FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

In the caves of the Dordogne region of France, host Alan Alda witnesses the spectacular paintings and carvings that date back some 30,000 years, artwork that archeologists once thought to be the first record of people with minds like ours. When this art was created, Europe had already been peopled for hundreds of thousands of years by Neanderthals. Alda discovers, from visits to sites where Neanderthals once lived, that they were tenacious and resourceful, but they produced no art and employed a stone tool technology that changed little over millennia. The people who painted the caves, our ancestors, were strikingly different, possessed of the "human spark," capable not only of art but of innovative technology and symbolic communication. Alda asks: Where and when did the human spark first ignite? In these caves, as archeologists have long believed? Or at a much earlier time -- and on another continent?

This feature documentary traces the life and work of American sculptor Augustus Saint-Gaudens (1848-1907) from his birth in Dublin, Ireland, to his work in New York City and Paris to his death in Cornish, New Hampshire. Trained in Paris and Rome, Saint-Gaudens is considered America's premier sculptor of the 19th and early 20th centuries. During a career that spanned three decades, Saint-Gaudens created nearly 150 works of art, including a number of major public monuments to heroes of the Civil War. The story of his personal life is woven around in-depth studies of five of his major works of art, including the contemplative Standing Lincoln in Lincoln Park, Chicago; the moving Shaw Memorial on Boston Common; the powerful Sherman Monument in Central Park; the serene Diana in the Philadelphia Museum of Art; and the stirring Adams Memorial in Washington, DC. Actor Victor Garber narrates.

In 1993 the late architect and MacArthur "genius" Samuel Mockbee started the Rural Studio, a design/build architecture program, in which students create striking architecture for impoverished communities in rural Alabama. Guided by frank, passionate never-before-seen interviews with Mockbee, the film shows how a group of students use their creativity, ingenuity and compassion to craft a home for their charismatic client, Jimmie Lee Matthews. Known within the community as Music Man because of his obsession with soul music, Jimmie Lee maintains a healthy zeal for life, blasting R&B from his vast collection of used stereos and boasting that he "ain't never met a stranger!" These relatively affluent, typically middle class students cross a threshold into Music Man's world to form a strong bond with a role model and friend--someone they likely would not have met had they not left the comfortable university campus for rural West Alabama. The Rural Studio is about more than building. It is also about providing students with an experience that forever inspires them to consider how they can use their skills to better their communities. Interviews with Mockbee's peers and scenes with those he's influenced infuse the film with a larger discussion of architecture's role in issues of poverty, class, race, education, social change and citizenship.

Churchill fell in love with the United States of America, the land of his mother's birth, during his first visit there in 1894. It was an unlikely match, but it endured, culminating in the special relationship between him and President Roosevelt, which was the bedrock of Allied victory during the Second World War. During this middle period of his life, Sandys focuses on Churchill's growing gift with words and his deepening passion for painting, both of which help illustrate the inner man. Sandys travels extensively throughout the United States and to Egypt, which seemed to lure Churchill to the banks of the Nile at crucial moments in his life.

Mexican artist Diego Rivera is credited with reintroducing classic renaissance fresco painting as part of the architecture of public buildings and spaces. He also inspired the WPA program which supported such artists as Jackson Pollock, Ben Shahn, and Arshile Gorky. During a series of visits to the United States in the 1930s, Rivera created major works in San Francisco, Detroit, and New York. This program examines these murals and the controversy that surrounded them. The program includes interviews with some of Rivera's assistants and friends, and art historians.

Often thought of as the other Mexican muralist, beside his more flamboyant compatriot Diego Rivera, Orozco was a leader of the Mexican Renaissance. His bold, dynamic frescoes had a profound impact on American painters and inspired Franklin D. Roosevelt to put artists to work during the Great Depression. His most famous U.S. murals -- The Table of Universal Brotherhood, The Epic of American Civilization and Prometheus -- still convey their power in New York, New Hampshire and California. An iconoclastic personality, Orozco survived the loss of his left hand and destruction of more than half his early work by border agents. His travels back and forth across the U.S.-Mexico border evoke the larger Mexican migrant-immigrant experience and have provocative parallels to present times.

Mexican artist Diego Rivera is credited with reintroducing classic renaissance fresco painting as part of the architecture of public buildings and spaces. He also inspired the WPA program which supported such artists as Jackson Pollock, Ben Shahn, and Arshile Gorky. During a series of visits to the United States in the 1930s, Rivera created major works in San Francisco, Detroit, and New York. This program examines these murals and the controversy that surrounded them. The program includes interviews with some of Rivera's assistants and friends, and art historians.

Often thought of as the other Mexican muralist, beside his more flamboyant compatriot Diego Rivera, Orozco was a leader of the Mexican Renaissance. His bold, dynamic frescoes had a profound impact on American painters and inspired Franklin D. Roosevelt to put artists to work during the Great Depression. His most famous U.S. murals -- The Table of Universal Brotherhood, The Epic of American Civilization and Prometheus -- still convey their power in New York, New Hampshire and California. An iconoclastic personality, Orozco survived the loss of his left hand and destruction of more than half his early work by border agents. His travels back and forth across the U.S.-Mexico border evoke the larger Mexican migrant-immigrant experience and have provocative parallels to present times.

