More states offering dental care to low-income adults	SRN News reports: A growing number of states are offering dental care to low-income adults who once had to rely on charity or the emergency room to treat their tooth problems. From Tennessee to Maine, lawmakers have agreed to spend hundreds of millions of dollars so adults on Medicaid, the federal health program, can get dental care. The federal government doesn't require that states provide such care. But state lawmakers have come to embrace the idea that expanded oral care saves money and has other health benefits.	4 minutes	10/01/23
Disciplining your kids with grace	On today's broadcast of Focus On The Family, Karis Kimmel Murray reminds parents that we need to stay calm in the midst of misbehavior, look for the reason behind the behavior and gives a "sushi menu" of discipline tactics, including tagging bad behavior, putting things in a "basket," and teaching the behavior you want to see. She ends with insights into children's "currency" and age-appropriate consequences.	28 minutes	10/02/23
Biden says all 10 drugs targeted for the first Medicare price negotiations will participate	SRN News reports: President Biden has announced that the manufacturers of all of the first 10 prescription drugs selected for Medicare's first price negotiations have agreed to participate. The announcement clears the way for talks that could lower their costs in coming years. The White House says 9 million seniors and other Medicare beneficiaries paid more than $3.4 billion on these 10 drugs alone last year. The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services announced in August the first 10 drugs selected for the negotiation process.	4 minutes	10/04/23
Single moms need community	On today's broadcast, Chuck Bentley of Crown Financial Ministries covered: Nearly one-third of single moms live in poverty. "I highly respect moms who work hard to free themselves from government assistance and provide for their children." Single moms share common problems: limited resources, limited time, and limited community that they can trust. Some are rejected by their own family because they choose to have the child without marrying the father. A community can provide basic help, guidance, and a network of people with resources. It can be found in a good	2 minutes	10/05/23

	Church, a Bible study, or a volunteer organization. A good community can provide encouragement, wise counsel, and accountability for sticking to a budget. When questions arise, someone can give answers: like how to buy or sell a car or house, how to draw up a will, or handle tax and legal issues. They'll help with moving, finding doctors, or employment. Single mothers who can't afford child care, repair and maintenance for a car or home, or helping a child with homework need a strong community. We all benefit from living in community with others. Single moms need trusted people with whom they don't have to worry about being judged. Online groups serve their purpose, but real people are essential. Finding a place to give and accept from others will grant them hope, encouragement, and joy. Welcome single moms into your community.
Rising long-term interest rates pose latest threat to economic 'soft landing'	SRN News reports: Surging interest rates are intensifying the challenges for the U.S. economy and threatening to derail the Federal Reserve's drive to tame inflation without causing a deep recession. The jump in longer-term rates coincides with other threats, from higher gas prices and this week's resumption of student loan payments to autoworkers' ongoing strike and the risk of a government shutdown next month. Since mid-summer, the yield on the 10-year Treasury note has steadily climbed. That's caused a spillover increase in other borrowing costs. The costs of mortgages, auto loans and credit card debt have all gone up in response. The collective impact of higher rates across the economy could also weaken the government's own finances.	4 minutes	10/05/23
Screens and Teens	On this edition of Family Talk, Dr. James Dobson talks to Dr. Kathy Koch, author of Screens and Teens: Connecting with Our Kids in a Wireless World, on the ever evolving relationship between teenagers and screen time. If parents want their teen to develop character and self-discipline, then they themselves need to demonstrate that the smartphone is a tool, not a toy. When one family committed to two tech-free days a week, their 8-year-old son was thrilled that his father had time to teach him how to play baseball and his mother had time to bake cookies with him. The boy gushed, "Our family is normal again. And I got my Daddy back!"	26 minutes	10/06/23

IMF outlook worsens, Israeli and Hamas war pose new uncertainty	SRN News reports: The International Monetary Fund warns that the world economy has lost momentum from the impact of higher interest rates, the invasion in Ukraine and widening geopolitical rifts. The deceleration comes at a time when the world has yet to fully mend from a devastating but short-lived COVID-19 recession in 2020 and now could see fallout from the Middle East conflict — particularly to oil prices. The IMF says the global economy now faces a new threat from the war between Israel and Hamas militants. The IMF says it expects global growth to slow to 2.9% in 2024 from an expected 3% this year. The 2024 forecast is down slightly from the 3% it predicted back in July.	4 minutes	10/10/23

