that reveal how weak regulation has created a crucial lack of athletic trainers at most high schools. It all raises a critical question: has the amped-up culture of high school football outrun necessary protections for the boys who play the game?

"Stonewall Uprising" explores the dramatic event that launched a worldwide rights movement. Told by those who took part, from drag queens and street hustlers to police detectives, journalists and a former mayor of New York, and featuring a rich trove of archival footage, this film revisits a time when homosexual acts were illegal throughout America, and homosexuality itself was seen as a form of mental illness. Hunted and often entrapped by undercover police in their hometowns, gays from around the U.S. began fleeing to New York in search of a sanctuary. Hounded there still by an aggressive police force, they found refuge in a Mafia-run gay bar in Greenwich Village, the Stonewall Inn. When police raided Stonewall on June 28, 1969, gay men and women did something they had not done before: they fought back. As the streets of New York erupted into violent protests and street demonstrations, the collective anger announced that the gay rights movement had arrived.

Nearly a century after his death, John Muir is remembered and revered as the father of the environmental movement and the founder of the Sierra Club. It was this Scottish American who believed that it was our responsibility as citizens to protect our natural surroundings. And, by example and by passion, he taught us how to care for our wilderness treasures. Through his tireless advocacy and his writings, he almost single-handedly preserved the Yosemite Valley of California and was the force behind the creation of the National Park Service. Filmed throughout the majestic landscapes in which Muir traveled, this documentary places our nation's most important wilderness assets in a cultural and social context. Muir's story could not be a timelier reminder of America's unique and, ultimately, threatened eco-systems.

The story of Fort Niagara is the story of a struggle for a continent. For over 150 years, four nations struggled to control this strategic point at the mouth of the Niagara River, and thus control the critical water artery it protected. But the fort is not only unique for its history, it is unique for its longevity. Visitors to the site today can still explore one of North America's largest collections of original 18th century military architecture--tangible reminders of the fort's important past. Experience for yourself this exciting story of one of America's most unique historic places. Rare archival footage, expert commentaries and spectacular videography of the fort itself come together in brilliant high definition to create a program that is a must for anyone interested in the story of North America.

Nearly one year ago this week, the Deepwater Horizon oil rig exploded in the Gulf of Mexico, causing one of the largest environmental disasters in U.S. history. How are residents of Grand Isle, La., faring one year after the incident? We revisit some of the families and business owners we met last year during the oil spill to find out. We also sit down with ecologist Carl Safina and ProPublica's Abrahm Lustgarten to discuss BP's regulatory failures and the accident's impact on the environment, and speak with energy expert Lisa Margonelli about the U.S.'s post-oil spill energy policy.

Also: As a follow-up to our popular "Fixing America" series, we feature another series of "big thinkers" - educators, administrators and policy-makers - who share their thoughts on how to fix American education. Jon Meacham also sits down with Jim Simons, founder of Math for America and one of the richest men in the country, to talk about his dedication to improving American mathematics education.

And: Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the Constitution framers' decision that only native-born Americans may become President.

"Proclamation of Hope" is mixed media concert with a 21-piece orchestra--a symphonic poem--by jazz legend, pianist and composer Ramsey Lewis. This composition commemorated Abraham Lincoln's 200th birthday and considers his life and legacy as our country's 16th and perhaps, greatest president. The work is scored for wind ensemble, rhythm section, and voice, and is organized in eight discrete movements. Visual images from a range of sources depict various historical moments and concepts, and are viewed as the group performs the composition. These images intend to further animate the story Mr. Lewis has musically interpreted and serve to inspire reflection in listeners. Each movement takes its motivation from actual historical events and people drawn from Lincoln's life and work, and considers their profound influences on this nation's quest for "a more perfect union."

"Prisoner of Her Past " tells the story of a secret childhood trauma resurfacing, 60 years later, to unravel the life of Holocaust survivor Sonia Reich. The film follows her son, Chicago Tribune jazz critic Howard Reich, as he journeys across the United States and Eastern Europe to uncover why his mother believes the world is conspiring to kill her. Along the way, he finds a family he never knew he had. This film is the first to illuminate a little-known illness: late-onset Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. The documentary examines the disorder's devastating effect on families, but also shows programs that are aiding young trauma survivors of Hurricane Katrina, in New Orleans, and how such early interventions may have helped Howard's mother.

REDISCOVERING ALEXANDER HAMILTON is hosted and written by prominent author and journalist Richard Brookhiser. The documentary focuses on Hamilton's character in six chronological segments. The film is not meant to be "the definitive chronology of Alexander Hamilton," but rather a look at particular traits in his character – his strengths and weakness – how they were shaped into being, and how they played out within the new nation that was being created around him. To tell that story, the documentary combines traditional documentary techniques with Brookhiser's exploration of Hamilton's legacy and life in contemporary America. The film takes the viewer to the Caribbean Islands where Hamilton was born, to Yorktown and Wall Street where he fought and worked, to Harlem and Weehaken, New Jersey, where he lived and died. A Treasury Secretary, Supreme Court Justice, publishers, pornographers, lawyers, warriors, Calypso singers and urban gang members speak about money, rights, news, war, sex and honor - all the themes that shaped Hamilton's life, which led him to his early death resulting in modern capitalist America. REDISCOVERING ALEXANDER HAMILTON is the second film in the REDISCOVERING documentary film series. The first film, REDISCOVERING GEORGE WASHINGTON, aired on PBS in 2002.

Producer Tom Curran and reporter Mark Trahant examine a little-known chapter of the Catholic Church sex abuse story: decades of abuse of Native Americans by priests and church workers in Alaska. The isolation of the villages and the absolute authority of the church over the Native population created an atmosphere where molestation could go unchecked and unreported. Also in this hour, a re-airing of "Flying Cheaper," a January 2011 investigation into the outsourcing of major airline repair work to lower-cost independent maintenance operations in the U.S. and abroad. Closing the hour will be a news update on "Flying Cheaper" from correspondent Miles O'Brien, as well as a follow-up on the story of Chinese artist and activist Ai Weiwei, who was taken into custody by government authorities days after FRONTLINE's March 2011 profile of him, as part of a larger crackdown on artists, bloggers, and human-rights advocates.

Nearly one year ago this week, the Deepwater Horizon oil rig exploded in the Gulf of Mexico, causing one of the largest environmental disasters in U.S. history. How are residents of Grand Isle, La., faring one year after the incident? We revisit some of the families and business owners we met last year during the oil spill to find out. We also sit down with ecologist Carl Safina and ProPublica's Abrahm Lustgarten to discuss BP's regulatory failures and the accident's impact on the environment, and speak with energy expert Lisa Margonelli about the U.S.'s post-oil spill energy policy.

Also: As a follow-up to our popular "Fixing America" series, we feature another series of "big thinkers" – educators, administrators and policy-makers – who share their thoughts on how to fix American education. Jon Meacham also sits down with Jim Simons, founder of Math for America and one of the richest men in the country, to talk about his dedication to improving American mathematics education.

And: Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the Constitution framers' decision that only native-born Americans may become President.

This week on Need to Know, we team up with ProPublica to examine the harmful effects of tainted drywall manufactured in China, and the legal frustrations consumers encounter when trying to sue foreign manufacturers for damages. We follow one homeowner whose family abandoned their home because of tainted drywall, and see how she eventually took her case to Congress.

Also: In collaboration with Blueprint America, we look at a controversial plan in Detroit to "right size" the city for easier management by using financial incentives to encourage residents to move out. We also follow students at a Detroit middle school as they participate in a competition to design the "city of the future."

And: Author Anatole Kaletsky speaks with us about a new era of capitalism that we are approaching, and Jon Meacham comments on a recent controversy over Pastor Rob Bell's remarks questioning the existence of hell.

This week on Need to Know, we team up with ProPublica to examine the harmful effects of tainted drywall manufactured in China, and the legal frustrations consumers encounter when trying to sue foreign manufacturers for damages. We follow one homeowner whose family abandoned their home because of tainted drywall, and see how she eventually took her case to Congress.

Also: In collaboration with Blueprint America, we look at a controversial plan in Detroit to "right size" the city for easier management by using financial incentives to encourage residents to move out. We also follow students at a Detroit middle school as they participate in a competition to design the "city of the future."

And: Author Anatole Kaletsky speaks with us about a new era of capitalism that we are approaching, and Jon Meacham comments on a recent controversy over Pastor Rob Bell's remarks questioning the existence of hell.

Every day, nearly 7,000 people die in America. And when these deaths happen suddenly, or under suspicious circumstances, we assume there will be a thorough investigation, just like we see on CSI. But the reality is very different. In over 2,000 counties across America, elected coroners, many with no medical or scientific background, are in charge of death investigations. Nationwide there is a severe shortage of competent forensic pathologists to do autopsies. The rate of autopsies—the gold standard of death investigation—has plummeted over the decades from fifty percent of those who die to less than six percent. As a result, not only do murderers go free and innocent people go to jail, but the crisis in death investigation in America is also a threat to public health. FRONTLINE correspondent Lowell Bergman reports the results of a joint investigation with ProPublica, NPR, and the Investigative Reporting Program at UC Berkeley.

English-language companion to the Spanish-language series LOS NINOS EN SU CASA. Both shows are designed for parents or anyone else who takes care of young kids: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The shows cover subjects such as: tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, speech and language delays. These series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help kids be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

High school football has never had a higher profile, with nationally televised games, corporate sponsorships and minute-by-minute coverage on sports websites. In northwest Arkansas, FRONTLINE examines one ambitious high school team working its way towards national renown. With a superstar quarterback at the helm, tiny Shiloh Christian is striving to join the ranks of the country's best high school teams-teams whose workout schedules, practices, and styles of play increasingly imitate the pros. But as high school players grow bigger, faster, and stronger, there are growing concerns about the health and safety of these young players-with rising rates of concussions, career-ending injuries, even death. In Arkansas, FRONTLINE documents a tragic story of heat-stroke injuries that reveal how weak regulation has created a crucial lack of athletic trainers at most high schools. It all raises a critical question: has the amped-up culture of high school football outrun necessary protections for the boys who play the game?

Nearly one year ago this week, the Deepwater Horizon oil rig exploded in the Gulf of Mexico, causing one of the largest environmental disasters in U.S. history. How are residents of Grand Isle, La., faring one year after the incident? We revisit some of the families and business owners we met last year during the oil spill to find out. We also sit down with ecologist Carl Safina and ProPublica's Abrahm Lustgarten to discuss BP's regulatory failures and the accident's impact on the environment, and speak with energy expert Lisa Margonelli about the U.S.'s post-oil spill energy policy.

Also: As a follow-up to our popular "Fixing America" series, we feature another series of "big thinkers" — educators, administrators and policy-makers — who share their thoughts on how to fix American education. Jon Meacham also sits down with Jim Simons, founder of Math for America and one of the richest men in the country, to talk about his dedication to improving American mathematics education.

And: Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the Constitution framers' decision that only native-born Americans may become President.

This week on Need to Know, we team up with ProPublica to examine the harmful effects of tainted drywall manufactured in China, and the legal frustrations consumers encounter when trying to sue foreign manufacturers for damages. We follow one homeowner whose family abandoned their home because of tainted drywall, and see how she eventually took her case to Congress.

Also: In collaboration with Blueprint America, we look at a controversial plan in Detroit to "right size" the city for easier management by using financial incentives to encourage residents to move out. We also follow students at a Detroit middle school as they participate in a competition to design the "city of the future."

And: Author Anatole Kaletsky speaks with us about a new era of capitalism that we are approaching, and Jon Meacham comments on a recent controversy over Pastor Rob Bell's remarks questioning the existence of hell.

Nearly one year ago this week, the Deepwater Horizon oil rig exploded in the Gulf of Mexico, causing one of the largest environmental disasters in U.S. history. How are residents of Grand Isle, La., faring one year after the incident? We revisit some of the families and business owners we met last year during the oil spill to find out. We also sit down with ecologist Carl Safina and ProPublica's Abrahm Lustgarten to discuss BP's regulatory failures and the accident's impact on the environment, and speak with energy expert Lisa Margonelli about the U.S.'s post-oil spill energy policy.

Also: As a follow-up to our popular "Fixing America" series, we feature another series of "big thinkers" — educators, administrators and policy-makers — who share their thoughts on how to fix American education. Jon Meacham also sits down with Jim Simons, founder of Math for America and one of the richest men in the country, to talk about his dedication to improving American mathematics education.

And: Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the Constitution framers' decision that only native-born Americans may become President.

Can emerging technology defeat global warming? The United States has invested tens of billions of dollars in clean energy projects as our leaders try to save our crumbling economy and our poisoned planet in one bold, green stroke. Are we finally on the brink of a green-energy POWER SURGE, or is it all a case of too little, too late? From solar panel factories in China to a carbon capture and storage facility in the Sahara desert to massive wind and solar installations in the United States, NOVA travels the globe to reveal the surprising technologies that just might turn back the clock on climate change. NOVA will focus on the latest and greatest innovations, including everything from artificial trees to green reboots of familiar technologies like coal and nuclear energy. Can our technology, which helped create this problem, now solve it?

Nearly a century after his death, John Muir is remembered and revered as the father of the environmental movement and the founder of the Sierra Club. It was this Scottish American who believed that it was our responsibility as citizens to protect our natural surroundings. And, by example and by passion, he taught us how to care for our wilderness treasures. Through his tireless advocacy and his writings, he almost single-handedly preserved the Yosemite Valley of California and was the force behind the creation of the National Park Service. Filmed throughout the majestic landscapes in which Muir traveled, this documentary places our nation's most important wilderness assets in a cultural and social context. Muir's story could not be a timelier reminder of America's unique and, ultimately, threatened eco-systems.

The bushfires that tore through the Australian state of Victoria in February 2009 incinerated over a million acres of land, including key mountain ash forest ecosystems. Fires are a natural force of nature which spur regeneration, but the immediate aftermath of this giant firestorm was devastation. Kangaroos and koalas, wombats and wallabies, endangered possums and gliders, lizards, echidnas, birds of all kinds, and even fish that lived among these eucalypts were overcome by the flames. Millions died. But burned and traumatized survivors tenderly nursed back to health at wildlife hospitals showed a remarkable ability to bounce back, and the environment an extraordinary capacity for healing.

When Mount St. Helens erupted in 1980, every living thing in the blast zone was buried beneath 300 feet of avalanche debris, covered with steaming mud, and finally, topped with a superheated layer of frothy rock from deep within the earth. It seemed as though Mount St. Helens might remain a wasteland forever. When biologist Charlie Crisafulli first flew over the disaster zone, finding no sign of life, little did he realize that his own life would be forever changed. Crisafulli has remained at the site for 27 years, documenting the dramatic return of plant and animal life to the barren landscape and pioneering a new understanding of the interaction between geologic forces and the life surrounding the mountain. NOVA brings viewers on an inspiring journey of a landscape brought back from the dead.

Every day, nearly 7,000 people die in America. And when these deaths happen suddenly, or under suspicious circumstances, we assume there will be a thorough investigation, just like we see on CSI. But the reality is very different. In over 2,000 counties across America, elected coroners, many with no medical or scientific background, are in charge of death investigations. Nationwide there is a severe shortage of competent forensic pathologists to do autopsies. The rate of autopsies—the gold standard of death investigation—has plummeted over the decades from fifty percent of those who die to less than six percent. As a result, not only do murderers go free and innocent people go to jail, but the crisis in death investigation in America is also a threat to public health. FRONTLINE correspondent Lowell

Bergman reports the results of a joint investigation with ProPublica, NPR, and the Investigative Reporting Program at UC Berkeley.

High school football has never had a higher profile, with nationally televised games, corporate sponsorships and minute-by-minute coverage on sports websites. In northwest Arkansas, FRONTLINE examines one ambitious high school team working its way towards national renown. With a superstar quarterback at the helm, tiny Shiloh Christian is striving to join the ranks of the country's best high school teams-teams whose workout schedules, practices, and styles of play increasingly imitate the pros. But as high school players grow bigger, faster, and stronger, there are growing concerns about the health and safety of these young players-with rising rates of concussions, career-ending injuries, even death. In Arkansas, FRONTLINE documents a tragic story of heat-stroke injuries that reveal how weak regulation has created a crucial lack of athletic trainers at most high schools. It all raises a critical question: has the amped-up culture of high school football outrun necessary protections for the boys who play the game?