The spy swap, the Netanyahu handshake, and intraparty political drama -- a lot of questions left unanswered. We'll try to fix that tonight on Washington Week. Cloak and dagger, a Russian spy ring brings the Cold War back to an overheated nation's capital. Mr. Robert Baum, Attorney for Russian Spy Anna Chapman, said, "All of those who entered a guilty plea will be boarding a bus which will take them to one of the New York airports to be transported to Moscow." As the U.S. strikes a deal with the former enemy; it mends fences with an old friend. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said, "The bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable." President Barack Obama also stated, "The bond between the United States and Israel is unbreakable." While on the domestic front, Republicans and Democrats look for a little mojo. With the president on the campaign trail...President Obama said, "Hello, Nevada...Hello Kansas City." Robin Carnahan wants to move forward. Missouri wants to move forward. That's the choice in this election: moving backward or moving forward. As Republicans debate among themselves, who speaks for the party? Michael Steele, RNC Chairman said, "Every time something happens, people go 'oh, you should step down, step down.' Well, the reality of it is that's not happening. So stop the noise on that." Sarah Palin, former Alaska Governor, said, "If you thought pit bulls were tough, well, you don't wanna mess with the mama grizzlies." Covering the week, Pierre Thomas of ABC News, Christi Parsons of Tribune Newspapers, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

Imagine being picked up off the street, told you have committed a murder you know nothing about and then finding yourself sentenced to 20 years in jail. In December 2005 this happened to Toño Zúñiga in Mexico City and, like thousands of other innocent people, he was wrongfully imprisoned. The award-winning Presumed Guilty is the story of two young lawyers and their struggle to free Zúñiga. With no background in film, Roberto Hernández and Layda Negrete set about recording the injustices they were witnessing, enlisting acclaimed director Geoffrey Smith (The English Surgeon, POV 2009) to tell this dramatic story.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

Political broadcasts, Pentagon costs cutting, and this debatable question:--is Washington broken--we'll talk about it all tonight on Washington Week. Linda McMahon, Connecticut Republican GOP Senate Candidate, said, "They don't want to send the same politicians to Washington and get the same politics out of Washington. Ken Buck, Colorado Republican Senate Candidate said, "It is time Republicans started acting like Republicans." Outsiders rule. Political novices and upstarts carry the day in the latest round of primaries, as running against Washington becomes all the rage. Will a presidential endorsement help or hurt in the fall? Senator Michael Bennet (D-CO) said, "We'll have to see. We'll obviously do what's right for the campaign." Or do polls and tea partiers prove the pox is on both houses? In Washington, Pentagon Chief Robert Gates proposes slashing military spending. And not everybody's happy about it. Representative Randy Forbes (R-VA) said, "What we're witnessing is the piecemeal auctioning off of the greatest military the world has ever known." Does all this mean that Washington is broken? And if it is, why is everybody still trying to get here? Covering the week: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Charles Babington of the Associated Press, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair.

A fresh try for Middle East peace; stepping back in Iraq; drumming up campaign money; and the politics of Islam--tonight, on Washington Week. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "I've invited Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu and Palestinian Authority President Abbas to meet on September 2nd in Washington, D.C." The Obama administration dives head first back into the thorny and historically difficult Middle East peace process. What's different this time? U.S. troops celebrate the long promised pullout from Iraq. U.S. SOLDIER: We won. It's over. America, we brought democracy to Iraq. But events there, in Afghanistan and in Pakistan show it's more complicated than that. At home, Democrats and Republicans raise money hand over fist for the midterm elections. Tim Kaine, Chairman, Democratic National Committee, said, "We'll be able to put more money into the midterms by far than we've ever put in, probably north of $50 million. And the presidential events are huge." And as the president steps into the debate about a New York mosque, saying, "The answer is no regrets." A secondary discussion builds. Gov. Chris Christie (R-NJ) said, "It's being used as a political football by both parties." How do Americans view Islam? And why do so many think their president is Muslim? Franklin Graham, Evangelist, said, "I think the president's problem is that he was born a Muslim." Really? Primary night surprises. Are they a sign of things to come? Plus, the faltering economy and the stem cell debate, tonight on Washington Week. One surprise in Alaska--Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-AK): It ain't over until it's over.-- another in Florida. Rick Scott, Florida Republican gubernatorial primary winner: Tonight we have sent a clear message to the Washington insiders. Yet, as outsiders stage upsets, some insiders survive. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Republicans will win in November and we will regain our majorities in both the Senate and the House." Rep. Kendrick Meek (D-FL) said, "I made the case that I am the real Democrat in this race." Millions of dollars and dozens of negative ads later, the immensity of the midterm challenge becomes a little more clear, in part because the economy refuses to recover with yet more bad news on housing and on Wall Street. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "President Obama should ask for and accept the resignations of the remaining members of his economic team." Vice President Joe Biden said, "Folks, I'm still waiting for what it is that they are for." Plus, an unexpected court ruling revives the stem cell debate. How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created. They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? Covering these stories this week: John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, Naftali Bendavid of the Wall Street Journal, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, and Dana Priest of the Washington Post.

Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Primary night surprises. Are they a sign of things to come? Plus, the faltering economy and the stem cell debate, tonight on Washington Week. One surprise in Alaska--Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-AK): It ain't over until it's over.--another in Florida. Rick Scott, Florida Republican gubernatorial primary winner: Tonight we have sent a clear message to the Washington insiders. Yet, as outsiders stage upsets, some insiders survive. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Republicans will win in November and we will regain our majorities in both the Senate and the House." Rep.