Workers went on strike Sept. 15 against Ford, General Motors and Stellantis, which owns the Jeep, Dodge and Ram brands. That’s one of the findings in a new poll from The Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research as the strike approaches the one-month mark. Electrical grids aren't keeping up with green energy push	SRN News reports: Stalled spending on electrical grids worldwide is slowing the roll out of renewable energy. The lack of sufficient funding could put efforts to limit climate change at risk if millions of miles of power lines aren't added or refurbished in the next few years. The International Energy Agency reports the capacity to connect to and transmit electricity isn't keeping pace with the rapid growth of clean energy technology like solar and wind power, electric cars and heat pumps. The IEA's Executive Director says a long line of renewable projects are waiting to connect to the grid and they could generate five times the amount of solar and wind capacity added worldwide last year.	4 minutes	10/17/23
Crucial steps for success	On today's broadcast of Insight For Living, Dr. Chuck Swindoll discussed: What's your first response when a need comes to your attention? On any journey, the first steps are most important. They set the pace for the whole expedition, and they establish the direction of travel. If you lose your way later in the journey, you usually can get back on track with relative ease. If, however, you take a wrong step at the trip's outset, you can set yourself on an entirely wrong trajectory. Follow that path long enough, and you will likely wind up totally lost. Sadly, this exact scenario happens with leaders all over the world every day. They step foot into a new project or a new role, prepared to drive the expedition with brilliant creativity, contagious enthusiasm, and unshakable ambition. Even though they use these essential attributes as a map, they still find themselves, and their followers, lost at some point, with no sense of direction. Why does this happen so often? Because these leaders missed the crucial first step in planning their destination.	27 minutes	10/18/23

Verbal intimidation	On today's broadcast of Insight For Living, Dr. Chuck Swindoll says: "I'm convinced that the number one enemy of unity is the tongue—not drink, not drugs, not poverty, not even a weak pulpit. It's the tongue. Using words well requires wisdom." Conventional wisdom today often tries to downplay the damage words can cause. Using expressions like, "Sticks and stone may break my bones, but words will never hurt me," seem to offer a sense of security. Sadly, this is an illusion. Words are not purely innocent. Mere words can set someone's life ablaze in a tempest so fierce that it consumes everything . . . absolutely everything . . . and many use this for their advantage.	27 minutes	11/07/23

Remember that if you list your home during the holidays, you can restrict showings to the days that are most convenient for you. You can sell now and negotiate a delayed closing or extended occupancy until early next year. If you must rent temporarily, you'll have the opportunity to be a non-contingent buyer during the spring when more houses are on the market. So, how can you make your home more desirable? Focus on making the exterior tidy and inviting. Clean and declutter the inside. Christmas decorations can be beautiful if done tastefully. Sweeping cutbacks from OPEC+ and individual member countries since October 2022 haven't made lasting changes to oil prices because of concerns about oversupply in a weakening global economy. That's a good thing for U.S. drivers who have been getting cheaper gas. The OPEC+ oil ministers came out of an online meeting with more than 2 million barrels per day in voluntary cuts through the first three months of next year. Man and money	On today's broadcast of Love Worth Finding w/Dr. Adrian Rogers he covers the area of stewardship: the area of life that tells how men make money and, more importantly, how God makes men. "A man's character, religion and spirituality may be measured by his attitude toward money more than anything else." Money is a necessary means of exchange; the Bible warns us that though money is not sinful or evil in itself, the love of money is the root of all evil. God is concerned with our finances because of the many deceptions, disagreements, and disasters traced back to money. First, God is interested in how we save our money. Some people have stagnant wealth, collecting money for money's sake rather than for living. God wants us to be wise and save money for the future. Riches and honor come from the Lord; however, the Bible condemns heaping up and hoarding wealth. God wants everything—including money—in circulation; there is enough to go around, to take care of everything. There is no need to keep money for the sheer love of money. Second, God is interested in how we secure money. He calls out men who suppress the poor and withhold their wages for economic power. God is against wrongly-obtained gain, especially when it oppresses the poor. There is a curse	25 minutes	12/04/23

	reserved for ill-gotten gain. We must be careful that we make an honest wage from an honorable business. God also sees how we spend our money. He is against selfishness, lavishness, and wastefulness. It is so much better to give than to receive, and our money could be used for so much more than earthly possessions. Finally, God sees how we share our money. What we give is never lost; in the end, all we have is what we have given away. What does your relationship with money look like? Are you wise in how you save it, secure it, spend it, and share it with others?

Don't threaten to quit your job	On today's broadcast, Chuck Bentley of Crown Financial Ministries covered: Never threaten to quit your job. If you threaten to leave, co-workers and management may begin hoping that you will! Experts agree that threats to leave one's position hurt an employee in the long run. Loyalty to the company and trust is immediately lost. If money is the only thing an employee wants, then management knows they aren't dedicated to the company. Complainers who threaten to leave make their boss's job easier. They simply accept the resignation. An employee who lacks verbal self-control will find his mental stability and professionalism questioned. Pride can lead to one's downfall. Sometimes a simple attitude adjustment is needed. Thinking you deserve more – or better than what you have – often demonstrates a lack of gratitude and humility. Maybe you are overqualified, frustrated, or lacking purpose. Stop threatening to leave! Instead, prepare a resume, and go find a better job. But threatening to leave, will only actually put your current job in jeopardy.	2 minutes	12/14/23