"Prisoner of Her Past " tells the story of a secret childhood trauma resurfacing, 60 years later, to unravel the life of Holocaust survivor Sonia Reich. The film follows her son, Chicago Tribune jazz critic Howard Reich, as he journeys across the United States and Eastern Europe to uncover why his mother believes the world is conspiring to kill her. Along the way, he finds a family he never knew he had. This film is the first to illuminate a little-known illness: late-onset Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. The documentary examines the disorder's devastating effect on families, but also shows programs that are aiding young trauma survivors of Hurricane Katrina, in New Orleans, and how such early interventions may have helped Howard's mother.

"Stonewall Uprising" explores the dramatic event that launched a worldwide rights movement. Told by those who took part, from drag queens and street hustlers to police detectives, journalists and a former mayor of New York, and featuring a rich trove of archival footage, this film revisits a time when homosexual acts were illegal throughout America, and homosexuality itself was seen as a form of mental illness. Hunted and often entrapped by undercover police in their hometowns, gays from around the U.S. began fleeing to New York in search of a sanctuary. Hounded there still by an aggressive police force, they found refuge in a Mafia-run gay bar in Greenwich Village, the Stonewall Inn. When police raided Stonewall on June 28, 1969, gay men and women did something they had not done before: they fought back. As the streets of New York erupted into violent protests and street demonstrations, the collective anger announced that the gay rights movement had arrived.

Producer Tom Curran and reporter Mark Trahant examine a little-known chapter of the Catholic Church sex abuse story: decades of abuse of Native Americans by priests and church workers in Alaska. The isolation of the villages and the absolute authority of the church over the Native population created an atmosphere where molestation could go unchecked and unreported. Also in this hour, a re-airing of "Flying Cheaper," a January 2011 investigation into the outsourcing of major airline repair work to lower-cost independent maintenance operations in the U.S. and abroad. Closing the hour will be a news update on "Flying Cheaper" from correspondent Miles O'Brien, as well as a follow-up on the story of Chinese artist and activist Ai Weiwei, who was taken into custody by government authorities days after FRONTLINE's March 2011 profile of him, as part of a larger crackdown on artists, bloggers, and human-rights advocates.

LOS NIÑOS EN SU CASA is the Spanish-language companion to the English-language series A PLACE OF OUR OWN. Both series are designed for parents and anyone else who takes care of young children: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The series covers subjects such as tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, and speech and language delays. These Peabody award winning series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help children be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

This week, we sit down with New York Times columnist Joe Nocera, who recently reported on the case of Charlie Engle, a marathon runner who served jail time after being convicted of lying on a mortgage application. Nocera questions why borrowers like Engle are being prosecuted while lenders responsible for the subprime mortgage crisis still have not faced punishment.

Also: Alison Stewart speaks with PBS talk show host Tavis Smiley about his new book "Fail Up: 20 Lessons on Building Success from Failure." We also visit a music school in Chicago that is providing free lessons to fill the gap left by budget cuts in music education in public schools.

And: Jon Meacham comments on transparency in corporate political donations.

Nearly one year ago this week, the Deepwater Horizon oil rig exploded in the Gulf of Mexico, causing one of the largest environmental disasters in U.S. history. How are residents of Grand Isle, La., faring one year after the incident? We revisit some of the families and business owners we met last year during the oil spill to find out. We also sit down with ecologist Carl Safina and ProPublica's Abrahm Lustgarten to discuss BP's regulatory failures and the accident's impact on the environment, and speak with energy expert Lisa Margonelli about the U.S.'s post-oil spill energy policy.

Also: As a follow-up to our popular "Fixing America" series, we feature another series of "big thinkers" – educators, administrators and policy-makers – who share their thoughts on how to fix American education. Jon Meacham also sits down with Jim Simons, founder of Math for America and one of the richest men in the country, to talk about his dedication to improving American mathematics education.

And: Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the Constitution framers' decision that only native-born Americans may become President.

We follow one homeowner whose family abandoned their home because of tainted drywall, and see how she eventually took her case to Congress.

Also: In collaboration with Blueprint America, we look at a controversial plan in Detroit to "right size" the city for easier management by using financial incentives to encourage residents to move out. We also follow students at a Detroit middle school as they participate in a competition to design the "city of the future."

And: Author Anatole Kaletsky speaks with us about a new era of capitalism that we are approaching, and Jon Meacham comments on a recent controversy over Pastor Rob Bell's remarks questioning the existence of hell.

REDISCOVERING ALEXANDER HAMILTON is hosted and written by prominent author and journalist Richard Brookhiser. The documentary focuses on Hamilton's character in six chronological segments. The film is not meant to be "the definitive chronology of Alexander Hamilton," but rather a look at particular traits in his character — his strengths and weakness — how they were shaped into being, and how they played out within the new nation that was being created around him. To tell that story, the documentary combines traditional documentary techniques with Brookhiser's exploration of Hamilton's legacy and life in contemporary America. The film takes the viewer to the Caribbean Islands where Hamilton was born, to Yorktown and Wall Street where he fought and worked, to Harlem and Weehaken, New Jersey, where he lived and died. A Treasury Secretary, Supreme Court Justice, publishers, pornographers, lawyers, warriors, Calypso singers and urban gang members speak about money, rights, news, war, sex and honor — all the themes that shaped Hamilton's life, which led him to his early death resulting in modern capitalist America. REDISCOVERING ALEXANDER HAMILTON is the second film in the REDISCOVERING documentary film series. The first film, REDISCOVERING GEORGE WASHINGTON, aired on PBS in 2002.

High school football has never had a higher profile, with nationally televised games, corporate sponsorships and minute-by-minute coverage on sports websites. In northwest Arkansas, FRONTLINE examines one ambitious high school team working its way towards national renown. With a superstar quarterback at the helm, tiny Shiloh Christian is striving to join the ranks of the country's best high school teams-teams whose workout schedules, practices, and styles of play increasingly imitate the pros. But as high school players grow bigger, faster, and stronger, there are growing concerns about the health and safety of these young players-with rising rates of concussions, career-ending injuries, even death. In Arkansas, FRONTLINE documents a tragic story of heat-stroke injuries that reveal how weak regulation has created a crucial lack of athletic trainers at most high schools. It all raises a critical question: has the amped-up culture of high school football outrun necessary protections for the boys who play the game?

This two-hour special breaks exciting new ground in investigating the origins of the ancient Israelites, the evolution of their belief in one God and the creation of the Bible. For the first time, more than a century of literary detective work and decades of archeological excavation in the Holy Land will challenge viewers with provocative new insights, including that most Israelites worshiped pagan gods and many believed that God had a wife, who was venerated as an idol. A story of science, history and faith, "The Bible's Buried Secrets" will leave a lasting impact on viewers and become the definitive documentary on the Bible for generations to come.

When Mount St. Helens erupted in 1980, every living thing in the blast zone was buried beneath 300 feet of avalanche debris, covered with steaming mud, and finally, topped with a superheated layer of frothy rock from deep within the earth. It seemed as though Mount St. Helens might remain a wasteland forever. When biologist Charlie Crisafulli first flew over the disaster zone, finding no sign of life, little did he realize that his own life would be forever changed. Crisafulli has remained at the site for 27 years, documenting the dramatic return of plant and animal life to the barren landscape and pioneering a new understanding of the interaction between geologic forces and the life surrounding the mountain. NOVA brings viewers on an inspiring journey of a landscape brought back from the dead.

"Prisoner of Her Past " tells the story of a secret childhood trauma resurfacing, 60 years later, to unravel the life of Holocaust survivor Sonia Reich. The film follows her son, Chicago Tribune jazz critic Howard Reich, as he journeys across the United States and Eastern Europe to uncover why his mother believes the world is conspiring to kill her. Along the way, he finds a family he never knew he had. This film is the first to illuminate a little-known illness: late-onset Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. The documentary examines the disorder's devastating effect on families, but also shows programs that are aiding young trauma survivors of Hurricane Katrina, in New Orleans, and how such early interventions may have helped Howard's mother.

High school football has never had a higher profile, with nationally televised games, corporate sponsorships and minute-by-minute coverage on sports websites. In northwest Arkansas, FRONTLINE examines one ambitious high school team working its way towards national renown. With a superstar quarterback at the helm, tiny Shiloh Christian is striving to join the ranks of the country's best high school teams-teams whose workout schedules, practices, and styles of play increasingly imitate the pros. But as high school players grow bigger, faster, and stronger, there are growing concerns about the health and safety of these young players-with rising rates of concussions, career-ending injuries, even death. In Arkansas, FRONTLINE documents a tragic story of heat-stroke injuries that reveal how weak regulation has created a crucial lack of athletic trainers at most high schools. It all raises a critical question: has the amped-up culture of high school football outrun necessary protections for the boys who play the game?

This week on Need to Know, we team up with ProPublica to examine the harmful effects of tainted drywall manufactured in China, and the legal frustrations consumers encounter when trying to sue foreign manufacturers for damages. We follow one homeowner whose family abandoned their home because of tainted drywall, and see how she eventually took her case to Congress.

Also: In collaboration with Blueprint America, we look at a controversial plan in Detroit to "right size" the city for easier management by using financial incentives to encourage residents to move out. We also follow students at a Detroit middle school as they participate in a competition to design the "city of the future."

And: Author Anatole Kaletsky speaks with us about a new era of capitalism that we are approaching, and Jon Meacham comments on a recent controversy over Pastor Rob Bell's remarks questioning the existence of hell.

This week on Need to Know, we look at the State Department's recent suspension of international adoption of abandoned children in Nepal. We traveled to Nepal to meet with Americans who had adopted children there but were unable to bring them home.

Also, in the wake of Osama bin Laden's death this week, we explore the financial cost of the war on terror and America's efforts to prioritize security after the events of September 11, 2001. Princeton University professor Bernard Haykel also joins us to discuss the Arab world's reaction to bin Laden's death, arguing that it is not the end of jihadism, and Jon Meacham comments on opportunities his death could provide for the U.S.'s national agenda. Read more of Need to Know's coverage of Osama bin Laden's death.

And: Alison Stewart moderates a panel of three women on the economic, political and legal status of women today, including the fight over reproductive rights. And New Yorker cartoonist Roz Chast provides an animation for a unique take on the story of the Ant and the Grasshopper.

His standing among the most enduring 20th-century American musical artists is without question, yet his story is rarely told beyond the tragic circumstances of his death. Enormously talented and equally complicated, Gaye created an intimate style - full of honesty, integrity, vulnerability - and, essentially, gave the world his autobiography in lyrics and melody. "The Wonderful One," "The Trouble Man," "The Prince of Soul" -- he was the Motown star who challenged and changed the face of black music, embodying its evolution from roots in gospel, jazz and rhythm and blues to sophisticated pop and sexually, politically charged soul. Extensive performance footage and insight from Mary Wilson, Smokey Robinson, Gladys Knight, Mos Def, among many others, capture the tone and texture of a career that still leaves an indelible mark on the musical landscape.

A HAM radio operator who now lives in Beverly Hills, Florida made contact with another radio hobbyist in Baltimore, Maryland. The second man said he was a NASA engineer and pioneered some early space projects. Before signing off, he promised to send a memento of their conversation. Some time later our Florida contributor received a three inch-square of metallic fabric, one half covered in a mysterious pink powder, along with a hand-drawn diagram. Piecing together information from the radio exchange and notes on the diagram, our contributor believes this could be a piece of an early space satellite. History Detectives host Tukufu Zuberi consults with experts at the NASA Goddard Space Flight Center in Maryland, and visits the Navy Lakehurst Historical Society in New Jersey to see whether this swatch of reflective material ever orbited the earth. Our contributor inherited a peculiar object from his father: a jerry-rigged ski boot with a magnetic metal brick bolted to the bottom. In the 1960s, his father worked as an engineer for Westinghouse, which played a role in the space program. Could this be the prototype for a NASA space boot? The magnet seems to have several layers and wires weaving throughout. The heel of the boot contains a plug. A Florida art curator purchased a mysterious work of art at an online auction: a tiny ceramic chip with six images. The seller told him the tiny images were the works of several prominent artists, including Andy Warhol and Claes Oldenburg. He went on to say that they made this chip as a miniature art museum to attach to the Apollo 12 lunar module launched in November 1969. Did NASA actually deliver the artwork of Andy Warhol to the moon? History Detectives tracks down three eyewitnesses to this historic moment. Gwen Wright talks to the artist behind the miniature museum to learn the incredible story behind this idea and how they shrank the artwork to a minute chip. She meets with an Apollo 12 astronaut; and finally, she talks to the launch pad foreman for Apollo 12 to find out whether Andy Warhol's art went to the moon, and whether it might still be there.

"Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" explores the critical role that Miami played in the evolution of one of the most significant cultural figures of our time: Muhammad Ali (né Cassius Clay). The film chronicles Cassius Clay's arrival in Miami in the fall of 1960 (fresh from earning a gold medal in the Rome Olympics), his life in Overtown -- a neighborhood that was considered "Harlem South" and a vibrant center of black entertainment and commerce -- and his affiliation with the famed Fifth Street Gym in Miami Beach. Over the course of the next few years -- coinciding with the height of the national civil rights movement -- Clay evolved both professionally and politically, piling up victories in the ring and adopting the black separatist teachings of the Nation of Islam. As "Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" makes clear, it was in this period that Cassius Clay became Muhammad Ali.

Out in America, a one-hour documentary event, will deliver a compelling, multi-layered portrait of LGBT Americans through their own words and experiences. The film will connect the common themes running through numerous personal stories about growing up, coming out, nurturing relationships, overcoming social and familial challenges, fighting discrimination and HIV, and achieving individual status and respect in America. From the bi-racial Washington, D.C. couple in their 80s who have been together for 50 years to the 19-year-old Puerto Rican man from Harlem; from the 25-year-old raised in small town Texas to the transgender police officer in California, we'll talk to lesbians, gay men, bisexuals and transgender persons from across the nation.

His standing among the most enduring 20th-century American musical artists is without question, yet his story is rarely told beyond the tragic circumstances of his death. Enormously talented and equally complicated, Gaye created an intimate style - full of honesty, integrity, vulnerability - and, essentially, gave the world his autobiography in lyrics and melody. "The Wonderful One," "The Trouble Man," "The Prince of Soul" -- he was the Motown star who challenged and changed the face of black music, embodying its evolution from roots in gospel, jazz and rhythm and blues to sophisticated pop and sexually, politically charged soul. Extensive performance footage and insight from Mary Wilson, Smokey Robinson, Gladys Knight, Mos Def, among many others, capture the tone and texture of a career that still leaves an indelible mark on the musical landscape.

This week, we sit down with New York Times columnist Joe Nocera, who recently reported on the case of Charlie Engle, a marathon runner who served jail time after being convicted of lying on a mortgage application. Nocera questions why borrowers like Engle are being prosecuted while lenders responsible for the subprime mortgage crisis still have not faced punishment.

Also: Alison Stewart speaks with PBS talk show host Tavis Smiley about his new book "Fail Up: 20 Lessons on Building Success from Failure." We also visit a music school in Chicago that is providing free lessons to fill the gap left by budget cuts in music education in public schools.

And: Jon Meacham comments on transparency in corporate political donations.

This week on Need to Know, we investigate a task force in the U.S. military charged with investigating abuse of detainees in Iraq after the harrowing revelations of Abu Ghraib came to light. One special agent alleges that the task force is under-resourced and overwhelmed, which prevents it from being able to function adequately.

We also look at the structure of the telecommunications industry and competition in Europe, and how it has propelled the region ahead of the U.S. in terms of broadband service. We also report on how the humanitarian community has used mobile technology to aid people in times of crisis, and how it has been used to help victims of the earthquakes in Haiti and Japan, the tornadoes in the Midwest and the unrest in the Middle East.

And: Alison Stewart speaks with "Freedom Riders" Francis and Laura Randall, who took part in protests against Jim Crow laws in the deep south 50 years ago, and Jon Meacham's "In Perspective" essay honors the long career of Defense Secretary Robert Gates, who retires this year.

"We were never concerned with who killed Martin Luther King, but what killed Martin Luther King," says former King aide Andrew Young in this film, which tells the wildly disparate yet fatefully entwined stories of an assassin, James Earl Ray, and his target, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., against the backdrop of the seething and turbulent forces in American society that led these two men to their violent and tragic collision in Memphis, Tennessee, on April 4, 1968. Based on a forthcoming book by Hampton Sides (Ghost Soldiers), the program relies on eyewitness testimony from King's inner circle and the officials involved in Ray's capture and prosecution following an intense two-month international manhunt.