Kendrick Meek (D-FL) said, "I made the case that I am the real Democrat in this race." Millions of dollars and dozens of negative ads later, the immensity of the midterm challenge becomes a little more clear, in part because the economy refuses to recover with yet more bad news on housing and on Wall Street. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "President Obama should ask for and accept the resignations of the remaining members of his economic team." Vice President Joe Biden said, "Folks, I'm still waiting for what it is that they are for." Plus, an unexpected court ruling revives the stem cell debate. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post; Charles Babington of the Associated Press; Eamon Javers of CNBC; and Pete Williams of NBC News.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

Jobs Report for August Gives Mixed Reading for U.S. Economy. The August jobs report released Friday showed that the private sector added 67,000 jobs but jobless numbers still remain grim with the U.S. unemployment rate rising slightly to 9.6 percent. All the while, President Obama urges the public to be patient and insists his policies are working -- just slower than hoped.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

English-language companion to the Spanish-language series LOS NINOS EN SU CASA. Both shows are designed for parents or anyone else who takes care of young kids: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The shows cover subjects such as: tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, speech and language delays. These series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help kids be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

English-language companion to the Spanish-language series LOS NINOS EN SU CASA. Both shows are designed for parents or anyone else who takes care of young kids: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The shows cover subjects such as: tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, speech and language delays. These series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help kids be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

In a time where thirty-one states have passed English Only initiatives, one urban school district is exploring the provocative notion that speaking a foreign language can be a national asset. We follow four diverse students and their families as they encounter the challenges and delights of becoming fluent in two languages. As we witness their journey, we see how speaking more than one language changes them, their families, their communities, and maybe even the world.

Segment Length: 00:56:46

In 1993 the late architect and MacArthur "genius" Samuel Mockbee started the Rural Studio, a design/build architecture program, in which students create striking architecture for impoverished communities in rural Alabama. Guided by frank, passionate never-before-seen interviews with Mockbee, the film shows how a group of students use their creativity, ingenuity and compassion to craft a home for their charismatic client, Jimmie Lee Matthews. Known within the community as Music Man because of his obsession with soul music, Jimmie Lee maintains a healthy zeal for life, blasting R&B from his vast collection of used stereos and boasting that he "ain't never met a stranger!" These relatively affluent, typically middle class students cross a threshold into Music Man's world to form a strong bond with a role model and friend--someone they likely would not have met had they not left the comfortable university campus for rural West Alabama. The Rural Studio is about more than building. It is also about providing students with an experience that forever inspires them to consider how they can use their skills to better their communities. Interviews with Mockbee's peers and scenes with those he's influenced infuse the film with a larger discussion of architecture's role in issues of poverty, class, race, education, social change and citizenship.

LOS NINOS EN SU CASA is a Spanish-language companion to the English-language series A PLACE OF OUR OWN. Both shows are designed for parents or anyone else who takes care of young kids: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The shows cover subjects such as tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, speech and language delays. These series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help kids be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

FRONTLINE/WORLD investigates one of its own stories, "The Play Pump," which promised to use a merry-go-round and the power of children to help meet the dire need for fresh water in southern Africa. After FRONTLINE/WORLD first aired the story in 2005, major donors in the United States -- and the U.S. government itself -- launched a multimillion-dollar campaign to install the device in thousands of African schools and villages. Now, correspondent Amy Costello investigates what happened to those communities, as the promise of the PlayPump fell short and the device's biggest American boosters began to back away from a technology they had once championed. Also in this episode: Adam Davidson of NPR's "Planet Money" team looks at a new idea in post-disaster relief being tried out in Haiti and a profile of a painter who travels to the remote jungles of West Papua in search of the "clever bird."

Veteran filmmaker Simon King takes on the role of mother to two cheetah cubs, Toki and Sambu, orphaned when their mother was killed by a lion. It's a two-year emotional rollercoaster, from terrifying stand-offs with rhinos and leopards to some of the most intimate moments of cheetah life ever captured on film. The cubs evolve into sleek hunters, spending more and more time on their own. But for Simon, it's a nervous time. Can they survive the dangers of the bush?

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout -- one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapierre, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

Haiti Six Months Later: This week marked the 6 month anniversary of the devastating earthquake in Haiti, which killed more than 230,000 people. Humanitarian groups say while there has been some recovery, an overwhelming amount of work still needs to be done. Ethical Eating: Religious communities are part of a growing movement across America that is concerned with the ethics of how food is grown and how it gets to our tables. Norman Wirzba Extended Interview: "Every time you eat, you give expression to what you think the world ought to be," says Norman Wirzba, a professor of theology, ecology, and rural life at Duke Divinity School. Abraham Verghese: The vocation of healing is a central theme in the acclaimed novel "Cutting for Stone" by Abraham Verghese, who writes that doctors "must believe that ministering to others will heal our woundedness. And it can. But it can also deepen the wound." Abraham Verghese Extended Interview: "Patients require that one-on-one encounter, the Samaritan function of being a physician," says writer and Stanford Medical School professor Abraham Verghese. "I'm convinced that when the physician examines the patient, this is an incredibly important ritual."

The Outer Banks of North Carolina are a slim and moving line of sand in the open Atlantic. Many travelers think they know these islands, but south of Ocracoke Inlet there rises a luminous bar of sand 60 miles in extent, with no roads, no bridges and no hotels. These are the wild beaches of Cape Lookout -- one of the few remaining natural barrier islands in the world. At once an exaltation and elegy, "Ribbon of Sand" profiles this seascape and the transitory islands that are doomed to disappear. Meryl Streep reads excerpts from Rachel Carson's writings.

