

In the fourth quarter of 2020, KMWU has highlighted ever-changing news matters locally and statewide and aimed to provide listeners with the information that would best serve them during this turbulent year. We continued our emphasis on keeping our audience current on COVID-19, but we also provided a number of community focused stories that address the challenges brought on by the pandemic. October and early November brought on the height of our election coverage, but KMWU news staff also continued to cover diversity, education, and financial and economic stories for radio and web (as always, with photos and links) via our various platforms. We carry on our partnership with the Kansas News Service for public radio stations, and our news team of seven continues to be supplemented by Wichita State interns, who have learned valuable lessons in this unprecedented year from our award-winning staff while they cover our local news issues.

KMWU covers topics that our community expresses a desire to understand or has a need to know. We foster a dialogue with our area's residents via community projects, important partnerships such as the 2020 Election Blueprint project partners, and listening practices that draw in a variety of voices. People need dependable information on the coronavirus, the economy, voting methods, and much more -- and community needs beyond these timely topics have also continued as usual. KMWU enables the community to ask our leaders their own questions (and give feedback) through virtual Democracy on Tap civic engagement events. Projects such as this, as well as one-on-one conversations, provide staff with input on topics relevant to Wichitans in order to best inform them.