THE LORD IS NOT ON TRIAL HERE TODAY tells the compelling personal story behind one of the most important and landmark First Amendment cases in U.S. Supreme Court history, the case that set the foundation for the separation of church and state in public schools. The film recounts what Vasti McCollum later described as "three years of headlines, headaches, and hatred," but which eventually led to a decision that still resonates in the church-state conflicts of today, 60 years after the original decision in McCollum vs. Board of Education.

This week, we sit down with New York Times columnist Joe Nocera, who recently reported on the case of Charlie Engle, a marathon runner who served jail time after being convicted of lying on a mortgage application. Nocera questions why borrowers like Engle are being prosecuted while lenders responsible for the subprime mortgage crisis still have not faced punishment.

Also: Alison Stewart speaks with PBS talk show host Tavis Smiley about his new book "Fail Up: 20 Lessons on Building Success from Failure." We also visit a music school in Chicago that is providing free lessons to fill the gap left by budget cuts in music education in public schools.

And: Jon Meacham comments on transparency in corporate political donations.

For nearly 100 years, Kamaka and Sons, from their tiny shop in Honolulu, have crafted the diminutive instrument that has become the gold standard for 'ukuleles worldwide. This program is a Hawaiian story about age-old values of hard work, fortitude, honesty and creativity from a distinctly Hawaiian point of view. Rooted in such concepts as aloha (unconditional love), malama (to serve and care for) and pono (doing what's right), this film offers insight into this family of businessmen and artists and how they work together to preserve the family tradition of success and artistry.

THE LORD IS NOT ON TRIAL HERE TODAY tells the compelling personal story behind one of the most important and landmark First Amendment cases in U.S. Supreme Court history, the case that set the foundation for the separation of church and state in public schools. The film recounts what Vasti McCollum later described as "three years of headlines, headaches, and hatred," but which eventually led to a decision that still resonates in the church-state conflicts of today, 60 years after the original decision in McCollum vs. Board of Education.

This film investigates the parallel stories of collapsing Pacific salmon populations and how biologists and engineers engaged in audacious experiments to shore up their numbers. Each of our efforts to save salmon has involved replacing their natural cycle of reproduction and death with a radically manipulated life history. Our once great runs of salmon are now conceived in laboratories, raised in tanks, driven in trucks and farmed in pens. The program goes beyond the ongoing debate over how to save an endangered species. In its exposure of a wildly creative, hopelessly complex and stunningly expensive approach to managing salmon, the film explores possible paths to salmon recovery.

This week on Need to Know, we investigate a task force in the U.S. military charged with investigating abuse of detainees in Iraq after the harrowing revelations of Abu Ghraib came to light. One special agent alleges that the task force is under-resourced and overwhelmed, which prevents it from being able to function adequately.

We also look at the structure of the telecommunications industry and competition in Europe, and how it has propelled the region ahead of the U.S. in terms of broadband service. We also report on how the humanitarian community has used mobile technology to aid people in times of crisis, and how it has been used to help victims of the earthquakes in Haiti and Japan, the tornadoes in the Midwest and the unrest in the Middle East.

And: Alison Stewart speaks with "Freedom Riders" Francis and Laura Randall, who took part in protests against Jim Crow laws in the deep south 50 years ago, and Jon Meacham's "In Perspective" essay honors the long career of Defense Secretary Robert Gates, who retires this year.

When Mount St. Helens erupted in 1980, every living thing in the blast zone was buried beneath 300 feet of avalanche debris, covered with steaming mud, and finally, topped with a superheated layer of frothy rock from deep within the earth. It seemed as though Mount St. Helens might remain a wasteland forever. When biologist Charlie Crisafulli first flew over the disaster zone, finding no sign of life, little did he realize that his own life would be forever changed. Crisafulli has remained at the site for 27 years, documenting the dramatic return of plant and animal life to the barren landscape and pioneering a new understanding of the interaction between geologic forces and the life surrounding the mountain. NOVA brings viewers on an inspiring journey of a landscape brought back from the dead.

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout - one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

His standing among the most enduring 20th-century American musical artists is without question, yet his story is rarely told beyond the tragic circumstances of his death. Enormously talented and equally complicated, Gaye created an intimate style - full of honesty, integrity, vulnerability - and, essentially, gave the world his autobiography in lyrics and melody. "The Wonderful One," "The Trouble Man," "The Prince of Soul" -- he was the Motown star who challenged and changed the face of black music, embodying its evolution from roots in gospel, jazz and rhythm and blues to sophisticated pop and sexually, politically charged soul. Extensive performance footage and insight from Mary Wilson, Smokey Robinson, Gladys Knight, Mos Def, among many others, capture the tone and texture of a career that still leaves an indelible mark on the musical landscape.

LOS NINOS EN SU CASA is the Spanish-language companion to the English-language series A PLACE OF OUR OWN. Both series are designed for parents and anyone else who takes care of young children: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The series covers subjects such as tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, and speech and language delays. These Peabody Award-winning series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help children be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

This week on Need to Know, we look at the State Department's recent suspension of international adoption of abandoned children in Nepal. We traveled to Nepal to meet with Americans who had adopted children there but were unable to bring them home.

Also, in the wake of Osama bin Laden's death this week, we explore the financial cost of the war on terror and America's efforts to prioritize security after the events of September 11, 2001. Princeton University professor Bernard Haykel also joins us to discuss the Arab world's reaction to bin Laden's death, arguing that it is not the end of jihadism, and Jon Meacham comments on opportunities his death could provide for the U.S.'s national agenda. Read more of Need to Know's coverage of Osama bin Laden's death.

And: Alison Stewart moderates a panel of three women on the economic, political and legal status of women today, including the fight over reproductive rights. And New Yorker cartoonist Roz Chast provides an animation for a unique take on the story of the Ant and the Grasshopper.

This documentary examines a classic Nazi propaganda film used by historians for decades to provide insight into the realities of life in the Warsaw Ghetto in 1942. The recent discovery of a second reel in an East German archive has thrown the veracity and intent of the Ghetto footage into question. It becomes clear as film and war historians examine the outtakes reel that Nazi propagandists and the SA had staged elaborate scenes to mislead the general public about what was really happening in Warsaw.

"We were never concerned with who killed Martin Luther King, but what killed Martin Luther King," says former King aide Andrew Young in this film, which tells the wildly disparate yet fatefully entwined stories of an assassin, James Earl Ray, and his target, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., against the backdrop of the seething and turbulent forces in American society that led these two men to their violent and tragic collision in Memphis, Tennessee, on April 4, 1968. Based on a forthcoming book by Hampton Sides (Ghost Soldiers), the program relies on eyewitness testimony from King's inner circle and the officials involved in Ray's capture and prosecution following an intense two-month international manhunt.

His standing among the most enduring 20th-century American musical artists is without question, yet his story is rarely told beyond the tragic circumstances of his death. Enormously talented and equally complicated, Gaye created an intimate style - full of honesty, integrity, vulnerability - and, essentially, gave the world his autobiography in lyrics and melody. "The Wonderful One," "The Trouble Man," "The Prince of Soul" -- he was the Motown star who challenged and changed the face of black music, embodying its evolution from roots in gospel, jazz and rhythm and blues to sophisticated pop and sexually, politically charged soul. Extensive performance footage and insight from Mary Wilson, Smokey Robinson, Gladys Knight, Mos Def, among many others, capture the tone and texture of a career that still leaves an indelible mark on the musical landscape.

"Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" explores the critical role that Miami played in the evolution of one of the most significant cultural figures of our time: Muhammad Ali (né Cassius Clay). The film chronicles Cassius Clay's arrival in Miami in the fall of 1960 (fresh from earning a gold medal in the Rome Olympics), his life in Overtown -- a neighborhood that was considered "Harlem South" and a vibrant center of black entertainment and commerce -- and his affiliation with the famed Fifth Street Gym in Miami Beach. Over the course of the next few years -- coinciding with the height of the national civil rights movement -- Clay evolved both professionally and politically, piling up victories in the ring and adopting the black separatist teachings of the Nation of Islam. As "Muhammad Ali: Made in Miami" makes clear, it was in this period that Cassius Clay became Muhammad Ali.

This week on Need to Know, we look at the State Department's recent suspension of international adoption of abandoned children in Nepal. We traveled to Nepal to meet with Americans who had adopted children there but were unable to bring them home.

Also, in the wake of Osama bin Laden's death this week, we explore the financial cost of the war on terror and America's efforts to prioritize security after the events of September 11, 2001. Princeton University professor Bernard Haykel also joins us to discuss the Arab world's reaction to bin Laden's death, arguing that it is not the end of jihadism, and Jon Meacham comments on opportunities his death could provide for the U.S.'s national agenda. Read more of Need to Know's coverage of Osama bin Laden's death.

And: Alison Stewart moderates a panel of three women on the economic, political and legal status of women today, including the fight over reproductive rights. And New Yorker cartoonist Roz Chast provides an animation for a unique take on the story of the Ant and the Grasshopper.

The Death of Osama Bin Laden: Watch our discussion of ethical questions raised by the killing of Osama Bin Laden, as well as religious responses to his death and its impact on US relations with the Muslim world. Brother Paul Quenon, who was inspired to write by his mentor Thomas Merton, says "the purpose of the monastic life in the modern world is to show that we don't need a purpose. The purpose of life is life." Holy Relics: Praying with the relics of a saint, says Walters Art Museum curator Martina Bagnoli, was "a kind of way of channeling your prayer to heaven."

Fistula Hospital: Millions of women in the developing world suffer from obstetric fistulas and are outcasts in their societies, but a medical missionary from Australia has spent much of her life working to eradicate the condition. Eugene Peterson: "You enter into the soul, the spirit of somebody else by listening to them, not by telling them something," according to this retired Presbyterian minister who says he misses the intimacy that comes with pastoral ministry. James Carroll on Jerusalem: Christians, Jews, and Muslims have a sacred connection to the city of Jerusalem, says author James Carroll, and "that sacred connection, even though at the present moment it's a source of contention, is actually a profound source of union."

This film investigates the parallel stories of collapsing Pacific salmon populations and how biologists and engineers engaged in audacious experiments to shore up their numbers. Each of our efforts to save salmon has involved replacing their natural cycle of reproduction and death with a radically manipulated life history. Our once great runs of salmon are now conceived in laboratories, raised in tanks, driven in trucks and farmed in pens. The program goes beyond the ongoing debate over how to save an endangered species. In its exposure of a wildly creative, hopelessly complex and stunningly expensive approach to managing salmon, the film explores possible paths to salmon recovery.

This week on Need to Know, we investigate a task force in the U.S. military charged with investigating abuse of detainees in Iraq after the harrowing revelations of Abu Ghraib came to light. One special agent alleges that the task force is under-resourced and overwhelmed, which prevents it from being able to function adequately.

We also look at the structure of the telecommunications industry and competition in Europe, and how it has propelled the region ahead of the U.S. in terms of broadband service. We also report on how the humanitarian community has used mobile technology to aid people in times of crisis, and how it has been used to help victims of the earthquakes in Haiti and Japan, the tornadoes in the Midwest and the unrest in the Middle East.

And: Alison Stewart speaks with "Freedom Riders" Francis and Laura Randall, who took part in protests against Jim Crow laws in the deep south 50 years ago, and Jon Meacham's "In Perspective" essay honors the long career of Defense Secretary Robert Gates, who retires this year.

Perched atop a mountain crest, mysteriously abandoned more than four centuries ago, Machu Picchu is the most famous archeological ruin in the Western hemisphere and an iconic symbol of the power and engineering prowess of the Inca. In the years since Machu Picchu was discovered by Hiram Bingham in 1911, there have been countless theories about this "Lost City of the Incas," yet it remains an enigma. Why did the Incas build it on such an inaccessible site, clinging to the steep face of a mountain? Who lived among its stone buildings, farmed its emerald green terraces, and drank from its sophisticated aqueduct system? NOVA joins a new generation of archeologists as they probe areas of Machu Picchu that haven't been touched since the time of the Incas and unearth burials of the people who built the sacred site. "Ghosts of Machu Picchu" explores the trail of clues that began on that fateful day in 1911 and continues to the present.

When Mount St. Helens erupted in 1980, every living thing in the blast zone was buried beneath 300 feet of avalanche debris, covered with steaming mud, and finally, topped with a superheated layer of frothy rock from deep within the earth. It seemed as though Mount St. Helens might remain a wasteland forever. When biologist Charlie Crisafulli first flew over the disaster zone, finding no sign of life, little did he realize that his own life would be forever changed. Crisafulli has remained at the site for 27 years, documenting the dramatic return of plant and animal life to the barren landscape and pioneering a new understanding of the interaction between geologic forces and the life surrounding the mountain. NOVA brings viewers on an inspiring journey of a landscape brought back from the dead.

The extraordinary story of China's 8,000 terracotta warriors begins two centuries before the birth of Christ. The First Emperor of China was preparing an extravagant tomb for his journey into the afterlife -- and decreed that he be protected forever by a monumental army. Since then no one has seen these ancient warriors in their original splendor, brightly painted and fully armed, ready to protect their Emperor for all eternity. Now this once mighty army will be returned to its former glory for the first time. Row upon row of life-size, lavishly painted warriors will rise from the dust of two millennia. But how was a terracotta army of this size made in less than two years using the technology of 2,200 years ago? Led by archaeologist Agnes Hsu, the investigation shows that the Chinese may have Henry Ford beat by more than 2,000 years with their own assembly line used to produce the 8,000-strong terracotta army. After the revelation of what the army really looked like when it was buried, biometric analysis to find out if these clay soldiers were individually modeled on living men. The tantalizing possibility is that the warriors are the actual representations of the warriors who served the Emperor in life and then became part of his Spirit Army.

In the aftermath of the killing of Osama bin Laden, FRONTLINE presents two inside views of the fight against al Qaeda and the Taliban. First, Afghan journalist Najibullah Quraishi--who reported last year's award-winning FRONTLINE film "Behind Taliban Lines"--once again journeys deep inside enemy territory. This time, he gains extraordinary access to a band of militants and foreign fighters in Afghanistan who say they're loyal to bin Laden and are readying a Spring offensive against the U.S. Then, FRONTLINE crosses the border into Pakistan, where correspondents Stephen Grey and Martin Smith go inside "The Secret War" against the militants. They uncover new details of a CIA "private army" of militiamen launching kill raids against al Qaeda and the Taliban inside Pakistan. They also find new evidence of covert support for elements of the Taliban by the Pakistani military and its intelligence service, the ISI. At a safe house not far from where bin Laden was killed, they make contact with one mid-level Taliban commander who tells FRONTLINE, "If they really wanted to, [the Pakistanis] could arrest us all in an hour."

Behind the strike that killed Osama bin Laden was one of the U.S. military's best-kept secrets: a covert campaign that officials have credited with taking out thousands of Taliban and Al Qaeda fighters. A six-month investigation by FRONTLINE has gone inside the military's "kill/capture" operations to discover new evidence of the program's impact -- and its costs. Under the command of Gen. David Petraeus, U.S. forces are carrying out an unprecedented number of targeted raids using highly classified intelligence, aerial drones and Special Operations Forces. But is the tactic working? In interviews with Gen. Petraeus, his senior commanders and, in rare footage with Taliban leaders and fighters, FRONTLINE producers Dan Edge (The Wounded Platoon) and Stephen Grey (Extraordinary Rendition) explore the logic behind the kill/capture policy and its consequences. Traveling into the lawless border regions of Afghanistan and Pakistan, FRONTLINE tells the story from the perspective of Afghan civilians, U.S. troops and the Taliban militants they are pursuing. After almost 10 years of fighting, this film examines the question: will kill/capture help end the war in Afghanistan?

This documentary examines a classic Nazi propaganda film used by historians for decades to provide insight into the realities of life in the Warsaw Ghetto in 1942. The recent discovery of a second reel in an East German archive has thrown the veracity and intent of the Ghetto footage into question. It becomes clear as film and war historians examine the outtakes reel that Nazi propagandists and the SA had staged elaborate scenes to mislead the general public about what was really happening in Warsaw.