The hurricane season of 2004 is categorized as one of the most active on record. It begins with an uneventful June and July then suddenly turns violent in August. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami are confronted with satellite images showing a steady stream of tropical storms spinning across the Atlantic from Africa. Combining their experience with the latest technology, they focus on making the most accurate predictions. As Hurricane Specialist Jack Bevens says, "If you get it wrong you can get a lot of people killed." No one wants to risk a wrong forecast. Anatomy of a Hurricane goes behind the scenes at the National Hurricane Center to see forecasters on a mission to save lives and property. It is a look at the stressful work of a dedicated staff as they track Charley, Frances, Ivan and Jeanne - all major hurricanes with unexpected challenges. It is also a look at the complicated dynamics of the atmosphere - why these hurricanes form and where they go.

Every so often a giant emerges on the stage of science, someone who transcends the narrow boundaries of a particular line of research and alters our perspective on the world. E.O. Wilson is such a man. In "Lord of the Ants," NOVA profiles this soft-spoken Southerner renowned for his scientific study of ants that led to his 1975 book "Sociobiology: The New Synthesis," where he put forth the notion that evolutionary principles could explain social behavior throughout the animal kingdom, including in humans. Though sociobiology was a controversial new discipline at the time, today experimental science shows that genes do play a role in aspects of human behavior. E.O. Wilson is an icon of our times: a lord of the ants who sought to explain nature on earth and who now fights for its survival through his worldwide conservation efforts. Actor and environmentalist Harrison Ford narrates this engaging portrait of a ceaselessly active scientist and eloquent writer, who has accumulated two Pulitzer Prizes among his many other honors.

On a typical day, listless sea lions flop on their sides, too exhausted to lift their heads. Others are agitated. Another chews obsessively on a flipper. They are all victims of a marine neurotoxin made by an organism that feeds on algae. Dr. Gulland is committed to saving these sick animals one at a time, but she is also desperately trying to figure out what's killing them.

Behind the enduring images of heroic rescues undertaken by the New Orleans Police Department in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, there is another story of law enforcement in crisis, even out of control. "Law & Disorder," a year-long, ongoing collaboration among FRONTLINE, ProPublica and the New Orleans Times-Picayune, investigates charges that NOPD officers inappropriately used lethal force against New Orleans citizens and then tried to cover up their actions. Airing days before the fifth anniversary of one of the deadliest hurricanes in U.S. history and drawing from reports published in a real-time online investigation, FRONTLINE takes a fresh look at how the NOPD performed when the rules of civilized society collapsed.

Long ago in the age of dinosaurs, a volcano in eastern China erupted and buried a host of strange creatures in ash, creating exquisite fossils that preserved a big surprise - many dinosaurs were covered in feathers. In "The Four-Winged Dinosaur," NOVA investigates the most bizarre of these feathered dinosaurs, which has rekindled a fierce, decades-long debate over the origin of bird flight. The central character in this drama is a strange little dinosaur with wings on its legs as well as its arms. The pigeon-sized Microraptor is the smallest adult dinosaur ever found, perhaps the first known tree-dweller. But could it really fly? NOVA assembles a team of top paleontologists, aeronautical engineers, and paleo-artists to reconstruct Microraptor and build a sophisticated model for a wind tunnel experiment. The results have surprising implications for long-accepted ideas about how winged flight began.

Though they may look like dragons and inspire stories of man-eating, fire-spitting monsters with long claws, razor-sharp teeth and muscular, whip-like tails, these creatures are actually monitor lizards, the largest lizards to walk the planet. With their acute intelligence-including the ability to plan ahead-these lizards are a very different kind of reptile, blurring the line between reptiles and mammals. And even though these bizarre reptiles haven't changed all that much since the dinosaurs, they are a very successful species, versatile at adapting to all kinds of settings. Lizard Kings will look at what makes these tongued reptiles so similar to mammals and what has allowed them to become such unique survivors. But while the creatures can find their way around many different habitats, finding them is no easy task. Natural loners, and always on guard, they sense anything or anyone from hundreds of feet away. NOVA will follow expert lizard hunter Dr. Eric Pianka as he tracks the elusive creatures through Australia's heartland with cutting-edge "lizard cam" technology for an unparalleled close encounter with these amazingly versatile "living dragons."

The Drakensberg Mountains are southern Africa's Alps, rising more than 11,000 feet into the sky. But beneath their shimmering beauty lies an incredibly hostile environment for the creatures that manage to live there. Each Spring, drenching rains destroy the grasslands at the base of the mountains, and those who would survive must climb up sheer cliffs of volcanic rock, through gauntlets of storms and snow, to reach the carpets of new grass on the plateau. The baboons that make their home halfway up the heights may have the advantage of agility, but eland, the world's largest antelope, have long, spindly legs and heavy bodies, which make their climb to the top all but unbelievable. All have babies at their sides. And the vultures circle overhead.

NOVA presents a comprehensive three-part, three-hour special-investigating explosive new discoveries that are transforming the picture of how we became human. The first program explores fresh clues about our earliest ancestors in Africa, including the stunningly complete fossil nicknamed "Lucy's Child." These three-million-year-old bones from Ethiopia reveal humanity's oldest and most telltale trait-upright walking rather than a big brain. The second program tackles the mysteries of how our ancestors managed to survive in a savannah teeming with vicious predators, and when and why we first left our African cradle to colonize every corner of the Earth. In the final program, NOVA probes a wave of dramatic new evidence, based partly on cutting-edge DNA analysis, that reveals new insights into how we became the creative and "behaviorally modern" humans of today, and what really happened to the enigmatic Neanderthals who faded into extinction. Shot "in the trenches" as discoveries were unearthed throughout Africa and Europe, each hour of Becoming Human unfolds with a forensic investigation into the life and death of a specific hominid ancestor, such as Lucy's Child. Dry bones spring back to vivid life with stunning animation, the product of a unique NOVA collaboration between top anthropologists and a talented team of movie animators.

