| Meat Industry in MN | Minneculture | 1/5/2023 | 1:00 PM | 25 min. | Historians have argued that the history of America can be told through the history of meat. The meat industry was often the first to innovate and make use of modern technologies: from the railroad and refrigerated cars to meat packing plants' dis-assembly lines that inspired Henry Ford's assembly line. This is especially true for Minnesota. The University of Minnesota was the first university to specialize in meat studies with the opening of the Andrew Boss Meat Lab. South Saint Paul's stockyards and meat packing plants were once the largest in the world. In the past hundred and fifty years, Minnesota, meat, and the world changed. |
| Enviornmental Stewardship In MN | Minneculture | 1/19/2023 | 1:00 PM | 22 min. | With its haunting call, its distinctive black and white plumage, and its intense, almost otherworldly red eyes, the Common Loon is an icon of northern Minnesota wilderness. But some researchers believe future generations of the beloved bird in this region may be in jeopardy. A recent study in Wisconsin showed some worrying trends. Chicks are getting smaller, their survival rates are lower, and loons that migrate as juveniles are returning to their birthplace at low rates. Scientists in Canada have simultaneously noticed some of the same trends across the country. Now, there's a concentrated research effort by the National Loon Center in Minnesota to find out whether the same declines are present there. |
| Walker Arts Center Exhibits in 2023 | Minneculture | 1/25/2023 | 1:00 PM | 9 min. | Sometimes you need to take a step back. After achieving notoriety and success as a digital media artist, Paul Chan abruptly left the art world in 2009 when he hit "peak screen." That time off allowed the artist to reimagine his focus and direction. In the exhibition, "Breathers," on view at the Walker Art Center before it travels across the country, you can see Chan's work that he has created since returning to making art. |
| European Culture and Folklore In MN | Minneculture | 2/2/2023 | 1:00 PM | 17 min. | In the late 1800's, European immigrants — mostly German and Scandinavian — flooded Minnesota. The population boomed. This new majority of people in a new land needed myths and stories to fill in the blanks about why and how they came here. Like the story of Kensington Runestone. A purportedly 'discovered' rune stone that proved that Nordic explorers made it to Minnesota in the year 1362. |
| Advancing Black Homeownership, Women's Health in MN | The Conversation with Al McFarlane | 2/7/2023 | 1:00 PM | 1 hr. | Guests: Sophia Yen, MD, MPH is the co-founder and CEO of Pandia Health; Robyn Bipes-Timm, Chief Strategy Officer, Twin Cities Habitat for Humanity; Shereese Turner, Chief Program Officer Twin Cities Habitat for Humanity |
| Local Theater designed to highlight and support artists with disabilities | Disability and Progress | 2/16/2023 | 6:00 PM | 1 hr. | Guests: Off Leash Area & Off-Kilter Cabaret discusses upcoming theater programming. |
| Contemporary Indigenous and Latinx Hip-Hop Culture | Minneculture | 2/23/2023 | 1:00 PM | 17 min. | What does heartache sound like? Tap into the sound of Twin Cities-based artist Tufawon, whose recent album, "Until the Sun Comes Up," explores the heart's resilience. |
| MN Encounters with Arctic Tribes | Good Medicine | 2/24/2023 | 6:00 PM | 1 hr. | PHILLIP "KILIRNGUQ" BLANCHETT (Inuit/Yu'Pik/African American-Alaska), of PAMYUA. Pamyua is a "tribal sounds" quartet from Alaska and the Arctic. They infuse traditional drum and voice with contemporary rhythm and blues styling to produce what they call, "Inuit Soul and Funk" Music. Pamyua will be appearing at THE CEDAR Cultural Center this Sunday night, February 26. We're pleased to visit and talk about that event. |
| The African American Cultural Center: A History of Collaboration and Connection in Minnesota | Minneculture | 3/2/2023 | 1:00 PM | 17 min. | Ta-Coumba Aiken and Seitu Jones are two Twin Cities-based artists that have international reputations. Forty years ago, the two were part of the vibrant African American Cultural Center, a place where Black Art was being nurtured, rediscovered, and celebrated. |
| Tattooing Beyond the Binary in MN | Minneculture | 3/9/2023 | 1:00 PM | 7 min. | M Nijiya (they/them) is a tattoo artist and owner of Jackalope Tattoo. Jackalope is an all non-binary, trans, queer and female-identifying tattoo shop in South Minneapolis. M's specialties include black and gray portraits, gender-confirming tattoo work, scar cover-ups for mastectomies and trans top surgery, as well as 3D nipple tattooing. |
| Indigenous Filmmaking and Documentaries in MN | Good Medicine | 3/10/2023 | 6:00 PM | 1 hr. | DELINDA PUSHETONEQUA, "Oogie Push" (Meskwaki-Iowa). Oogie Pushetonequa is a professional actor, writer and theater maker. We'll talk about her artistry and an event she's curated next week at Public Functionary in Minneapolis, a Natives Documentary Film Shorts Night. |
| MN History and Significance of Animal Shelters | Minneculture | 3/16/2023 | 1:00 PM | 27 min. | The history of the Animal Humane Society offers a jaw-dropping glimpse into Minneapolis life in the late 1800s. This was a time when horses struggled to pull loads up Lowry Hill and dogs at the pound were drowned in the Mississippi River. As part of a national movement, the humane society formed to prosecute cruelty to animals — and they prosecuted cruelty to children too. Investigating hundreds of cases, humane agents became the state's first social workers and probation officers. |
| Public Art Works In MN Urban Ingineous Community | Good Medicine | 3/17/2023 | 6:00 PM | 1 hr. | "WE ARE STILL HERE" 2022-23 cohort of artists/muralists: ANGELA TWO STARS (Sisseton Wahpeton Dakota), curator of the effort, and also the cohort mentor to the three artists, THOMASINA TOPBEAR (Oglala Lakota/Santee Dakota). Joining them will be the WASH "Fellows," RACQUEL BANASZAK (Bad River Lake Superior and Bois Forte Ojibwe), SUMMER SKY COHEN (Lac du Flambeau Ojibwe) and JEARICA FOUNTAIN (Karuk, Nisenan, Pit River & Miwok). This is an exciting project in it's second year as a partnership of HENNEPIN THEATRE TRUST and the NATIVE AMERICAN COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT INSTITUTE. It seeks to center the Native American experience to Hennepin Ave. and the American Indian Cultural Corridor. |

| History of Police Corruption in Minneapolis | MinneCulture | 3/30/2023 | 1:00 PM | 35 min. | Today on MinneCulture, we're headed all the way back to 1900, when Minneapolis was a very different place than it is now. As the mill capital of the world, Minneapolis was packed to the brim with seasonal workers, thriving brothels, and scheming card sharks. But to Mayor Albert Alonzo Ames, it was just a piggy bank waiting to be smashed open. Over the course of a year and a half, Ames turned the Minneapolis Police Department into the most powerful crime ring the city had ever seen. |
| Local Organizations for Service Dogs | Disability and Progress | 3/30/2023 | 6:00 PM | 1 hr. | For Service Dog Week, Alyssa Golob discusses the organization of Helping Paws and how they help people get service dogs; Executive Director of Can Do Canines, Jeff Johnson discusses his organization. |