This week on Need to Know, we look at the State Department's recent suspension of international adoption of abandoned children in Nepal. We traveled to Nepal to meet with Americans who had adopted children there but were unable to bring them home.

Also, in the wake of Osama bin Laden's death this week, we explore the financial cost of the war on terror and America's efforts to prioritize security after the events of September 11, 2001. Princeton University professor Bernard Haykel also joins us to discuss the Arab world's reaction to bin Laden's death, arguing that it is not the end of jihadism, and Jon Meacham comments on opportunities his death could provide for the U.S.'s national agenda. Read more of Need to Know's coverage of Osama bin Laden's death.

And: Alison Stewart moderates a panel of three women on the economic, political and legal status of women today, including the fight over reproductive rights. And New Yorker cartoonist Roz Chast provides an animation for a unique take on the story of the Ant and the Grasshopper.

This week on Need to Know, we investigate a task force in the U.S. military charged with investigating abuse of detainees in Iraq after the harrowing revelations of Abu Ghraib came to light. One special agent alleges that the task force is under-resourced and overwhelmed, which prevents it from being able to function adequately.

We also look at the structure of the telecommunications industry and competition in Europe, and how it has propelled the region ahead of the U.S. in terms of broadband service. We also report on how the humanitarian community has used mobile technology to aid people in times of crisis, and how it has been used to help victims of the earthquakes in Haiti and Japan, the tornadoes in the Midwest and the unrest in the Middle East.

And: Alison Stewart speaks with "Freedom Riders" Francis and Laura Randall, who took part in protests against Jim Crow laws in the deep south 50 years ago, and Jon Meacham's "In Perspective" essay honors the long career of Defense Secretary Robert Gates, who retires this year.

Fistula Hospital: Millions of women in the developing world suffer from obstetric fistulas and are outcasts in their societies, but a medical missionary from Australia has spent much of her life working to eradicate the condition. Eugene Peterson: "You enter into the soul, the spirit of somebody else by listening to them, not by telling them something," according to this retired Presbyterian minister who says he misses the intimacy that comes with pastoral ministry. James Carroll on Jerusalem: Christians, Jews, and Muslims have a sacred connection to the city of Jerusalem, says author James Carroll, and "that sacred connection, even though at the present moment it's a source of contention, is actually a profound source of union."

This week, we sit down with New York Times columnist Joe Nocera, who recently reported on the case of Charlie Engle, a marathon runner who served jail time after being convicted of lying on a mortgage application. Nocera questions why borrowers like Engle are being prosecuted while lenders responsible for the subprime mortgage crisis still have not faced punishment.

Also: Alison Stewart speaks with PBS talk show host Tavis Smiley about his new book "Fail Up: 20 Lessons on Building Success from Failure." We also visit a music school in Chicago that is providing free lessons to fill the gap left by budget cuts in music education in public schools.

And: Jon Meacham comments on transparency in corporate political donations.

This week on Need to Know, we look at the State Department's recent suspension of international adoption of abandoned children in Nepal. We traveled to Nepal to meet with Americans who had adopted children there but were unable to bring them home.

Also, in the wake of Osama bin Laden's death this week, we explore the financial cost of the war on terror and America's efforts to prioritize security after the events of September 11, 2001. Princeton University professor Bernard Haykel also joins us to discuss the Arab world's reaction to bin Laden's death, arguing that it is not the end of jihadism, and Jon Meacham comments on opportunities his death could provide for the U.S.'s national agenda. Read more of Need to Know's coverage of Osama bin Laden's death.

And: Alison Stewart moderates a panel of three women on the economic, political and legal status of women today, including the fight over reproductive rights. And New Yorker cartoonist Roz Chast provides an animation for a unique take on the story of the Ant and the Grasshopper.

Speed. Meth. Glass. On the street, methamphetamine has many names. What started as a fad among motorcycle gangs in the 1970s has become big business, largely due to the efforts of two Mexican drug runners who began smuggling ephedrine -- the same chemical used to make over-the-counter cold remedies -- into California by the ton. Hundreds of illegal meth labs are now operating in the western United States, and the effects are sweeping the nation. From coast to coast, meth abuse is on the rise, but who's responsible? Is the government doing enough to crack down on this latest drug craze? In a reporting partnership with The Oregonian, FRONTLINE investigates America's addiction to meth and exposes the inherent conflict between the illegal drug trade and the legitimate three-billion-dollar cold remedy business.

J. Robert Oppenheimer's life and legacy are inextricably linked to America's most famous top-secret initiative - the Manhattan Project. But after World War II, this brilliant and intense scientist, tasked with the development of the atomic bomb and widely considered one of the most important minds of the 20th century, fell from the innermost circles of American science. At the height of the Red Scare, the veil of suspicion fell over Oppenheimer. He was accused of having communist sympathies and was pressed to explain his relationships with known communists. This biography presents a complex and revealing portrait of one of America's most influential scientists.

Interweaving interviews with family members, scholars and colleagues with dramatic re-creations featuring Academy Award-nominated actor David Strathairn ("Good Night, and Good Luck" and "The Bourne Ultimatum"), this film follows Oppenheimer's fascinating arc from the heady world of international physics to the top-secret Manhattan Project and finally to the dark days of the Red Scare and McCarthyism. Campbell Scott narrates.

In 1961, segregation seemed to have an overwhelming grip on American society. Many states violently enforced the policy, while the federal government, under the Kennedy administration, remained indifferent, preoccupied with matters abroad. That is, until an integrated band of college students -- many of whom were the first in their families to attend a university -- decided, en masse, to risk everything and buy a ticket on a Greyhound bus bound for the Deep South. They called themselves the Freedom Riders, and they managed to bring the president and the entire American public face to face with the challenge of correcting civil-rights inequities that plagued the nation. Filmmaker Stanley Nelson's inspirational documentary is the first feature-length film about this courageous band of civil-rights activists. Gaining access to influential figures on both sides of the issue, Nelson chronicles a chapter of American history that stands as an astonishing testament to the accomplishment of youth and what can result from the incredible combination of personal conviction and the courage to organize against all odds.

This episode looks at the ways many craft artists go beyond skill to personal and political expression. They use craft to tell a story, prove a point, or bring attention to contemporary issues. Often their work is passionate and provocative. The artists selected for "Messages" express many different interests and points of view, but they have one thing in common: their skill and creativity are of the highest level.

Wisconsin glass artist Beth Lipman explores the symbolism of 17th century still life paintings through glimmering creations. New Mexico santero Charles Carrillo uses authentic materials to combine historic religious subject matter with contemporary culture. Baltimore quilter, sculptor, and performance artist Joyce J. Scott learned quilting and beading from her mother and draws from references as wide-ranging as Africa and comic books to focus on issues such as race and stereotyping. New Orleans metal and jewelry artist Thomas Mann is famous for his "Techno-Romantic" designs. He created a series of works called Storm Cycle of wall panels and accompanying brooches that document his beloved city after Hurricane Katrina.

This week, we explore the threats that climate change may already be posing to human health. We report on a rare but deadly fungal disease, previously known to occur only in tropical and subtropical regions, that has recently led to several deaths in the Pacific Northwest. Scientists believe climate change may have already affected the spread of other diseases like West Nile virus and dengue fever.

Also: We revisit the Upper Big Branch coal mining disaster, one year later, to find out the results of the investigation into the cause of the explosion. We also take a look at the sophisticated and alarming Stuxnet worm, the first major manifestation of a physical cyber attack that targeted an Iranian uranium enrichment facility last year.

And: We speak with John Esposito of Georgetown University on President Obama's attempt to redefine the U.S.'s relationship with the Middle East in light of the Arab Spring, and Jon Meacham returns with another "In Perspective" essay.

In recent weeks, many U.S. cities have experienced massive devastation from one of the deadliest tornado seasons in decades. This week on Need to Know, we explore whether climate change has played a significant role. We also feature the story of one Iraq War veteran, Scott Winkler, whose war injury led him to take up paralympic sports, become a world-class athlete and help his fellow soldiers.

Also: Earlier this year, we featured a look at Detroit's plan to "right-size" the city, using financial incentives to entice residents to move. Continuing with our "Shrinking Cities" series, this week we visit Youngstown, Ohio, a city trying to cope with population loss and abandoned buildings by revitalizing itself on a smaller scale.

And: Alison Stewart interviews New York Times East Africa Bureau Chief Jeffrey Gettleman on Libyans' attitudes toward Col. Moammar Gadhafi and the political outlook for Africa's newest country, South Sudan.

In 1961, segregation seemed to have an overwhelming grip on American society. Many states violently enforced the policy, while the federal government, under the Kennedy administration, remained indifferent, preoccupied with matters abroad. That is, until an integrated band of college students -- many of whom were the first in their families to attend a university -- decided, en masse, to risk everything and buy a ticket on a Greyhound bus bound for the Deep South. They called themselves the Freedom Riders, and they managed to bring the president and the entire American public face to face with the challenge of correcting civil-rights inequities that plagued the nation. Filmmaker Stanley Nelson's inspirational documentary is the first feature-length film about this courageous band of civil-rights activists. Gaining access to influential figures on both sides of the issue, Nelson chronicles a chapter of American history that stands as an astonishing testament to the accomplishment of youth and what can result from the incredible combination of personal conviction and the courage to organize against all odds.

Speed. Meth. Glass. On the street, methamphetamine has many names. What started as a fad among motorcycle gangs in the 1970s has become big business, largely due to the efforts of two Mexican drug runners who began smuggling ephedrine -- the same chemical used to make over-the-counter cold remedies -- into California by the ton. Hundreds of illegal meth labs are now operating in the western United States, and the effects are sweeping the nation. From coast to coast, meth abuse is on the rise, but who's responsible? Is the government doing enough to crack down on this latest drug craze? In a reporting partnership with The Oregonian, FRONTLINE investigates America's addiction to meth and exposes the inherent conflict between the illegal drug trade and the legitimate three-billion-dollar cold remedy business.

It's the biggest intelligence breach in U.S. history-the leaking of more than half-a-million classified documents on the Wikileaks website in the spring of 2010. Behind it all, stand two very different men: Julian Assange, the Internet activist and hacker who published the documents, and an Army intelligence analyst named Bradley E. Manning, who's currently charged with handing them over. Private Manning allegedly leaked the secret cables-along with a controversial video-in the hope of inciting "worldwide discussion, debates and reforms." Assange's stated mission has been to force the U.S. and other governments into maximum transparency through his whistle-blowing website. Through in-depth interviews with Manning's father, Assange, and others close to the case, veteran FRONTLINE correspondent Martin Smith tells the full story behind the leaks. He also reports on the U.S. government's struggle to protect national security information in a post 9/11 world.

This episode looks at the ways many craft artists go beyond skill to personal and political expression. They use craft to tell a story, prove a point, or bring attention to contemporary issues. Often their work is passionate and provocative. The artists selected for "Messages" express many different interests and points of view, but they have one thing in common: their skill and creativity are of the highest level.

Wisconsin glass artist Beth Lipman explores the symbolism of 17th century still life paintings through glimmering creations. New Mexico santero Charles Carrillo uses authentic materials to combine historic religious subject matter with contemporary culture. Baltimore quilter, sculptor, and performance artist Joyce J. Scott learned quilting and beading from her mother and draws from references as wide-ranging as Africa and comic books to focus on issues such as race and stereotyping. New Orleans metal and jewelry artist Thomas Mann is famous for his "Techno-Romantic" designs. He created a series of works called Storm Cycle of wall panels and accompanying brooches that document his beloved city after Hurricane Katrina.

LOS NINOS EN SU CASA is a Spanish-language companion to the English-language series A PLACE OF OUR OWN. Both shows are designed for parents or anyone else who takes care of young kids: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The shows cover subjects such as tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, speech and language delays. These series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help kids be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

This episode looks at the ways many craft artists go beyond skill to personal and political expression. They use craft to tell a story, prove a point, or bring attention to contemporary issues. Often their work is passionate and provocative. The artists selected for "Messages" express many different interests and points of view, but they have one thing in common: their skill and creativity are of the highest level.

Wisconsin glass artist Beth Lipman explores the symbolism of 17th century still life paintings through glimmering creations. New Mexico santero Charles Carrillo uses authentic materials to combine historic religious subject matter with contemporary culture. Baltimore quilter, sculptor, and performance artist Joyce J. Scott learned quilting and beading from her mother and draws from references as wide-ranging as Africa and comic books to focus on issues such as race and stereotyping. New Orleans metal and jewelry artist Thomas Mann is famous for his "Techno-Romantic" designs. He created a series of works called Storm Cycle of wall panels and accompanying brooches that document his beloved city after Hurricane Katrina.

Millions of rhinos once roamed the Earth. There were hundreds of species of all shapes and sizes. But today, the rhinoceros is one of the planet's rarest animals, with three of its species on the brink of extinction. While there's still a chance to save them, teams of rhino experts work to protect them from poachers, relocate them to better habitats and breed them in captivity.

Bears are an ultimate icon of the wild, regarded as among the most successful wild animals on the planet. Three of the eight bear species in the world--brown bears, black bears, and polar bears--can be found in Alaska, one of North America's last truly wild frontiers. Nature joins adventurer and bear biologist Chris Morgan on a year-long motorcycle odyssey deep into Alaska's bear country to explore the amazing resiliency and adaptability of these majestic animals as they struggle to make a living in five dramatically diverse Alaskan ecosystems: coastal, urban, mountain, tundra, and pack ice.

This week, we explore the threats that climate change may already be posing to human health. We report on a rare but deadly fungal disease, previously known to occur only in tropical and subtropical regions, that has recently led to several deaths in the Pacific Northwest. Scientists believe climate change may have already affected the spread of other diseases like West Nile virus and dengue fever.

Also: We revisit the Upper Big Branch coal mining disaster, one year later, to find out the results of the investigation into the cause of the explosion.

We also take a look at the sophisticated and alarming Stuxnet worm, the first major manifestation of a physical cyber attack that targeted an Iranian uranium enrichment facility last year.

And: We speak with John Esposito of Georgetown University on President Obama's attempt to redefine the U.S.'s relationship with the Middle East in light of the Arab Spring, and Jon Meacham returns with another "In Perspective" essay.

In recent weeks, many U.S. cities have experienced massive devastation from one of the deadliest tornado seasons in decades. This week on Need to Know, we explore whether climate change has played a significant role. We also feature the story of one Iraq War veteran, Scott Winkler, whose war injury led him to take up paralympic sports, become a world-class athlete and help his fellow soldiers.

Also: Earlier this year, we featured a look at Detroit's plan to "right-size" the city, using financial incentives to entice residents to move. Continuing with our "Shrinking Cities" series, this week we visit Youngstown, Ohio, a city trying to cope with population loss and abandoned buildings by revitalizing itself on a smaller scale.

And: Alison Stewart interviews New York Times East Africa Bureau Chief Jeffrey Gettleman on Libyans' attitudes toward Col. Moammar Gadhafi and the political outlook for Africa's newest country, South Sudan.

The world's oceans are in trouble. Warming seas and man-made pollutants are combining to unleash toxic algae blooms that are decimating whales, sea lions and other marine mammals. In a high-action film, NOVA explores this crisis through the exploits of Dr. Frances Gulland, a San Francisco veterinarian who runs the equivalent of a West Coast ER for marine mammals. On a typical day, listless sea lions flop on their sides, too exhausted to lift their heads. Others are agitated. Another chews obsessively on a flipper. They are all victims of a marine neurotoxin made by an organism that feeds on algae. Dr. Gulland is committed to saving these sick animals one at a time, but she is also desperately trying to figure out what's killing them.

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout - - one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

Filmmaker John Grabowska presents a lyrical interpretation of the sweeping geologic story of Yellowstone, the world's first and most famous national park. Formation of glaciers, mountain ranges and the gigantic caldera of a supervolcano provide the saga of this special place. Filmed over two years through all seasons, the film delves deeply into the significance behind the scenery and illuminates the intimate bonds between the landscape and biology - how Yellowstone's geology influences where life exists and how it evolves. A short concluding film, "Yellowstone's Cascade Corner," features the portion of Yellowstone extending across the southwestern border of Montana into Idaho.

LOS NINOS EN SU CASA is a Spanish-language companion to the English-language series A PLACE OF OUR OWN. Both shows are designed for parents or anyone else who takes care of young kids: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The shows cover subjects such as tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, speech and language delays. These series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help kids be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

This week, we explore the threats that climate change may already be posing to human health. We report on a rare but deadly fungal disease, previously known to occur only in tropical and subtropical regions, that has recently led to several deaths in the Pacific Northwest. Scientists believe climate change may have already affected the spread of other diseases like West Nile virus and dengue fever.