English-language companion to the Spanish-language series LOS NINOS EN SU CASA. Both shows are designed for parents or anyone else who takes care of young kids: grandparents, nannies, babysitters and home daycare providers. The shows cover subjects such as: tantrums, literacy, preventing obesity, speech and language delays. These series combine an entertainment format -- the daytime talk/demonstration show -- with solid educational information on how young children learn, and what adults need to know to help kids be prepared for kindergarten and beyond.

For the first time on television, NOVA exposes the hidden world of the high-tech, 21st century eavesdropping carried out by the National Security Agency or NSA. Today, the NSA is the world's largest intelligence agency, three times the size of the CIA and far more secret. Its mission is to eavesdrop on the world - from cell phones in Europe to pay phones in Afghanistan to e-mail messages from Pakistan to Baghdad. But since 9/11, it has also turned its giant ear inward, listening in without warrant on thousands of American citizens, many of whom are on the government's secret watch list, now more than half-a-million names long. Based on the latest bestseller by journalist James Bamford, INSIDE THE SPY FACTORY is a gripping investigation of the NSA from its tragic failures leading up to the 9/11 attacks to its secret listening rooms currently installed in the nation's telecom networks.

It is the summer of 1982 and Ronald Reagan has decided to replace his Secretary of State. The man he has chosen for the job is George Shultz. A brief biography introduces us to this remarkable man who has been a respected academic, a corporate leader and Secretary of the Treasury. In 1982 the world is in turmoil as the new Secretary takes over. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger openly opposes Shultz' initiatives for a peace-keeping force. In this first episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" one crisis after another boils over from the Middle East to news that the CIA is secretly aiding Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Despite strenuous opposition from many of Reagan's advisors, Shultz secretly arranges for Regan to meet the Soviet Ambassador to the United States. This episode ends as the successes of Shultz' skillful negotiations are shattered with the tragic bombing of the Marine barracks in Lebanon.

Elena Kagan at the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Supreme Court rules on gun safety, the struggling economy, plus everything else on the president's plate and remembering Senator Robert Byrd, tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Herb Kohl (D-WI) said, "Your judicial philosophy is almost invisible to us." Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL) said, "I'm just a little taken aback by the tone of your remarks because it's unconnected to reality." Sen. Charles Grassley (R-IA) said, "Is it appropriate for judge to mold and steer the law?" Elena Kagan [Supreme Court Nominee] said, "It's dangerous to write papers about the law before you've spent a day in law school." The familiar thrust and parry of Supreme Court confirmation hearings--what did it tell us about nominee Elena Kagan? Ms. Kagan said, "Senator Kyl, I would not want to characterize the current court in any way. I hope one day to join it." And what did the court's action on gun rights this week tell us about the bench she is likely to join? Wayne Lapiere, President, NRA said, "Do law abiding citizens have the right to go out and buy and own a gun for self-protection or any lawful purpose? And the court today said, yes." Paul Helmke, President, Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence: We need to put the bad guys away and that means we need to make it harder for dangerous people to get the guns. But the court was not the week's only story for the White House there was difficult news on jobs. Better news on Wall Street reform. Negotiations on climate change, immigration. And the curious case of the Russian spy ring. Plus the passing of Senator Robert C. Byrd. Covering the week: Pete Williams of NBC News; Joan Biskupic of USA Today; David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal; and Peter Baker of the New York Times.

The spy swap, the Netanyahu handshake, and intraparty political drama -- a lot of questions left unanswered. We'll try to fix that tonight on Washington Week. Cloak and dagger, a Russian spy ring brings the Cold War back to an overheated nation's capital. Mr. Robert Baum, Attorney for Russian Spy Anna Chapman, said, "All of those who entered a guilty plea will be boarding a bus which will take them to one of the New York airports to be transported to Moscow." As the U.S. strikes a deal with the former enemy; it mends fences with an old friend. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said, "The bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable." President Barack Obama also stated, "The bond between the United States and Israel is unbreakable." While on the domestic front, Republicans and Democrats look for a little mojo. With the president on the campaign trail...President Obama said, "Hello, Nevada....Hello Kansas City." Robin Carnahan wants to move forward. Missouri wants to move forward. That's the choice in this election: moving backward or moving forward. As Republicans debate among themselves, who speaks for the party? Michael Steele, RNC Chairman said, "Every time something happens, people go 'oh, you should step down, step down.' Well, the reality of it is that's not happening. So stop the noise on that." Sarah Palin, former Alaska Governor, said, "If you thought pit bulls were tough, well, you don't wanna mess with the mama grizzlies." Covering the week, Pierre Thomas of ABC News, Christi Parsons of Tribune Newspapers, John Harwood of CNBC and the New York Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

Imagine being picked up off the street, told you have committed a murder you know nothing about and then finding yourself sentenced to 20 years in jail. In December 2005 this happened to Toño Zúñiga in Mexico City and, like thousands of other innocent people, he was wrongfully imprisoned. The award-winning Presumed Guilty is the story of two young lawyers and their struggle to free Zúñiga. With no background in film, Roberto Hernández and Layda Negrete set about recording the injustices they were witnessing, enlisting acclaimed director Geoffrey Smith (The English Surgeon, POV 2009) to tell this dramatic story.

Merle Haggard actually lived the rambling, gambling, love 'em and leave 'em, often brutal life that remains the bedrock of country music lyrics - he hopped his first freight train at the age of 10, became a chronic truant and drinker and was locked up some 17 times as a youngster. Serious criminal charges followed, including car theft. He was, literally, in the inmate audience in 1959, when Johnny Cash gave his New Year's Day concert in San Quentin - and, as he's said repeatedly, "my life changed forever." The film features interviews with comrades and fellow musicians including Robert Duvall, John Fogerty, Billy Gibbons, Kris Kristofferson, Keith Richards, Tanya Tucker, Don Was, and Dwight Yoakam, among others.

It is the summer of 1982 and Ronald Reagan has decided to replace his Secretary of State. The man he has chosen for the job is George Shultz. A brief biography introduces us to this remarkable man who has been a respected academic, a corporate leader and Secretary of the Treasury. In 1982 the world is in turmoil as the new Secretary takes over. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger openly opposes Shultz' initiatives for a peace-keeping force. In this first episode of "Turmoil and Triumph," one crisis after another boils over from the Middle East to news that the CIA is secretly aiding Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Despite strenuous opposition from many of Reagan's advisors, Shultz secretly arranges for Regan to meet the Soviet Ambassador to the United States. This episode ends as the successes of Shultz' skillful negotiations are shattered with the tragic bombing of the Marine barracks in Lebanon.

A ceremonial welcome greets George Shultz and Ronald Reagan as the second episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" opens in Japan. After a successful trade negotiation the scene quickly shifts to the Philippines where dissident Nimoy Aquino is assassinated and the island nation is thrown into turmoil. The first weapons in the still secret arms for hostages deal arrive in Iran and Reagan is sworn in for his second term. Shultz begins to set up a summit meeting with the new Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, although others in the administration are opposed. Shultz perseveres and a pre-summit is held in Geneva. As successful negotiations come to a close, the Philippines boils over and despite White House staff objections Shultz persuades Reagan to abandon the dictator Ferdinand Marcos and recognize the democratically elected Cory Aquino as the new Philippine leader.

On the 4th of July, 1986 Ronald Reagan is at the peak of his popularity. Yet John Poindexter and others in the White House are up to no good. Shultz is left out of the loop as the Iran Contra scandal festers. George Shultz remains focused on what he sees as the highest priority: a summit meeting in Reykjavik between his president and Mikhail Gorbachev. Although the summit is a tremendous breakthrough in superpower relations, Reagan and Gorbachev miss the chance to eliminate all nuclear weapons. As Shultz arrives home the Iran Contra scandal becomes embarrassingly public and on CBS's "Face the Nation" Shultz risks his job by telling the truth. Still his major goal remains a nuclear free world to which Reagan and Gorbachev move one step closer with a record cut of nuclear weapons. In 1989 George Shultz leaves the State Department where he has earned accolades as one of America's ablest Secretaries of State. We follow the Secretary back home to the world of ideas and his position as a Fellow at the Hoover Institution. As this final episode of "Turmoil and Triumph" concludes, George Shultz continues to travel the world seeking an end to nuclear weapons.

Wall Street reform passes, but other problems remain--not least of them Afghanistan. Can we turn the corner? We explore that tonight on Washington Week. Sen. Rod Burris (D-IL) stated, "Yeas are 60. The nays are 39. Conference report is agreed to." Victory for the Democrats on Wall Street reform. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) said, "No longer will the recklessness on Wall Street of some cause joblessness on Main Street for the many." But Republicans don't see the connection. Rep. John Boehner said, "I think it ought to be repealed." And away from Washington, is it making anybody feel better? With the topsy-turvy stock market, slippery public confidence and skeptical voters, no victory seems to last for long. President Barack Obama said, "I won't be satisfied as long as even one person who needs a job and wants to work can't find one." That satisfaction is elusive, as elusive as success in Afghanistan. The good news always eclipsed by the bad. But why? Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Two big items checked off the president's to do list--signing financial reform into law and extending unemployment benefits, but it was a sloppy firing with an unknown government employee that forced the White House off message this week. I'm Gloria Borger sitting in for Gwen Ifill tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama, said, "We finally overcame the procedural blockade of a partisan minority in the Senate to restore unemployment insurance for about 2.5 million Americans who are out of work and looking for a job." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) said, "He went out of his way to misrepresent the position of Senate Republicans. Of course we ought to extend unemployment, but we ought to pay for it." Ben Bernanke, Federal Reserve Chairman said, "The economic outlook remains unusually uncertain." So who should we believe and what's the best way to help those hit by the recession? The video clip that caused an uproar, followed by the firing and then the backpedaling. Press Secretary Robert Gibbs said, "A disservice was done for which we apologize." Secretary Tom Vilsack said, "I started off by extending to her my personal and profound apologies." Sec. Gibbs said, "The president expressed to Ms. Sherrod his apologies for the events of the last several days. Inside the firestorm that put the media, the White House and the issue of race front and center. Or was it just a bungled personnel matter? And in the post-9/11 era has America's intelligence community gotten too big and unmanageable? The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

In a time where thirty-one states have passed English Only initiatives, one urban school district is exploring the provocative notion that speaking a foreign language can be a national asset. We follow four diverse students and their families as they encounter the challenges and delights of becoming fluent in two languages. As we witness their journey, we see how speaking more than one language changes them, their families, their communities, and maybe even the world.