Also: We revisit the Upper Big Branch coal mining disaster, one year later, to find out the results of the investigation into the cause of the explosion. We also take a look at the sophisticated and alarming Stuxnet worm, the first major manifestation of a physical cyber attack that targeted an Iranian uranium enrichment facility last year.

And: We speak with John Esposito of Georgetown University on President Obama's attempt to redefine the U.S.'s relationship with the Middle East in light of the Arab Spring, and Jon Meacham returns with another "In Perspective" essay.

In recent weeks, many U.S. cities have experienced massive devastation from one of the deadliest tornado seasons in decades. This week on Need to Know, we explore whether climate change has played a significant role. We also feature the story of one Iraq War veteran, Scott Winkler, whose war injury led him to take up paralympic sports, become a world-class athlete and help his fellow soldiers.

Also: Earlier this year, we featured a look at Detroit's plan to "right-size" the city, using financial incentives to entice residents to move. Continuing with our "Shrinking Cities" series, this week we visit Youngstown, Ohio, a city trying to cope with population loss and abandoned buildings by revitalizing itself on a smaller scale.

And: Alison Stewart interviews New York Times East Africa Bureau Chief Jeffrey Gettleman on Libyans' attitudes toward Col. Moammar Gadhafi and the political outlook for Africa's newest country, South Sudan.

In 1961, segregation seemed to have an overwhelming grip on American society. Many states violently enforced the policy, while the federal government, under the Kennedy administration, remained indifferent, preoccupied with matters abroad. That is, until an integrated band of college students -- many of whom were the first in their families to attend a university -- decided, en masse, to risk everything and buy a ticket on a Greyhound bus bound for the Deep South. They called themselves the Freedom Riders, and they managed to bring the president and the entire American public face to face with the challenge of correcting civil-rights inequities that plagued the nation. Filmmaker Stanley Nelson's inspirational documentary is the first feature-length film about this courageous band of civil-rights activists. Gaining access to influential figures on both sides of the issue, Nelson chronicles a chapter of American history that stands as an astonishing testament to the accomplishment of youth and what can result from the incredible combination of personal conviction and the courage to organize against all odds.

LOS NINOS EN SU CASA is a Spanish-language companion to the English-language series A PLACE OF OUR OWN. Both shows are designed for parents or anyone else who takes care of young kids: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The shows cover subjects such as tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, speech and language delays. These series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help kids be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

In 1961, segregation seemed to have an overwhelming grip on American society. Many states violently enforced the policy, while the federal government, under the Kennedy administration, remained indifferent, preoccupied with matters abroad. That is, until an integrated band of college students -- many of whom were the first in their families to attend a university -- decided, en masse, to risk everything and buy a ticket on a Greyhound bus bound for the Deep South. They called themselves the Freedom Riders, and they managed to bring the president and the entire American public face to face with the challenge of correcting civil-rights inequities that plagued the nation. Filmmaker Stanley Nelson's inspirational documentary is the first feature-length film about this courageous band of civil-rights activists. Gaining access to influential figures on both sides of the issue, Nelson chronicles a chapter of American history that stands as an astonishing testament to the accomplishment of youth and what can result from the incredible combination of personal conviction and the courage to organize against all odds.

It's the biggest intelligence breach in U.S. history--the leaking of more than half-a-million classified documents on the Wikileaks website in the spring of 2010. Behind it all, stand two very different men: Julian Assange, the Internet activist and hacker who published the documents, and an Army intelligence analyst named Bradley E. Manning, who's currently charged with handing them over. Private Manning allegedly leaked the secret cables--along with a controversial video--in the hope of inciting "worldwide discussion, debates and reforms." Assange's stated mission has been to force the U.S. and other governments into maximum transparency through his whistle-blowing website. Through in-depth interviews with Manning's father, Assange, and others close to the case, veteran FRONTLINE correspondent Martin Smith tells the full story behind the leaks. He also reports on the U.S. government's struggle to protect national security information in a post 9/11 world.

This week, we explore the threats that climate change may already be posing to human health. We report on a rare but deadly fungal disease, previously known to occur only in tropical and subtropical regions, that has recently led to several deaths in the Pacific Northwest. Scientists believe climate change may have already affected the spread of other diseases like West Nile virus and dengue fever.

Also: We revisit the Upper Big Branch coal mining disaster, one year later, to find out the results of the investigation into the cause of the explosion. We also take a look at the sophisticated and alarming Stuxnet worm, the first major manifestation of a physical cyber attack that targeted an Iranian uranium enrichment facility last year.

And: We speak with John Esposito of Georgetown University on President Obama's attempt to redefine the U.S.'s relationship with the Middle East in light of the Arab Spring, and Jon Meacham returns with another "In Perspective" essay.

J. Robert Oppenheimer's life and legacy are inextricably linked to America's most famous top-secret initiative - the Manhattan Project. But after World War II, this brilliant and intense scientist, tasked with the development of the atomic bomb and widely considered one of the most important minds of the 20th century, fell from the innermost circles of American science. At the height of the Red Scare, the veil of suspicion fell over Oppenheimer. He was accused of having communist sympathies and was pressed to explain his relationships with known communists. This biography presents a complex and revealing portrait of one of America's most influential scientists. Interweaving interviews with family members, scholars and colleagues with dramatic re-creations featuring Academy Award-nominated actor David Strathairn ("Good Night, and Good Luck" and "The Bourne Ultimatum"), this film follows Oppenheimer's fascinating arc from the heady world of international physics to the top-secret Manhattan Project and finally to the dark days of the Red Scare and McCarthyism. Campbell Scott narrates.

This week, we explore the threats that climate change may already be posing to human health. We report on a rare but deadly fungal disease, previously known to occur only in tropical and subtropical regions, that has recently led to several deaths in the Pacific Northwest. Scientists believe climate change may have already affected the spread of other diseases like West Nile virus and dengue fever.

Also: We revisit the Upper Big Branch coal mining disaster, one year later, to find out the results of the investigation into the cause of the explosion. We also take a look at the sophisticated and alarming Stuxnet worm, the first major manifestation of a physical cyber attack that targeted an Iranian uranium enrichment facility last year.

And: We speak with John Esposito of Georgetown University on President Obama's attempt to redefine the U.S.'s relationship with the Middle East in light of the Arab Spring, and Jon Meacham returns with another "In Perspective" essay.

Beginning in the 1950s, American and Soviet scientists engaged in a dangerous race to see who could build and detonate the world's largest bomb. The results exceeded all expectations about how big a bomb could be built. This is a story where the United States led the way, but then left the field clear for the Soviet Union to break all records. Terrifyingly, the bomb-makers on both sides were flying blind as they pushed the technology far into unknown territory. The story of the race to build the world's biggest bomb has never been fully told. But this 50-year anniversary provides the perfect opportunity share this chilling story with the world.

This week on Need to Know, we explore whether climate change has played a significant role. We also feature the story of one Iraq War veteran, Scott Winkler, whose war injury led him to take up paralympic sports, become a world-class athlete and help his fellow soldiers.

Also: Earlier this year, we featured a look at Detroit's plan to "right-size" the city, using financial incentives to entice residents to move. Continuing with our "Shrinking Cities" series, this week we visit Youngstown, Ohio, a city trying to cope with population loss and abandoned buildings by revitalizing itself on a smaller scale.

And: Alison Stewart interviews New York Times East Africa Bureau Chief Jeffrey Gettleman on Libyans' attitudes toward Col. Moammar Gadhafi and the political outlook for Africa's newest country, South Sudan.

This episode looks at the ways many craft artists go beyond skill to personal and political expression. They use craft to tell a story, prove a point, or bring attention to contemporary issues. Often their work is passionate and provocative. The artists selected for "Messages" express many different interests and points of view, but they have one thing in common: their skill and creativity are of the highest level.

Wisconsin glass artist Beth Lipman explores the symbolism of 17th century still life paintings through glimmering creations. New Mexico santero Charles Carrillo uses authentic materials to combine historic religious subject matter with contemporary culture. Baltimore quilter, sculptor, and performance artist Joyce J. Scott learned quilting and beading from her mother and draws from references as wide-ranging as Africa and comic books to focus on issues such as race and stereotyping. New Orleans metal and jewelry artist Thomas Mann is famous for his "Techno-Romantic" designs. He created a series of works called Storm Cycle of wall panels and accompanying brooches that document his beloved city after Hurricane Katrina.

It's the biggest intelligence breach in U.S. history-the leaking of more than half-a-million classified documents on the Wikileaks website in the spring of 2010. Behind it all, stand two very different men: Julian Assange, the Internet activist and hacker who published the documents, and an Army intelligence analyst named Bradley E. Manning, who's currently charged with handing them over. Private Manning allegedly leaked the secret cables-along with a controversial video-in the hope of inciting "worldwide discussion, debates and reforms." Assange's stated mission has been to force the U.S. and other governments into maximum transparency through his whistle-blowing website. Through in-depth interviews with Manning's father, Assange, and others close to the case, veteran FRONTLINE correspondent Martin Smith tells the full story behind the leaks. He also reports on the U.S. government's struggle to protect national security information in a post 9/11 world.

This week, we explore the threats that climate change may already be posing to human health. We report on a rare but deadly fungal disease, previously known to occur only in tropical and subtropical regions, that has recently led to several deaths in the Pacific Northwest. Scientists believe climate change may have already affected the spread of other diseases like West Nile virus and dengue fever.

Also: We revisit the Upper Big Branch coal mining disaster, one year later, to find out the results of the investigation into the cause of the explosion. We also take a look at the sophisticated and alarming Stuxnet worm, the first major manifestation of a physical cyber attack that targeted an Iranian uranium enrichment facility last year.

And: We speak with John Esposito of Georgetown University on President Obama's attempt to redefine the U.S.'s relationship with the Middle East in light of the Arab Spring, and Jon Meacham returns with another "In Perspective" essay.

Erected by the ancient Greeks as a temple to Athena, the Parthenon has served as a church, a fortress, an ammunition dump, and the model for countless banks, courthouses, and museums across the world. It has been shot at, exploded, set on fire, rocked by earthquakes, looted for its magnificent sculptures, and subjected to restorations that have been termed "catastrophic." Surprisingly, despite much abuse and renown as an icon of Western civilization, the question of how the Parthenon was built has been largely ignored until recently. Thanks to the Greek government's $10 billion restoration program, scholars are finally probing the enigmas of its planning and construction. With unprecedented access, NOVA presents the inside story of the official restoration, which reaches far beyond the challenges and controversies of conserving one of the world's best-known buildings.

A magnificent trading vessel embarks on a royal expedition to a mysterious, treasure-laden land called Punt. Is this journey, intricately depicted on the wall of one of Egypt's most impressive temples, mere myth-or was it a reality? NOVA travels to the legendary temple, built some 3,500 years ago for the celebrated female pharaoh Hatshepsut, in search of answers to this tantalizing archeological mystery. Did Punt exist and, if so, where was it? Did the ancient Egyptians, who built elaborate barges to sail down the Nile, also have the expertise to embark on a long sea voyage? NOVA follows a team of archeologists and boat builders as they reconstruct the mighty vessel shown on the mysterious carving, and then finally launch it in to the Red Sea on a unique voyage of discovery.

The Great Sphinx is disappearing. It would not be the first time in its nearly 5,000-year-history that the sands of Egypt have buried this wonder of the ancient world, but today, the Sphinx confronts a threat far worse than blanketing by dunes. The face of the mysterious pharaoh is being sandblasted to oblivion, its features eroded beyond recognition by whipping winds, while its limestone lion's body is being dissolved by rising saltwater and sewage and shaken by planes, cars and construction. An international team of archeologists, architects and engineers, led by Zahi Hawass and Mark Lehner, is racing against time to save the Sphinx. With the aid of the most advanced digital 3D model ever constructed, they hope to save the Sphinx. Along the way, they'll also solve the riddles that have eluded the rescue missions of pharaohs, caesars and emperors for more than 3,000 years. What is the Sphinx and what did it symbolize? How was it built, when and by whom? NOVA follows the team to find out if they can reverse the destructive forces of man and nature to save this wonder of the ancient world.

The royal tomb of Pharaoh Psusennes I is one of the most spectacular of all the ancient Egyptian treasures - even more remarkable than that of Tutankhamen. So why hasn't the world heard about it? What mysteries does it contain? And what does it reveal about ancient Egypt? The tomb was discovered filled with lavish jewels and treasure almost by accident in 1939 by the French archaeologist Pierre Montet while he was excavating in northern Egypt. The royal burial chamber came as a complete surprise - no Egyptologist had anticipated a tomb of such grandeur in this area. Unfortunately, the tomb was found on the eve of World War II in Europe and attracted little attention. One of the most startling discoveries inside the tomb was the sarcophagus in which the body was held: It was made of silver with exquisite detail and craftsmanship. No other silver sarcophagus has ever been found and it is now recognized by many Egyptologists as one of the most exquisite artifacts of ancient Egypt ever to be found. The elaborate tribute within the tomb suggested it was the burial site of someone very important but as archaeologists, using the hieroglyphs inside the tomb, pieced together the identity of the pharaoh, they were left to wonder who Psusennes I was and why he received such grand treatment. The investigation reveals political intrigue, a lost city and a leader who united a country in turmoil and became the Silver Pharaoh.

In 2009 a team of marine archeologists carrying out a sonar survey of the seabed around the remote Italian island of Ventotene made an astonishing discovery. The wrecks of five ancient Roman ships were found in pristine condition, each one fully laden with exotic goods. Remarkably, much of the cargo remained exactly as the ancient Roman crews had loaded it, suggesting that these ships had not capsized but had gone to the bottom of the sea intact and upright. What happened to these ancient ships? What were they carrying and why had they traveled to this remote, rocky island in the first place? This summer (June 2010), the team is returning to Ventotene to investigate the wrecks, with the blessing of the Italian government. The island where this 'graveyard' of ships was found holds significance in ancient Roman history: Emperors banished defiant women into exile there. But as this was essentially a royal prison, an extravagant palace was built on the island to house the captive women. The massive underground galleries that supplied the villa with water can still be explored today. Their walls are still covered in the original Roman plaster. Were the ships carrying supplies to this island of exiled misery? Lost Ships of Rome follows the team as they explore the sites in detail, salvage artifacts and piece together the history of the ships and why they were lost at Ventotene two thousand years ago.

Beginning in the 1950s, American and Soviet scientists engaged in a dangerous race to see who could build and detonate the world's largest bomb. The results exceeded all expectations about how big a bomb could be built. This is a story where the United States led the way, but then left the field clear for the Soviet Union to break all records. Terrifyingly, the bomb-makers on both sides were flying blind as they pushed the technology far into unknown territory. The story of the race to build the world's biggest bomb has never been fully told. But this 50-year anniversary provides the perfect opportunity share this chilling story with the world.

In 1961, segregation seemed to have an overwhelming grip on American society. Many states violently enforced the policy, while the federal government, under the Kennedy administration, remained indifferent, preoccupied with matters abroad. That is, until an integrated band of college students -- many of whom were the first in their families to attend a university --decided, en masse, to risk everything and buy a ticket on a Greyhound bus bound for the Deep South. They called themselves the Freedom Riders, and they managed to bring the president and the entire American public face to face with the challenge of correcting civil-rights inequities that plagued the nation. Filmmaker Stanley Nelson's inspirational documentary is the first feature-length film about this courageous band of civil-rights activists. Gaining access to influential figures on both sides of the issue, Nelson chronicles a chapter of American history that stands as an astonishing testament to the accomplishment of youth and what can result from the incredible combination of personal conviction and the courage to organize against all odds.

J. Robert Oppenheimer's life and legacy are inextricably linked to America's most famous top-secret initiative - the Manhattan Project. But after World War II, this brilliant and intense scientist, tasked with the development of the atomic bomb and widely considered one of the most important minds of the 20th century, fell from the innermost circles of American science. At the height of the Red Scare, the veil of suspicion fell over Oppenheimer. He was accused of having communist sympathies and was pressed to explain his relationships with known communists. This biography presents a complex and revealing portrait of one of America's most influential scientists. Interweaving interviews with family members, scholars and colleagues with dramatic re-creations featuring Academy Award-nominated actor David Strathairn ("Good Night, and Good Luck" and "The Bourne Ultimatum"), this film follows Oppenheimer's fascinating arc from the heady world of international physics to the top-secret Manhattan Project and finally to the dark days of the Red Scare and McCarthyism. It's the biggest intelligence breach in U.S. history-the leaking of more than half-a-million classified documents on the Wikileaks website in the spring of 2010. Behind it all, stand two very different men: Julian Assange, the Internet activist and hacker who published the documents, and an Army intelligence analyst named Bradley E. Manning, who's currently charged with handing them over. Private Manning allegedly leaked the secret cables-along with a controversial video-in the hope of inciting "worldwide discussion, debates and reforms." Assange's stated mission has been to force the U.S. and other governments into maximum transparency through his whistle-blowing website. Through in-depth interviews with Manning's father, Assange, and others close to the case, veteran FRONTLINE correspondent Martin Smith tells the full story behind the leaks. He also reports on the U.S. government's struggle to protect national security information in a post 9/11 world.

This week, we explore the threats that climate change may already be posing to human health. We report on a rare but deadly fungal disease, previously known to occur only in tropical and subtropical regions, that has recently led to several deaths in the Pacific Northwest. Scientists believe climate change may have already affected the spread of other diseases like West Nile virus and dengue fever.

Also: We revisit the Upper Big Branch coal mining disaster, one year later, to find out the results of the investigation into the cause of the explosion. We also take a look at the sophisticated and alarming Stuxnet worm, the first major manifestation of a physical cyber attack that targeted an Iranian uranium enrichment facility last year.

And: We speak with John Esposito of Georgetown University on President Obama's attempt to redefine the U.S.'s relationship with the Middle East in light of the Arab Spring, and Jon Meacham returns with another "In Perspective" essay.

In recent weeks, many U.S. cities have experienced massive devastation from one of the deadliest tornado seasons in decades. This week on Need to Know, we explore whether climate change has played a significant role. We also feature the story of one Iraq War veteran, Scott Winkler, whose war injury led him to take up paralympic sports, become a world-class athlete and help his fellow soldiers.

Also: Earlier this year, we featured a look at Detroit's plan to "right-size" the city, using financial incentives to entice residents to move. Continuing with our "Shrinking Cities" series, this week we visit Youngstown, Ohio, a city trying to cope with population loss and abandoned buildings by revitalizing itself on a smaller scale.

And: Alison Stewart interviews New York Times East Africa Bureau Chief Jeffrey Gettleman on Libyans' attitudes toward Col. Moammar Gadhafi and the political outlook for Africa's newest country, South Sudan.

Beginning in the 1950s, American and Soviet scientists engaged in a dangerous race to see who could build and detonate the world's largest bomb. The results exceeded all expectations about how big a bomb could be built. This is a story where the United States led the way, but then left the field clear for the Soviet Union to break all records. Terrifyingly, the bomb-makers on both sides were flying blind as they pushed the technology far into unknown territory. The story of the race to build the world's biggest bomb has never been fully told. But this 50-year anniversary provides the perfect opportunity share this chilling story with the world.

In the 1970s, female East German athletes came out of nowhere to dominate international sport. But behind their success lay a secret, state-sponsored doping program that distributed untested steroids and male hormones to athletes as young as 12. Many of these girls had no knowledge that they were being doped, and now, as grown women (and men), their broken bodies and damaged psyches bear witness to the cruelty of a government that pursued international glory and gold at the expense of its most acclaimed citizens. "Doping for Gold" digs deep into the secretive Cold War world of East German athletes, examining what drugs were used, how they were distributed and what damage they did to many of the athletes who were forced to take them. The result creates a timely perspective on today's many doping scandals and reveals the truth behind the biggest and most horrifying state-sponsored doping program the world has ever known.

Why would a dedicated Cold Warrior throw away his career and his friends, and risk life in prison for a chance to help end the Vietnam War? In 1971, Daniel Ellsberg, a leading military planner, concluded that America's role in the war was based on decades of lies. He leaked the Pentagon Papers, 7,000 pages of top-secret documents, to The New York Times, a daring act of conscience that led to Watergate, President Nixon's resignation and the end of the Vietnam War. "The Most Dangerous Man in America," nominated for an Oscar®, is a gripping tale told by Ellsberg with a who's who of Vietnam- and Watergate-era figures. A co-production of ITVS in association with American Documentary|POV. By Judith Ehrlich and Rick Goldsmith. Based in part on the book Secrets: A Memoir of Vietnam and the Pentagon Papers by Daniel Ellsberg.

"Stonewall Uprising" explores the dramatic event that launched a worldwide rights movement. Told by those who took part, from drag queens and street hustlers to police detectives, journalists and a former mayor of New York, and featuring a rich trove of archival footage, this film revisits a time when homosexual acts were illegal throughout America, and homosexuality itself was seen as a form of mental illness. Hunted and often entrapped by undercover police in their hometowns, gays from around the U.S. began fleeing to New York in search of a sanctuary. Hounded there still by an aggressive police force, they found refuge in a Mafia-run gay bar in Greenwich Village, the Stonewall Inn. When police raided Stonewall on June 28, 1969, gay men and women did something they had not done before: they fought back. As the streets of New York erupted into violent protests and street demonstrations, the collective anger announced that the gay rights movement had arrived.

Chaco Canyon, located in northwest New Mexico, is perhaps the only site in the world constructed in an elaborate pattern that mirrors the yearly cycle of the sun and the 19-year cycle of the moon. How did an ancient civilization, with no known written language, arrange its buildings into a virtual celestial calendar, spanning an area roughly the size of Ireland? Why did this society, ancestors of today's Pueblo Indians, choose to establish the center of their world in the middle of such an arid, barren land? And why, after constructing buildings the size of the Roman Coliseum, did these same people deliberately seal them and abruptly leave? These enigmas have puzzled archaeologists for centuries. This program presents substantial evidence that the Chacoan people expressed a complex solar and lunar cosmology in their magnificent architecture. The discoveries documented in the film have transformed scientific understanding of this site -- one of the most elaborate and mysterious of ancient Native-American ruins -- and are revolutionizing perceptions of the Chacoan civilization. Robert Redford narrates.

Mark Oliver Everett, better known as E, is the lead singer of U.S. cult band the EELS. What most of his fans don't know is that Mark's father, Hugh Everett III, was one of America's top quantum physicists. In 1957, Hugh Everett came up with a revolutionary theory that predicted the existence of parallel universes. The idea quickly seeped into popular culture, but only recently has it been accepted by mainstream physicists. The film follows the wry and charismatic Mark, who had been estranged from his father, as he travels across America to learn about the father he never knew. It is only by entering the paradoxical world of quantum mechanics that Mark can hope to understand why he was such a stranger to his own father.

Can the power of music make the brain come alive? Throughout his career Dr. Oliver Sacks, neurologist and acclaimed author, whose book, "Awakenings" was made into an Oscar-nominated feature film starring Robin Williams and Robert De Niro, has encountered myriad patients who are struggling to cope with debilitating medical conditions. While their ailments vary, many have one thing in common: an appreciation for the therapeutic effects of music. NOVA follows four individuals--two of whom are Sacks's case studies--and even peers into Sacks's own brain, to investigate music's strange, surprising, and still unexplained power over the human mind.

Throughout his masterful career, Michelangelo glorified the church, etching Catholic ideals into the sculptures and artwork that defined religion for the masses. Now, 500 years after his death, art historian Antonio Forcellino has found evidence of Michelangelo's involvement with a clandestine fellowship trying to reform the Catholic Church from within. The group's radical ideas and accusations of corruption were considered heretical and punishable by death. Michelangelo's involvement put him at dangerous odds with powerful officials who held his livelihood -- and life -- in their hands.

"Michelangelo Revealed" paints a stunning new picture of brave religious expression, personal vendettas, careful cover-ups and a most gifted artist desperately trying to reconcile his loyalty to the church with his own personal belief about the road to salvation.

In September 2002, three skinheads were roaming a park in Rheims, France, looking to "do an Arab," when they settled for a gay man instead. Twenty-nine-year-old François Chenu fought back fiercely, but he was beaten unconscious and thrown into a river, where he drowned. The acclaimed French verite film Beyond Hatred is the story of the crime's aftermath; above all, of the Chenu family's brave and heartrending struggle to seek justice while trying to make sense of such pointless violence and unbearable loss. With remarkable dignity, they fight to transcend hatred and the inevitable desire for revenge.

Can the power of music make the brain come alive? Throughout his career Dr. Oliver Sacks, neurologist and acclaimed author, whose book, "Awakenings" was made into an Oscar-nominated feature film starring Robin Williams and Robert De Niro, has encountered myriad patients who are struggling to cope with debilitating medical conditions. While their ailments vary, many have one thing in common: an appreciation for the therapeutic effects of music. NOVA follows four individuals--two of whom are Sacks's case studies--and even peers into Sacks's own brain, to investigate music's strange, surprising, and still unexplained power over the human mind.

This week on Need to Know, we feature an investigation into the globalization of the pharmaceutical industry. Has insufficient oversight of foreign clinical trials led to dangerous drugs becoming available or staying on the U.S. market? We also delve into the problem of nuclear waste storage in the U.S. As policymakers turn to nuclear energy as a necessary part of our energy policy, the question of where nuclear waste will go remains unanswered. Theoretical physicist Brian Greene also joins us to discuss what science tells us about the possibility of multiple universes and different planes of reality. And: We visit several up-and-coming gourmet food trucks that have been proliferating on streets throughout the country as a model of thriving entrepreneurship borne from the recession, and editorial cartoonist Steve Brodner conducts an illustrated interview with author Eduardo Porter on the rise of income inequality in the U.S.

Chaco Canyon, located in northwest New Mexico, is perhaps the only site in the world constructed in an elaborate pattern that mirrors the yearly cycle of the sun and the 19-year cycle of the moon. How did an ancient civilization, with no known written language, arrange its buildings into a virtual celestial calendar, spanning an area roughly the size of Ireland? Why did this society, ancestors of today's Pueblo Indians, choose to establish the center of their world in the middle of such an arid, barren land? And why, after constructing buildings the size of the Roman Coliseum, did these same people deliberately seal them and abruptly leave? These enigmas have puzzled archaeologists for centuries. This program presents substantial evidence that the Chacoan people expressed a complex solar and lunar cosmology in their magnificent architecture. The discoveries documented in the film have transformed scientific understanding of this site -- one of the most elaborate and mysterious of ancient Native-American ruins -- and are revolutionizing perceptions of the Chacoan civilization. Robert Redford narrates.

The Balkan Peninsula is notorious for being one of the great battlegrounds of history. And yet, it possesses another side unknown to many, where ancient forests and vast wetlands harbor pristine wilderness, and sheer cliff walls and desolate plateaus preserve a seemingly unchanged past. Surveying these striking and stark landscapes, one might think they've ventured into the Middle-earth of J.R.R. Tolkien's Lord of the Rings. Indeed the Balkan Peninsula is home to a variety of regions that border on mythical. In Croatia's Kopacki Rit Wetlands, land mines keep people away, but enable native wildlife to thrive. Further south, Montenegro's Tara River carves through Europe's longest and deepest canyon, and neighboring forests provide refuge to rare animals such as the Balkan Lynx. To the east, millions of birds flock to the Danube Delta to feast on swarms of mosquitoes. And at the west of the Balkans is Skadar Lake, a remarkable landscape of peaks and water.

NIAGARA FALLS is more than the celebration of a natural wonder: it's a study of human achievement and human folly on an epic scale. It is a tale of exploitation and preservation and the changing nature of love in America - of the way man has related to Nature over centuries.

The world's oceans are in trouble. Warming seas and man-made pollutants are combining to unleash toxic algae blooms that are decimating whales, sea lions and other marine mammals. In a high-action film, NOVA explores this crisis through the exploits of Dr. Frances Gulland, a San Francisco veterinarian who runs the equivalent of a West Coast ER for marine mammals. On a typical day, listless sea lions flop on their sides, too exhausted to lift their heads. Others are agitated. Another chews obsessively on a flipper. They are all victims of a marine neurotoxin made by an organism that feeds on algae. Dr. Gulland is committed to saving these sick animals one at a time, but she is also desperately trying to figure out what's killing them.

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout - one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

Filmmaker John Grabowska presents a lyrical interpretation of the sweeping geologic story of Yellowstone, the world's first and most famous national park. Formation of glaciers, mountain ranges and the gigantic caldera of a supervolcano provide the saga of this special place. Filmed over two years through all seasons, the film delves deeply into the significance behind the scenery and illuminates the intimate bonds between the landscape and biology - how Yellowstone's geology influences where life exists and how it evolves. A short concluding film, "Yellowstone's Cascade Corner," features the portion of Yellowstone extending across the southwestern border of Montana into Idaho.

Mark Oliver Everett, better known as E, is the lead singer of U.S. cult band the EELS. What most of his fans don't know is that Mark's father, Hugh Everett III, was one of America's top quantum physicists. In 1957, Hugh Everett came up with a revolutionary theory that predicted the existence of parallel universes. The idea quickly seeped into popular culture, but only recently has it been accepted by mainstream physicists. The film follows the wry and charismatic Mark, who had been estranged from his father, as he travels across America to learn about the father he never knew. It is only by entering the paradoxical world of quantum mechanics that Mark can hope to understand why he was such a stranger to his own father.

Can the power of music make the brain come alive? Throughout his career Dr. Oliver Sacks, neurologist and acclaimed author, whose book, "Awakenings" was made into an Oscar-nominated feature film starring Robin Williams and Robert De Niro, has encountered myriad patients who are struggling to cope with debilitating medical conditions. While their ailments vary, many have one thing in common: an appreciation for the therapeutic effects of music. NOVA follows four individuals--two of whom are Sacks's case studies--and even peers into Sacks's own brain, to investigate music's strange, surprising, and still unexplained power over the human mind.

In the 1970s, female East German athletes came out of nowhere to dominate international sport. But behind their success lay a secret, state-sponsored doping program that distributed untested steroids and male hormones to athletes as young as 12. Many of these girls had no knowledge that they were being doped, and now, as grown women (and men), their broken bodies and damaged psyches bear witness to the cruelty of a government that pursued international glory and gold at the expense of its most acclaimed citizens. "Doping for Gold" digs deep into the secretive Cold War world of East German athletes, examining what drugs were used, how they were distributed and what damage they did to many of the athletes who were forced to take them. The result creates a timely perspective on today's many doping scandals and reveals the truth behind the biggest and most horrifying state-sponsored doping program the world has ever known.

In September 2002, three skinheads were roaming a park in Rheims, France, looking to "do an Arab," when they settled for a gay man instead. Twenty-nine-year-old François Chenu fought back fiercely, but he was beaten unconscious and thrown into a river, where he drowned. The acclaimed French verite film Beyond Hatred is the story of the crime's aftermath; above all, of the Chenu family's brave and heartrending struggle to seek justice while trying to make sense of such pointless violence and unbearable loss. With remarkable dignity, they fight to transcend hatred and the inevitable desire for revenge.

"Stonewall Uprising" explores the dramatic event that launched a worldwide rights movement. Told by those who took part, from drag queens and street hustlers to police detectives, journalists and a former mayor of New York, and featuring a rich trove of archival footage, this film revisits a time when homosexual acts were illegal throughout America, and homosexuality itself was seen as a form of mental illness. Hunted and often entrapped by undercover police in their hometowns, gays from around the U.S. began fleeing to New York in search of a sanctuary. Hounded there still by an aggressive police force, they found refuge in a Mafia-run gay bar in Greenwich Village, the Stonewall Inn. When police raided Stonewall on June 28, 1969, gay men and women did something they had not done before: they fought back. As the streets of New York erupted into violent protests and street demonstrations, the collective anger announced that the gay rights movement had arrived.

In September 2002, three skinheads were roaming a park in Rheims, France, looking to "do an Arab," when they settled for a gay man instead. Twenty-nine-year-old François Chenu fought back fiercely, but he was beaten unconscious and thrown into a river, where he drowned. The acclaimed French verite film Beyond Hatred is the story of the crime's aftermath; above all, of the Chenu family's brave and heartrending struggle to seek justice while trying to make sense of such pointless violence and unbearable loss. With remarkable dignity, they fight to transcend hatred and the inevitable desire for revenge.