The Charlie Rangel mess, a federal judge gets Arizona's immigration law, and wartime leaks and wartime stress, tonight on Washington Week. For Democrats, headaches and more headaches. Rep. Zoe Lofgren (D-CA) said, "Public office is a public trust. Our task is to determine whether Representative Rangel's conduct met that standard." Rep. Charlie Rangel (D-NY) said, "There's no allegation that this is scintilla bit of evidence that I have been guilty of corruption, wrongdoing." The House Ethics Committee sees it differently. And with midterm elections just over three months away, a debate over the economy--is it picking up rapidly enough? President Barack Obama said, "We've got a long way to go. But we're beginning to see some of these tough decisions pay off. We are moving forward." The administration wins one in Arizona, where a tough new immigration law is almost entirely struck down. Gov. Jan Brewer said, "We are going to continue to request that we get heard on this and that the citizens of Arizona are protected." And the war in Afghanistan continues on its bumpy course with new revelations--a classified insider's view of the war and fresh evidence of how stress is hurting the effort. Covering the week Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post, Pete Williams of NBC News, and Martha Raddatz of ABC News.

Talk about White House ups and down, bad news on job numbers, good news on Elena Kagan, and political fallout from a California gay marriage decision, tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "The road to recovery doesn't follow a straight line. Some sectors bounce back faster than others." No kidding. The nation's economic zigzag continued in July with new signs of weakness. The light at the end of the tunnel is still some distance away. But history was made in the Senate this week with Elena Kagan's Supreme Court confirmation. The debate was familiar. Sen. Pat Roberts (R-KS) said, "Her record clearly demonstrates a propensity toward pursuing an activist agenda." Sen. Charles Schumer (D-NY) said, "They want their own brand of activism. Judicial activism of the right -- to pull the court and the country away from the mainstream." But the president won the day. President Obama said, "So it is now my great pleasure to introduce as our next Supreme Court justice, Elena Kagan." And in California, a judge overturns a ban on same-sex marriage. A Gay Marriage Supporter said, "Americans are going to understand that we are people. We lead exciting lives, boring lives. We love our family, our friends, our children. And so it is a great day." A California Voter said, "The voters say no, then that's who should decide, not a federal judge." A constitutional fight most likely headed to the Supreme Court. Covering the week: Eamon Javers of CNBC, Joan Biskupic of USA Today, and Gloria Borger of CNN.

Political broadcasts, Pentagon costs cutting, and this debatable question--is Washington broken--we'll talk about it all tonight on Washington Week. Linda McMahon, Connecticut Republican GOP Senate Candidate, said, "They don't want to send the same politicians to Washington and get the same politics out of Washington. Ken Buck, Colorado Republican Senate Candidate said, "It is time Republicans started acting like Republicans." Outsiders rule. Political novices and upstarts carry the day in the latest round of primaries, as running against Washington becomes all the rage. Will a presidential endorsement help or hurt in the fall? Senator Michael Bennet (D-CO) said, "We'll have to see. We'll obviously do what's right for the campaign." Or do polls and tea parties prove the pox is on both houses? In Washington, Pentagon Chief Robert Gates proposes slashing military spending. And not everybody's happy about it. Representative Randy Forbes (R-VA) said, "What we're witnessing is the piecemeal auctioning off of the greatest military the world has ever known." Does all this mean that Washington is broken? And if it is, why is everybody still trying to get here? Covering the week: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Charles Babington of the Associated Press, Nancy Youssef of McClatchy Newspapers, and Todd Purdum of Vanity Fair.

A fresh try for Middle East peace; stepping back in Iraq; drumming up campaign money; and the politics of Islam--tonight, on Washington Week. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "I've invited Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu and Palestinian Authority President Abbas to meet on September 2nd in Washington, D.C." The Obama administration dives head first back into the thorny and historically difficult Middle East peace process. What's different this time? U.S. troops celebrate the long promised pullout from Iraq. U.S. SOLDIER: We won. It's over. America, we brought democracy to Iraq. But events there, in Afghanistan and in Pakistan show it's more complicated than that. At home, Democrats and Republicans raise money hand over fist for the midterm elections. Tim Kaine, Chairman, Democratic National Committee, said, "We'll be able to put more money into the midterms by far than we've ever put in, probably north of $50 million. And the presidential events are huge." And as the president steps into the debate about a New York mosque, saying, "The answer is no regrets." A secondary discussion builds. Gov. Chris Christie (R-NJ) said, "It's being used as a political football by both parties." How do Americans view Islam? And why do so many think their president is Muslim? Franklin Graham, Evangelist, said, "I think the president's problem is that he was born a Muslim." Really? Covering the week: Helene Cooper of the New York Times, Martha Raddatz of ABC News, Jeanne Cummings of Politico, and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

Primary night surprises. Are they a sign of things to come? Plus, the faltering economy and the stem cell debate, tonight on Washington Week. One surprise in Alaska--Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-AK): It ain't over until it's over.-- another in Florida. Rick Scott, Florida Republican gubernatorial primary winner: Tonight we have sent a clear message to the Washington insiders. Yet, as outsiders stage upsets, some insiders survive. Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) said, "Republicans will win in November and we will regain our majorities in both the Senate and the House." Rep. Kendrick Meek (D-FL) said, "I made the case that I am the real Democrat in this race." Millions of dollars and dozens of negative ads later, the immensity of the midterm challenge becomes a little more clear, in part because the economy refuses to recover with yet more bad news on housing and on Wall Street. Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "President Obama should ask for and accept the resignations of the remaining members of his economic team." Vice President Joe Biden said, "Folks, I'm still waiting for what it is that they are for." Plus, an unexpected court ruling revives the stem cell debate. Covering the week: Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post; Charles Babington of the Associated Press; Eamon Javers of CNBC; and Pete Williams of NBC News.