"Stonewall Uprising" explores the dramatic event that launched a worldwide rights movement. Told by those who took part, from drag queens and street hustlers to police detectives, journalists and a former mayor of New York, and featuring a rich trove of archival footage, this film revisits a time when homosexual acts were illegal throughout America, and homosexuality itself was seen as a form of mental illness. Hunted and often entrapped by undercover police in their hometowns, gays from around the U.S. began fleeing to New York in search of a sanctuary. Hounded there still by an aggressive police force, they found refuge in a Mafia-run gay bar in Greenwich Village, the Stonewall Inn. When police raided Stonewall on June 28, 1969, gay men and women did something they had not done before: they fought back. As the streets of New York erupted into violent protests and street demonstrations, the collective anger announced that the gay rights movement had arrived.

Why would a dedicated Cold Warrior throw away his career and his friends, and risk life in prison for a chance to help end the Vietnam War? In 1971, Daniel Ellsberg, a leading military planner, concluded that America's role in the war was based on decades of lies. He leaked the Pentagon Papers, 7,000 pages of top-secret documents, to The New York Times, a daring act of conscience that led to Watergate, President Nixon's resignation and the end of the Vietnam War. "The Most Dangerous Man in America," nominated for an Oscar®, is a gripping tale told by Ellsberg with a who's who of Vietnam- and Watergate-era figures. In the 1970s, female East German athletes came out of nowhere to dominate international sport. But behind their success lay a secret, state-sponsored doping program that distributed untested steroids and male hormones to athletes as young as 12. Many of these girls had no knowledge that they were being doped, and now, as grown women (and men), their broken bodies and damaged psyches bear witness to the cruelty of a government that pursued international glory and gold at the expense of its most acclaimed citizens. "Doping for Gold" digs deep into the secretive Cold War world of East German athletes, examining what drugs were used, how they were distributed and what damage they did to many of the athletes who were forced to take them. The result creates a timely perspective on today's many doping scandals and reveals the truth behind the biggest and most horrifying state-sponsored doping program the world has ever known.

Throughout his masterful career, Michelangelo glorified the church, etching Catholic ideals into the sculptures and artwork that defined religion for the masses. Now, 500 years after his death, art historian Antonio Forcellino has found evidence of Michelangelo's involvement with a clandestine fellowship trying to reform the Catholic Church from within. The group's radical ideas and accusations of corruption were considered heretical and punishable by death. Michelangelo's involvement put him at dangerous odds with powerful officials who held his livelihood -- and life -- in their hands.

"Michelangelo Revealed" paints a stunning new picture of brave religious expression, personal vendettas, careful cover-ups and a most gifted artist desperately trying to reconcile his loyalty to the church with his own personal belief about the road to salvation.

Mark Oliver Everett, better known as E, is the lead singer of U.S. cult band the EELS. What most of his fans don't know is that Mark's father, Hugh Everett III, was one of America's top quantum physicists. In 1957, Hugh Everett came up with a revolutionary theory that predicted the existence of parallel universes. The idea quickly seeped into popular culture, but only recently has it been accepted by mainstream physicists. The film follows the wry and charismatic Mark, who had been estranged from his father, as he travels across America to learn about the father he never knew. It is only by entering the paradoxical world of quantum mechanics that Mark can hope to understand why he was such a stranger to his own father.

The world's oceans are in trouble. Warming seas and man-made pollutants are combining to unleash toxic algae blooms that are decimating whales, sea lions and other marine mammals. In a high-action film, NOVA explores this crisis through the exploits of Dr. Frances Gulland, a San Francisco veterinarian who runs the equivalent of a West Coast ER for marine mammals. On a typical day, listless sea lions flop on their sides, too exhausted to lift their heads. Others are agitated. Another chews obsessively on a flipper. They are all victims of a marine neurotoxin made by an organism that feeds on algae. Dr. Gulland is committed to saving these sick animals one at a time, but she is also desperately trying to figure out what's killing them.

Why would a dedicated Cold Warrior throw away his career and his friends, and risk life in prison for a chance to help end the Vietnam War? In 1971, Daniel Ellsberg, a leading military planner, concluded that America's role in the war was based on decades of lies. He leaked the Pentagon Papers, 7,000 pages of top-secret documents, to The New York Times, a daring act of conscience that led to Watergate, President Nixon's resignation and the end of the Vietnam War. "The Most Dangerous Man in America," nominated for an Oscar®, is a gripping tale told by Ellsberg with a who's who of Vietnam- and Watergate-era figures. A co-production of ITVS in association with American Documentary|POV. By Judith Ehrlich and Rick Goldsmith. Based in part on the book Secrets: A Memoir of Vietnam and the Pentagon Papers by Daniel Ellsberg.

In September 2002, three skinheads were roaming a park in Rheims, France, looking to "do an Arab," when they settled for a gay man instead. Twenty-nine-year-old François Chenu fought back fiercely, but he was beaten unconscious and thrown into a river, where he drowned. The acclaimed French verite film Beyond Hatred is the story of the crime's aftermath; above all, of the Chenu family's brave and heartrending struggle to seek justice while trying to make sense of such pointless violence and unbearable loss. With remarkable dignity, they fight to transcend hatred and the inevitable desire for revenge.

In the 1970s, female East German athletes came out of nowhere to dominate international sport. But behind their success lay a secret, state-sponsored doping program that distributed untested steroids and male hormones to athletes as young as 12. Many of these girls had no knowledge that they were being doped, and now, as grown women (and men), their broken bodies and damaged psyches bear witness to the cruelty of a government that pursued international glory and gold at the expense of its most acclaimed citizens. "Doping for Gold" digs deep into the secretive Cold War world of East German athletes, examining what drugs were used, how they were distributed and what damage they did to many of the athletes who were forced to take them. The result creates a timely perspective on today's many doping scandals and reveals the truth behind the biggest and most horrifying state-sponsored doping program the world has ever known.

"Stonewall Uprising" explores the dramatic event that launched a worldwide rights movement. Told by those who took part, from drag queens and street hustlers to police detectives, journalists and a former mayor of New York, and featuring a rich trove of archival footage, this film revisits a time when homosexual acts were illegal throughout America, and homosexuality itself was seen as a form of mental illness. Hunted and often entrapped by undercover police in their hometowns, gays from around the U.S. began fleeing to New York in search of a sanctuary. Hounded there still by an aggressive police force, they found refuge in a Mafia-run gay bar in Greenwich Village, the Stonewall Inn. When police raided Stonewall on June 28, 1969, gay men and women did something they had not done before: they fought back. As the streets of New York erupted into violent protests and street demonstrations, the collective anger announced that the gay rights movement had arrived.

The story of Fort Niagara is the story of a struggle for a continent. For over 150 years, four nations struggled to control this strategic point at the mouth of the Niagara River, and thus control the critical water artery it protected. But the fort is not only unique for its history, it is unique for its longevity. Visitors to the site today can still explore one of North America's largest collections of original 18th century military architecture--tangible reminders of the fort's important past. Experience for yourself this exciting story of one of America's most unique historic places. Rare archival footage, expert commentaries and spectacular videography of the fort itself come together in brilliant high definition to create a program that is a must for anyone interested in the story of North America.

Chaco Canyon, located in northwest New Mexico, is perhaps the only site in the world constructed in an elaborate pattern that mirrors the yearly cycle of the sun and the 19-year cycle of the moon. How did an ancient civilization, with no known written language, arrange its buildings into a virtual celestial calendar, spanning an area roughly the size of Ireland? Why did this society, ancestors of today's Pueblo Indians, choose to establish the center of their world in the middle of such an arid, barren land? And why, after constructing buildings the size of the Roman Coliseum, did these same people deliberately seal them and abruptly leave? These enigmas have puzzled archaeologists for centuries. This program presents substantial evidence that the Chacoan people expressed a complex solar and lunar cosmology in their magnificent architecture. The discoveries documented in the film have transformed scientific understanding of this site -- one of the most elaborate and mysterious of ancient Native-American ruins -- and are revolutionizing perceptions of the Chacoan civilization. Robert Redford narrates.

On February 1, 2003, the space shuttle Columbia disintegrated over Texas just 16 minutes before it was due to land. All seven astronauts aboard perished and the implications for the future of the space shuttle program were enormous. What caused the Columbia tragedy? An engineering flaw? A failure within NASA? A lack of financing? Could this catastrophe have been avoided? Through interviews with astronauts and their families, as well as with members of the Columbia Accident Investigation Board, "Space Shuttle Disaster" gives viewers a new look at the Columbia tragedy -- and at NASA itself. From the creation of NASA through decades of technical and financial compromises, the program gets to the heart of what went wrong -- and how to make sure it never happens again.

Throughout his masterful career, Michelangelo glorified the church, etching Catholic ideals into the sculptures and artwork that defined religion for the masses. Now, 500 years after his death, art historian Antonio Forcellino has found evidence of Michelangelo's involvement with a clandestine fellowship trying to reform the Catholic Church from within. The group's radical ideas and accusations of corruption were considered heretical and punishable by death. Michelangelo's involvement put him at dangerous odds with powerful officials who held his livelihood -- and life -- in their hands. "Michelangelo Revealed" paints a stunning new picture of brave religious expression, personal vendettas, careful cover-ups and a most gifted artist desperately trying to reconcile his loyalty to the church with his own personal belief about the road to salvation.

In the mid-1960s, Bernard Madoff tapped money from Jewish businessmen at exclusive country clubs with the promise of steady guaranteed returns on their investments. He then set his sights on Europe and Latin America, brokering deals with powerful hedge fund managers and feeder funds from Buenos Aires to Geneva. Billions of dollars were channeled to Madoff's investment firm, and his feeders became fabulously wealthy. The competition wondered how the man could produce such steady returns in good times and bad. There were allegations that Madoff was "front-running" or operating a Ponzi scheme, which the SEC investigated several times over the last two decades. But Madoff remained untouched until December 11, 2008, when he admitted it was all "one big lie." FRONTLINE producers Martin Smith and Marcela Gaviria unravel the story behind the world's first truly global Ponzi scheme -- a deception that lasted longer, reached wider, and cut deeper than any other business scandal in history.

When a child dies under suspicious circumstances, abuse is often suspected. That's what happened in the case of six-month-old Isis Vas, whose death was deemed "a clear-cut and classic" case of child abuse, sending a man named Ernie Lopez to prison for 60 years. But now a Texas judge has moved to overturn Lopez's conviction, and new questions are being asked about the quality of expert testimony in this and many other similar cases. In this joint investigation with ProPublica and NPR, FRONTLINE correspondent A.C. Thompson unearths more than 20 child death cases in which people were jailed on medical evidence--involving abuse, assault, and "shaken baby syndrome"--that was later found unreliable or flat-out wrong. Are death investigators being properly trained for child cases? Also in this magazine hour: Correspondent Martin Smith (College Inc.) continues to investigate for-profit colleges, this time focusing on their aggressive recruitment of veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan. Are the for-profits making promises that they can't keep?

With candidates already gearing up for the upcoming 2012 election, we look at how several states have been rewriting their voting laws and how it might impact the coming electoral season. We visit Ohio to see how the new laws there might affect voter turnout.

Also, as a follow-up to our panel on the state of women's rights, we speak with Charmaine Yoest of the group Americans United for Life to see how the anti-abortion movement strategy has evolved and what their efforts have achieved at the state level. We also examine a new alternative therapy to Tourette's syndrome and how it has already helped one 12-year-old boy battle the disorder.

And: Science journalist Chris Mooney explains the psychological factors behind science denial and how our pre-existing beliefs affect our capacity for logic. Author Benjamin Skinner speaks to us about his work exposing the world of modern-day slavery, and Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the West Virginia coal mining disaster and the need for a national energy plan.

In the mid-1960s, Bernard Madoff tapped money from Jewish businessmen at exclusive country clubs with the promise of steady guaranteed returns on their investments. He then set his sights on Europe and Latin America, brokering deals with powerful hedge fund managers and feeder funds from Buenos Aires to Geneva. Billions of dollars were channeled to Madoff's investment firm, and his feeders became fabulously wealthy. The competition wondered how the man could produce such steady returns in good times and bad. There were allegations that Madoff was "front-running" or operating a Ponzi scheme, which the SEC investigated several times over the last two decades. But Madoff remained untouched until December 11, 2008, when he admitted it was all "one big lie." FRONTLINE producers Martin Smith and Marcela Gaviria unravel the story behind the world's first truly global Ponzi scheme -- a deception that lasted longer, reached wider, and cut deeper than any other business scandal in history.

When a child dies under suspicious circumstances, abuse is often suspected. That's what happened in the case of six-month-old Isis Vas, whose death was deemed "a clear-cut and classic" case of child abuse, sending a man named Ernie Lopez to prison for 60 years. But now a Texas judge has moved to overturn Lopez's conviction, and new questions are being asked about the quality of expert testimony in this and many other similar cases. In this joint investigation with ProPublica and NPR, FRONTLINE correspondent A.C. Thompson unearths more than 20 child death cases in which people were jailed on medical evidence--involving abuse, assault, and "shaken baby syndrome"--that was later found unreliable or flat-out wrong. Are death investigators being properly trained for child cases? Also in this magazine hour: Correspondent Martin Smith (College Inc.) continues to investigate for-profit colleges, this time focusing on their aggressive recruitment of veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan. Are the for-profits making promises that they can't keep?

Improvised explosive devices, or IEDs, have been a trademark of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. Over the past decade, they have been used with increasing frequency in combat and are responsible for hundreds of deaths and casualties. This week on Need to Know, we explore the inner workings of a little-known military organization and its $17 billion campaign to combat IEDs in Iraq and Afghanistan.

We also speak with legal analyst Jami Floyd on the long-term impact of the Supreme Court's decision to dismiss the class action suit against Wal-Mart over discrimination of female employees. This week, Floyd wrote about the Wal-Mart case, arguing that despite this latest setback, the women still could prevail in court. We also interview former Deputy Defense Secretary Celeste Ward Gventer about President Obama's announcement on troop withdrawals from Afghanistan.

In 1910, Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen was hanged for poisoning and dismembering his wife, after he attempted to flee the country with his young lover. However, investigators have now found that the human remains discovered in Crippen's cellar were not those of his wife. Their further DNA work - revealed exclusively in this film - throws up startling new evidence about what really happened. It exposes a historic miscarriage of justice and poses uncomfortable questions about the police and prosecutors, who claimed to have solved the crime of the century.

English-language companion to the Spanish-language series LOS NINOS EN SU CASA. Both shows are designed for parents or anyone else who takes care of young kids: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The shows cover subjects such as: tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, speech and language delays. These series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help kids be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

When a child dies under suspicious circumstances, abuse is often suspected. That's what happened in the case of six-month-old Isis Vas, whose death was deemed "a clear-cut and classic" case of child abuse, sending a man named Ernie Lopez to prison for 60 years. But now a Texas judge has moved to overturn Lopez's conviction, and new questions are being asked about the quality of expert testimony in this and many other similar cases. In this joint investigation with ProPublica and NPR, FRONTLINE correspondent A.C. Thompson unearths more than 20 child death cases in which people were jailed on medical evidence--involving abuse, assault, and "shaken baby syndrome"--that was later found unreliable or flat-out wrong. Are death investigators being properly trained for child cases? Also in this magazine hour: Correspondent Martin Smith (College Inc.) continues to investigate for-profit colleges, this time focusing on their aggressive recruitment of veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan. Are the for-profits making promises that they can't keep?

Improvised explosive devices, or IEDs, have been a trademark of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. Over the past decade, they have been used with increasing frequency in combat and are responsible for hundreds of deaths and casualties. This week on Need to Know, we explore the inner workings of a little-known military organization and its $17 billion campaign to combat IEDs in Iraq and Afghanistan.

We also speak with legal analyst Jami Floyd on the long-term impact of the Supreme Court's decision to dismiss the class action suit against Wal-Mart over discrimination of female employees. This week, Floyd wrote about the Wal-Mart case, arguing that despite this latest setback, the women still could prevail in court. We also interview former Deputy Defense Secretary Celeste Ward Gventer about President Obama's announcement on troop withdrawals from Afghanistan.

And: What makes a happy marriage happy? We delve into some recent research on the science of marital satisfaction, including the health benefits that come with happy marriages.