When brothers Armando and Carlos Peña set off to carry their mother's ashes to south Texas, their road trip turns into a quest for answers about a strangely veiled past. As they reunite with five other brothers, the two men try to piece together their family's shattered history. Why was their mother cast out by her family? What happened to their father, who disappeared during the notorious 1954 U.S. deportation program Operation Wetback? "Calavera Highway" is a sweeping story of seven Mexican-American men grappling with the meaning of masculinity, fatherhood and a legacy of rootless beginnings.

On the night of February 27, 1973, 54 cars rolled, horns blaring, into a small hamlet on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation. Within hours, some 200 Oglala Lakota and American Indian Movement (AIM) activists had seized the few major buildings in town and police had cordoned off the area. The occupation of Wounded Knee had begun. Demanding redress for grievances -- some going back more than 100 years -- the protesters captured the world's attention for 71 gripping days. With heavily armed federal troops tightening a cordon around meagerly supplied, cold, hungry Indians, the event invited media comparisons with the massacre of Indian men, women and children at Wounded Knee almost a century earlier. In telling the story of this iconic moment, the final episode of WE SHALL REMAIN examines the broad political and economic forces that led to the emergence of AIM in the late 1960s, as well as the immediate events -- a murder and an apparent miscarriage of justice -- that triggered the takeover. Though the federal government failed to make good on many of the promises that ended the siege, the event succeeded in bringing the desperate conditions of Indian reservation life to the nation's attention. Perhaps even more important, it proved that despite centuries of encroachment, warfare and neglect, Indians remained a vital force in the life of America.

How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created. They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican

Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.

When brothers Armando and Carlos Peña set off to carry their mother's ashes to south Texas, their road trip turns into a quest for answers about a strangely veiled past. As they reunite with five other brothers, the two men try to piece together their family's shattered history. Why was their mother cast out by her family? What happened to their father, who disappeared during the notorious 1954 U.S. deportation program Operation Wetback? "Calavera Highway" is a sweeping story of seven Mexican-American men grappling with the meaning of masculinity, fatherhood and a legacy of rootless beginnings.

On the night of February 27, 1973, 54 cars rolled, horns blaring, into a small hamlet on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation. Within hours, some 200 Oglala Lakota and American Indian Movement (AIM) activists had seized the few major buildings in town and police had cordoned off the area. The occupation of Wounded Knee had begun.

Demanding redress for grievances -- some going back more than 100 years -- the protesters captured the world's attention for 71 gripping days. With heavily armed federal troops tightening a cordon around meagerly supplied, cold, hungry Indians, the event invited media comparisons with the massacre of Indian men, women and children at Wounded Knee almost a century earlier. In telling the story of this iconic moment, the final episode of WE SHALL REMAIN examines the broad political and economic forces that led to the emergence of AIM in the late 1960s, as well as the immediate events -- a murder and an apparent miscarriage of justice -- that triggered the takeover. Though the federal government failed to make good on many of the promises that ended the siege, the event succeeded in bringing the desperate conditions of Indian reservation life to the nation's attention. Perhaps even more important, it proved that despite centuries of encroachment, warfare and neglect, Indians remained a vital force in the life of America.

How can Washington turn the page if it keeps getting stuck in a jobless recovery and a contentious midterm campaign? We'll get to the bottom of it all tonight on Washington Week. President Barack Obama said, "This [is a] remarkable chapter in the history of the United States and Iraq. We have met our responsibilities. Now it's time to turn the page." Looking forward, moving ahead, accentuating the positive, what president doesn't want that? But as the Labor Day launch to the political season arrived, the White House faces a stubborn jobless recovery. President Obama said, "Jobs are being created. They're just not being created as fast as they need to, given the big hole that we experienced." A tenuous new effort to arrive at Middle East peace. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said, "Mr. Prime Minister and Mr. President, you have the opportunity to end this conflict and the decades of enmity between your peoples once and for all." And a newly energized Republican opposition. Sarah Palin, Former Governor of Alaska and Republican Vice Presidential Candidate said, "Let's stand together. Let's stand with honor. Let's restore America." We examine why the page can turn both ways with Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Deborah Solomon of the Wall Street Journal, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and John Dickerson of Slate Magazine and CBS News.

The sum of our fears: the economy, the political landscape and the dilemma of distraction -- all of our national insecurities on display. We take a look tonight on Washington Week. Battles on every side, all on display at a lunchtime presidential news conference. Over the economy--President Barack Obama said, "The policies that the Republicans are offering right now are the exact policies that got us into this mess." Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) [House Minority Leader] said, "I think it just shows how out of touch the White House is. The American people are asking the question: where are the jobs?" Over the coming midterm elections. President Obama said, "Between now and November what I'm going to remind the American people is that the policies that we have put in place have moved us in the right direction." Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-KY) [Senate Minority Leader] said, "No apologies for opposing the stimulus. No apologies for opposing the healthcare bill. No apologies for opposing what they call the Wall Street bill." And over a sensational and distracting threat from an obscure Florida pastor. Terry Jones [Dove World Outreach Center] said, "We are simply burning a book." Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said, "It doesn't in any way represent America or Americans or American government or American religious or political leadership." President Obama said, "We have to make sure that we don't start turning on each other." We will put the rollercoaster week in context with Jackie Calmes of the New York Times, David Wessel of the Wall Street Journal, Karen Tumulty of the Washington Post and Michael Duffy of Time magazine.