With candidates already gearing up for the upcoming 2012 election, we look at how several states have been rewriting their voting laws and how it might impact the coming electoral season. We visit Ohio to see how the new laws there might affect voter turnout.

Also, as a follow-up to our panel on the state of women's rights, we speak with Charmaine Yoest of the group Americans United for Life to see how the anti-abortion movement strategy has evolved and what their efforts have achieved at the state level. We also examine a new alternative therapy to Tourette's syndrome and how it has already helped one 12-year-old boy battle the disorder.

And: Science journalist Chris Mooney explains the psychological factors behind science denial and how our pre-existing beliefs affect our capacity for logic. Author Benjamin Skinner speaks to us about his work exposing the world of modern-day slavery, and Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the West Virginia coal mining disaster and the need for a national energy plan.

Chaco Canyon, located in northwest New Mexico, is perhaps the only site in the world constructed in an elaborate pattern that mirrors the yearly cycle of the sun and the 19-year cycle of the moon. How did an ancient civilization, with no known written language, arrange its buildings into a virtual celestial calendar, spanning an area roughly the size of Ireland? Why did this society, ancestors of today's Pueblo Indians, choose to establish the center of their world in the middle of such an arid, barren land? And why, after constructing buildings the size of the Roman Coliseum, did these same people deliberately seal them and abruptly leave? These enigmas have puzzled archaeologists for centuries. This program presents substantial evidence that the Chacoan people expressed a complex solar and lunar cosmology in their magnificent architecture. The discoveries documented in the film have transformed scientific understanding of this site -- one of the most elaborate and mysterious of ancient Native-American ruins -- and are revolutionizing perceptions of the Chacoan civilization. Robert Redford narrates.

Cutting across the Zambezi River, bridging the countries of Zambia and Zimbabwe, Victoria Falls is the largest waterfall in the world. This awesome force of nature divides two natural worlds -- the tranquil meandering river above the cascade and the raging abyss of the gorge below. The upper river is idyllic, running shallow through sandstone hills and meandering around islands and reed-beds where elephants, lions, hippos, crocodiles, buffalo, zebra, antelope and otters thrive. In a single vertical drop, the river plummets twice the height of Niagara Falls into the wild waters and heavy spray of the narrow gorge, where 35 different raptor species rear their young, feasting on a glut of fish. Between the two worlds, the treacherous cliffs and rocky outcrops are covered in thick, mossy rainforest, fed by the constant mists, and home to baboons, monkeys, mongoose and parrots. It is a place of epic proportions, with an epic story to tell.

The Balkan Peninsula is notorious for being one of the great battlegrounds of history. And yet, it possesses another side unknown to many, where ancient forests and vast wetlands harbor pristine wilderness, and sheer cliff walls and desolate plateaus preserve a seemingly unchanged past. Surveying these striking and stark landscapes, one might think they've ventured into the Middle-earth of J.R.R. Tolkien's Lord of the Rings. Indeed the Balkan Peninsula is home to a variety of regions that border on mythical. In Croatia's Kopacki Rit Wetlands, land mines keep people away, but enable native wildlife to thrive. Further south, Montenegro's Tara River carves through Europe's longest and deepest canyon, and neighboring forests provide refuge to rare animals such as the Balkan Lynx. To the east, millions of birds flock to the Danube Delta to feast on swarms of mosquitoes. And at the west of the Balkans is Skadar Lake, a remarkable landscape of peaks and water.

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout - one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

Elected President only to see the nation fracture in two, Lincoln led a confused and frightened people through the most terrible war in their history. At the same time, his own household mirrored the fissures that split the nation: the great emancipator was married to the daughter of a slave owner from Kentucky. Mary Todd Lincoln was an aristocratic southerner who met Lincoln when he was still a backwoods politician lacking in experience and sophistication. Although she remained fiercely loyal to her husband and the Union cause, two of her brothers fought for the South. Their marriage was long and turbulent, and knew many trials, including the loss of two children. Abraham and Mary Lincoln: A House Divided weaves together the lives of the two Lincolns, drawing us into their long-vanished world.

Improvised explosive devices, or IEDs, have been a trademark of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. Over the past decade, they have been used with increasing frequency in combat and are responsible for hundreds of deaths and casualties. This week on Need to Know, we explore the inner workings of a little-known military organization and its $17 billion campaign to combat IEDs in Iraq and Afghanistan.

We also speak with legal analyst Jami Floyd on the long-term impact of the Supreme Court's decision to dismiss the class action suit against Wal-Mart over discrimination of female employees. This week, Floyd wrote about the Wal-Mart case, arguing that despite this latest setback, the women still could prevail in court. We also interview former Deputy Defense Secretary Celeste Ward Gventer about President Obama's announcement on troop withdrawals from Afghanistan.

And: What makes a happy marriage happy? We delve into some recent research on the science of marital satisfaction, including the health benefits that come with happy marriages.

With candidates already gearing up for the upcoming 2012 election, we look at how several states have been rewriting their voting laws and how it might impact the coming electoral season. We visit Ohio to see how the new laws there might affect voter turnout.

Also, as a follow-up to our panel on the state of women's rights, we speak with Charmaine Yoest of the group Americans United for Life to see how the anti-abortion movement strategy has evolved and what their efforts have achieved at the state level. We also examine a new alternative therapy to Tourette's syndrome and how it has already helped one 12-year-old boy battle the disorder.

And: Science journalist Chris Mooney explains the psychological factors behind science denial and how our pre-existing beliefs affect our capacity for logic. Author Benjamin Skinner speaks to us about his work exposing the world of modern-day slavery, and Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the West Virginia coal mining disaster and the need for a national energy plan.

Can the power of music make the brain come alive? Throughout his career Dr. Oliver Sacks, neurologist and acclaimed author, whose book, "Awakenings" was made into an Oscar-nominated feature film starring Robin Williams and Robert De Niro, has encountered myriad patients who are struggling to cope with debilitating medical conditions. While their ailments vary, many have one thing in common: an appreciation for the therapeutic effects of music. NOVA follows four individuals--two of whom are Sacks's case studies--and even peers into Sacks's own brain, to investigate music's strange, surprising, and still unexplained power over the human mind.

In the 1970s, female East German athletes came out of nowhere to dominate international sport. But behind their success lay a secret, state-sponsored doping program that distributed untested steroids and male hormones to athletes as young as 12. Many of these girls had no knowledge that they were being doped, and now, as grown women (and men), their broken bodies and damaged psyches bear witness to the cruelty of a government that pursued international glory and gold at the expense of its most acclaimed citizens. "Doping for Gold" digs deep into the secretive Cold War world of East German athletes, examining what drugs were used, how they were distributed and what damage they did to many of the athletes who were forced to take them. The result creates a timely perspective on today's many doping scandals and reveals the truth behind the biggest and most horrifying state-sponsored doping program the world has ever known.

"Stonewall Uprising" explores the dramatic event that launched a worldwide rights movement. Told by those who took part, from drag queens and street hustlers to police detectives, journalists and a former mayor of New York, and featuring a rich trove of archival footage, this film revisits a time when homosexual acts were illegal throughout America, and homosexuality itself was seen as a form of mental illness. Hunted and often entrapped by undercover police in their hometowns, gays from around the U.S. began fleeing to New York in search of a sanctuary. Hounded there still by an aggressive police force, they found refuge in a Mafia-run gay bar in Greenwich Village, the Stonewall Inn. When police raided Stonewall on June 28, 1969, gay men and women did something they had not done before: they fought back. As the streets of New York erupted into violent protests and street demonstrations, the collective anger announced that the gay rights movement had arrived.

In the mid-1960s, Bernard Madoff tapped money from Jewish businessmen at exclusive country clubs with the promise of steady guaranteed returns on their investments. He then set his sights on Europe and Latin America, brokering deals with powerful hedge fund managers and feeder funds from Buenos Aires to Geneva. Billions of dollars were channeled to Madoff's investment firm, and his feeders became fabulously wealthy. The competition wondered how the man could produce such steady returns in good times and bad. There were allegations that Madoff was "front-running" or operating a Ponzi scheme, which the SEC investigated several times over the last two decades. But Madoff remained untouched until December 11, 2008, when he admitted it was all "one big lie." FRONTLINE producers Martin Smith and Marcela Gaviria unravel the story behind the world's first truly global Ponzi scheme -- a deception that lasted longer, reached wider, and cut deeper than any other business scandal in history.

With candidates already gearing up for the upcoming 2012 election, we look at how several states have been rewriting their voting laws and how it might impact the coming electoral season. We visit Ohio to see how the new laws there might affect voter turnout.

Also, as a follow-up to our panel on the state of women's rights, we speak with Charmaine Yoest of the group Americans United for Life to see how the anti-abortion movement strategy has evolved and what their efforts have achieved at the state level. We also examine a new alternative therapy to Tourette's syndrome and how it has already helped one 12-year-old boy battle the disorder.

And: Science journalist Chris Mooney explains the psychological factors behind science denial and how our pre-existing beliefs affect our capacity for logic. Author Benjamin Skinner speaks to us about his work exposing the world of modern-day slavery, and Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the West Virginia coal mining disaster and the need for a national energy plan.

Improvised explosive devices, or IEDs, have been a trademark of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. Over the past decade, they have been used with increasing frequency in combat and are responsible for hundreds of deaths and casualties. This week on Need to Know, we explore the inner workings of a little-known military organization and its $17 billion campaign to combat IEDs in Iraq and Afghanistan.

We also speak with legal analyst Jami Floyd on the long-term impact of the Supreme Court's decision to dismiss the class action suit against Wal-Mart over discrimination of female employees. This week, Floyd wrote about the Wal-Mart case, arguing that despite this latest setback, the women still could prevail in court. We also interview former Deputy Defense Secretary Celeste Ward Gventer about President Obama's announcement on troop withdrawals from Afghanistan.

And: What makes a happy marriage happy? We delve into some recent research on the science of marital satisfaction, including the health benefits that come with happy marriages.

On February 1, 2003, the space shuttle Columbia disintegrated over Texas just 16 minutes before it was due to land. All seven astronauts aboard perished and the implications for the future of the space shuttle program were enormous. What caused the Columbia tragedy? An engineering flaw? A failure within NASA? A lack of financing? Could this catastrophe have been avoided? Through interviews with astronauts and their families, as well as with members of the Columbia Accident Investigation Board, "Space Shuttle Disaster" gives viewers a new look at the Columbia tragedy -- and at NASA itself. From the creation of NASA through decades of technical and financial compromises, the program gets to the heart of what went wrong -- and how to make sure it never happens again.

In the 1970s, female East German athletes came out of nowhere to dominate international sport. But behind their success lay a secret, state-sponsored doping program that distributed untested steroids and male hormones to athletes as young as 12. Many of these girls had no knowledge that they were being doped, and now, as grown women (and men), their broken bodies and damaged psyches bear witness to the cruelty of a government that pursued international glory and gold at the expense of its most acclaimed citizens. "Doping for Gold" digs deep into the secretive Cold War world of East German athletes, examining what drugs were used, how they were distributed and what damage they did to many of the athletes who were forced to take them. The result creates a timely perspective on today's many doping scandals and reveals the truth behind the biggest and most horrifying state-sponsored doping program the world has ever known.

Throughout his masterful career, Michelangelo glorified the church, etching Catholic ideals into the sculptures and artwork that defined religion for the masses. Now, 500 years after his death, art historian Antonio Forcellino has found evidence of Michelangelo's involvement with a clandestine fellowship trying to reform the Catholic Church from within. The group's radical ideas and accusations of corruption were considered heretical and punishable by death. Michelangelo's involvement put him at dangerous odds with powerful officials who held his livelihood -- and life -- in their hands. "Michelangelo Revealed" paints a stunning new picture of brave religious expression, personal vendettas, careful cover-ups and a most gifted artist desperately trying to reconcile his loyalty to the church with his own personal belief about the road to salvation.

With candidates already gearing up for the upcoming 2012 election, we look at how several states have been rewriting their voting laws and how it might impact the coming electoral season. We visit Ohio to see how the new laws there might affect voter turnout.

Also, as a follow-up to our panel on the state of women's rights, we speak with Charmaine Yoest of the group Americans United for Life to see how the anti-abortion movement strategy has evolved and what their efforts have achieved at the state level. We also examine a new alternative therapy to Tourette's syndrome and how it has already helped one 12-year-old boy battle the disorder.

And: Science journalist Chris Mooney explains the psychological factors behind science denial and how our pre-existing beliefs affect our capacity for logic. Author Benjamin Skinner speaks to us about his work exposing the world of modern-day slavery, and Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the West Virginia coal mining disaster and the need for a national energy plan.

Improvised explosive devices, or IEDs, have been a trademark of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. Over the past decade, they have been used with increasing frequency in combat and are responsible for hundreds of deaths and casualties. This week on Need to Know, we explore the inner workings of a little-known military organization and its $17 billion campaign to combat IEDs in Iraq and Afghanistan.

We also speak with legal analyst Jami Floyd on the long-term impact of the Supreme Court's decision to dismiss the class action suit against Wal-Mart over discrimination of female employees. This week, Floyd wrote about the Wal-Mart case, arguing that despite this latest setback, the women still could prevail in court. We also interview former Deputy Defense Secretary Celeste Ward Gventer about President Obama's announcement on troop withdrawals from Afghanistan.

Improvised explosive devices, or IEDs, have been a trademark of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. Over the past decade, they have been used with increasing frequency in combat and are responsible for hundreds of deaths and casualties. This week on Need to Know, we explore the inner workings of a little-known military organization and its $17 billion campaign to combat IEDs in Iraq and Afghanistan.

We also speak with legal analyst Jami Floyd on the long-term impact of the Supreme Court's decision to dismiss the class action suit against Wal-Mart over discrimination of female employees. This week, Floyd wrote about the Wal-Mart case, arguing that despite this latest setback, the women still could prevail in court. We also interview former Deputy Defense Secretary Celeste Ward Gventer about President Obama's announcement on troop withdrawals from Afghanistan.

With candidates already gearing up for the upcoming 2012 election, we look at how several states have been rewriting their voting laws and how it might impact the coming electoral season. We visit Ohio to see how the new laws there might affect voter turnout.

Also, as a follow-up to our panel on the state of women's rights, we speak with Charmaine Yoest of the group Americans United for Life to see how the anti-abortion movement strategy has evolved and what their efforts have achieved at the state level. We also examine a new alternative therapy to Tourette's syndrome and how it has already helped one 12-year-old boy battle the disorder.

And: Science journalist Chris Mooney explains the psychological factors behind science denial and how our pre-existing beliefs affect our capacity for logic. Author Benjamin Skinner speaks to us about his work exposing the world of modern-day slavery, and Jon Meacham delivers an "In Perspective" essay on the West Virginia coal mining disaster and the need for a national energy plan.

Improvised explosive devices, or IEDs, have been a trademark of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. Over the past decade, they have been used with increasing frequency in combat and are responsible for hundreds of deaths and casualties. This week on Need to Know, we explore the inner workings of a little-known military organization and its $17 billion campaign to combat IEDs in Iraq and Afghanistan.

We also speak with legal analyst Jami Floyd on the long-term impact of the Supreme Court's decision to dismiss the class action suit against Wal-Mart over discrimination of female employees. This week, Floyd wrote about the Wal-Mart case, arguing that despite this latest setback, the women still could prevail in court. We also interview former Deputy Defense Secretary Celeste Ward Gventer about President Obama's announcement on troop withdrawals from Afghanistan.

And: What makes a happy marriage happy? We delve into some recent research on the science of marital satisfaction, including the health benefits that come with happy marriages.

When a child dies under suspicious circumstances, abuse is often suspected. That's what happened in the case of six-month-old Isis Vas, whose death was deemed "a clear-cut and classic" case of child abuse, sending a man named Ernie Lopez to prison for 60 years. But now a Texas judge has moved to overturn Lopez's conviction, and new questions are being asked about the quality of expert testimony in this and many other similar cases. In this joint investigation with ProPublica and NPR, FRONTLINE correspondent A.C. Thompson unearths more than 20 child death cases in which people were jailed on medical evidence--involving abuse, assault, and "shaken baby syndrome"--that was later found unreliable or flat-out wrong. Are death investigators being properly trained for child cases? Also in this magazine hour: Correspondent Martin Smith (College Inc.) continues to investigate for-profit colleges, this time focusing on their aggressive recruitment of veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan. Are the for-profits making promises that they can't keep?
